Points to remember:

- * Registration dates are assigned based on current academic level (hours earned) - not projected academic level.
- * Within each particular academic level appointment period, dates are assigned based on hours earned. For example, within the junior registration period, a junior with 80 earned hours will have his registration date before a junior with 65 earned hours.

Here are some talking points to use when responding to inquiries:

- * Registration dates are assigned based on current academic level; registration availability has always been initially available to students based on academic level.
- * The system is not intended to be punitive to the individual, but instead beneficial to the broadest number of students possible, given that we have a large student population to accommodate in a relatively short period of time.
- * Not all students take advantage of their registration date and most classes are not full at the end of the registration period.
- * We encourage students to contact the department offering the course to discuss options if the class is full or to contact their academic advisor to discuss alternate class options.
- * Departments often reserve seats for certain groups (for example, majors only) during the registration period and then open up remaining seats to all students when open enrollment begins.
- * There is not one person that makes the decision about the order of registration dates – it is a university decision based on past enrollment trends and current needs.
