

1. Overview

A. Description

Provide a brief description of the new concentration (including the specific focus of the new concentration, relationship to other concentrations in this degree program, etc.).

This new philosophy concentration in morality, politics and law combines the basic analytical approaches of philosophy with an emphasis on the moral questions that arise in political theory and law. The foundation of our political and legal systems are moral values, such as individual liberty, equality, and justice. These values are contested ones, open to different understandings of their nature and implications. This concentration will explore the nature of morality, political theory, and legal theory and the interconnections between them. The program draws from disciplines related to philosophy to enrich and enliven students' understanding of the intersections of morality, politics and law. This degree should be of special interest to students pursuing post-graduate work in law, policy or politics.

B. Demand

Explain the unit's need for the new concentration (e.g., market demand, research base, direction of the discipline, and interdisciplinary considerations). How will the new concentration complement the existing degree program?

Philosophy BAs are already very attractive to pre-law students. This concentration should be of special interest to students pursuing post-graduate work in law, policy or politics. Philosophy programs around the country have found these concentration programs to be wildly successful. This program draws upon courses that are already being offered by our unit or courses that we have planned on instituting anyway. By drawing in new students, we will be able to offer an even wider array of courses to our existing majors.

2. Support and Impact

A. Faculty governance

Provide a supporting letter from the chair of the academic unit verifying that the proposed concentration has received faculty approval through appropriate governance procedures in the unit and that the unit has the resources to support the concentration as presented in the proposal, without impacting core course resources.

B. Other related programs

Identify other related ASU programs and outline how the new concentration will complement these existing ASU programs. (If applicable, statements of support from potentially-affected academic unit administrators need to be included with this proposal submission.)

This program is related to political science and justice studies although differs from their degrees in significant ways. Both of those degree programs are social science based whereas this program is firmly rooted in the humanities. Philosophical analysis differs from the approaches taken in those other programs. Our course offerings are often taken by their students and this proposal includes courses from political theory within political science.

C. Letter(s) of support

Provide a supporting letter from each college/school dean from which individual courses, or the entire concentration, are taken.

3. Academic Curriculum and Requirements

A. Knowledge, competencies, and skills

List the knowledge, competencies, and skills (learning outcomes) students should have when they complete this proposed concentration. Examples of program learning outcomes can be found at (<http://www.asu.edu/oue/assessment.html>).

Students graduating from the philosophy concentration in Morality, politics, law will be able to make a plausible argument for a philosophical position and against contradictory alternatives to that position.

Students graduating from the philosophy program concentration in Morality, politics will display an understanding of the major philosophical theories of justice.

Students graduating from the philosophy program concentration in Morality, politics will display an understanding of the major philosophical theories of ethics.

Students graduating from the philosophy program concentration in Morality, politics will display an understanding of some of the major issues philosophical jurisprudence.

B. Admissions criteria

List the admissions criteria for the proposed concentration. If they are identical to the admission criteria for the existing major and degree program under which this concentration will be established, please note that here.

The admission criteria will be the same as the existing BA in philosophy

C. Curricular structure

Provide the curricular structure for this concentration. Be specific in listing required courses and specify the total minimum number of hours required for the concentration.

Academic Curriculum and Requirements

D. Minimum residency requirement

How many hours of the concentration must be ASU credit?

12 upper division credit hours in CLAS and 30 credit hours at ASU

E. Provide a brief course description for each new course.

PHI 347 Philosophical Theories of Constitutional Interpretation

In this course we will explore the philosophical theories surrounding the questions: What constitutional rights do we have? How does one tell? In other words, this course will explore the question of constitutional interpretation.

PHI 405 Moral Psychology

The aim of this course is to provide you with a basic knowledge of key authors and issues in contemporary moral psychology as well as with a sense for the diversity of this subfield.

PHI 448 Justice and Reparations

Reparation for injustice, wrongful harm, or ill treatment has become a topic of moral, legal, and political urgency in the late 20th and early 21st centuries in dealing with mass violence, gross violations of human rights, and some massive intergenerational harms like the dispossession of indigenous peoples, slavery and segregation, or colonial exploitation. Yet the nature and moral basis of reparation is a question relatively neglected by contemporary philosophy until recently. This course explores what normative moral conception(s) of reparations and reparative justice can support and guide obligations to repair at least some kinds of wrongful treatment. Questions include: Are obligations to repair obligations of justice, and on what principle or conception of justice do they rest? Can a single normative conception of reparations speak equally to diverse cases, including individual injuries, episodes of political terror and violence, systemic or structural injustice, and the historical oppression, dispossession or political exclusion or persecution of groups? Is the idea of reparation necessarily tied to restitution or compensation, or are these only one kind of reparation, or only reparation in the context of other acts and practices? We will iterate real cases all along the way to keep alive the realities that a conception of reparations must face.

Note: All new required courses should be submitted in Curriculum ChangeMaker and ready for Provost’s Office approval before this concentration is put on Curriculum and Academic Programs Committee (CAPC) agenda.

4. Administration and Resources

A. How will the proposed concentration be administered (including admissions, student advisement, retention, etc.)?

Admission through ASU and advising through SHPRS

B. What are enrollment projections for the next three years?

	1st Year	2nd Year (Yr. 1 continuing + new entering)	3rd Year (Yr. 1 & 2 continuing + new entering)
Number of Students (Headcount)	10	30	60

C. Resources

What are the resource implications for the proposed concentration, including any projected budget needs? Will new books, library holdings, equipment, laboratory space and/or personnel be required now or in the future? If multiple units/programs will collaborate in offering this concentration please discuss the resource contribution of each participating program. Letters of support must be included from all academic units that will commit resources to this concentration.

No new resources

D. Primary Faculty

List the primary faculty participants regarding this proposed concentration. For interdisciplinary concentrations, please include the relevant names of faculty members from across the University.

Name	Title	Area(s) of Specialization as they relate to proposed concentration
Joan McGregor	Professor of Philosophy	Bioethics, Environmental ethics and legal philosophy
Cheshire Calhoun	Professor of Philosophy	Ethics, Feminist Ethics, Moral Psychology
Peter de Marneffe	Professor of Philosophy	Social and Political Philosophy, Legal Philosophy
Elizabeth Brake	Associate Professor of Philosophy	Ethics, Feminist Ethics, Bioethics
Douglas Portmore	Associate Professor of Philosophy	Ethical theory

5. Additional Materials

A. Major Map

Attach a copy of the “proposed” major map for this degree program and each concentration(s) to be offered. Instructions on how to create a “proposed major map” in BAMM can be found in the Build a Major Map Training Guide.

B. Appendix

Complete and attach the Appendix document.

C. Attach other information that will be useful to the review committees and the Office of the Provost.

To Whom It May Concern:

I am happy to support the new Philosophy concentration, Morality, Politics & Law, managed within the School of Historical, Philosophical, and Religious Studies. With the greatest concentration of Philosophers on the ASU campus, SHPRS is the perfect place for this concentration. Additionally, our commitment to applied philosophy sync with this new concentration, which promises to impart useable knowledge to students and future leaders in our community.

Please do not hesitate to ask for further assistance. This concentration is a priority for our School.

Sincerely,

Matt Garcia

Hi Joan,
I'm happy to support the concentration and the inclusion of SPGS courses. Might I suggest you consider POS 368, Ethics and Human Rights as well? It is a popular course and seems to be a good fit.

Dear Professor Joan McGregor,

Your proposed concentration on Philosophy BA Concentration in Morality, Politics and Law looks very good. Congratulations!

Having said that, we would like to call your attention to our undergraduate certificate in socio-legal studies.

In this certificate, in the 'Ethics, Morality, and Theories of Justice' cluster of courses, we include three Philosophy courses:

PHI 307 Philosophy of Law, HU
PHI 336 Social and Political Philosophy
PHI 408 Feminist Ethics, HU

We are happy to include Philosophy courses in our certificate, and in order to support your concentration we would like to request that the Philosophy BA Concentration in Morality, Politics and Law includes some of the eight courses listed below:

JUS 105 Introduction to Justice Studies
JUS 303 Justice Theory
JUS 308 Courts and Society
JUS 360/CRJ 350 Law and Social Control
JUS 410 Punishment: Logic and Approach

JUS 465 Death Penalty in the United States
JUS 479 Law and Disputing
JUS 463/CRJ 470 Discretionary Justice

We believe that some of these courses will be relevant to the students in your concentration, in the same way that we believe that your courses are relevant to our students.

We hope that you and your colleagues find this request reasonable.
We look forward to continue the collaboration between our programs.

Best regards, and best wishes on this new concentration.

Dear Daniel,

Philosophy is introducing a new concentration and it is related to your program. Can you please provide a letter of support for our program? thanks

Joan
