(Degree, concentration, minor or certificate)

Projected effective term: Fall 2011

Briefly describe the rationale for disestablishment:

As a result of department mergers and economies in program support in 2008, the Telecommunications concentration was not resourced with faculty, equipment or space. Only a small group of freshman students had been admitted before that date in anticipation that the concentration would be implemented. They have been successfully transferred to other concentrations and most have now graduated. No students have been admitted since 2008 when admissions were suspended.

Impact on other existing programs:

No other programs or concentrations rely on this concentration.

Impact on current students:

There are still two students who originally enrolled for this concentration. Both have been transferred to other concentrations and will graduate in December 2011.
