(NEW GRADUATE INITIATIVES)

PROPOSAL PROCEDURES CHECKLIST

Academic units should adhere to the following procedures when requesting new curricular initiatives (degrees, concentrations or certificates).

☑ Obtain the required approval from the Office of the Provost to move the initiative forward for internal ASU governance reviews/approvals. Please see the academic strategic plan website at: https://provost.asu.edu/curriculum-development.

☑ Submit any new courses that will be required for the new curricular program to the Curriculum ChangeMaker online course approval system for review and approval.
  • Additional information can be found at the Provost’s Office Curriculum Development website: Courses link
  • For questions regarding proposing new courses, send an email to: courses@asu.edu

☑ Prepare the applicable proposal template and operational appendix for the proposed initiative.

☑ Obtain letters or memos of support or collaboration (if applicable).
  • when resources (faculty or courses) from another academic unit will be utilized
  • when other academic units or degree programs may be impacted by the proposed request
  • if the program will have an online campus option support will be required from the Provost's office and ASU Online. (Please complete the ASU Online Offering form in Curriculum ChangeMaker to begin this request.)

☑ Obtain the internal reviews/approvals of the academic unit.
  • internal faculty governance review committee(s)
  • academic unit head (e.g. Department Chair or School Director)
  • academic unit Dean or their designee (will submit approved proposal to the curriculumplanning@asu.edu email account for further ASU internal governance reviews (as applicable, University Graduate Council, CAPC and Senate)

Additional Recommendations

All new graduate programs require specific processes and procedures to maintain a successful degree program. Below are items that Graduate Education strongly recommends that academic units establish after the program is approved for implementation.

☑ Establish satisfactory academic progress policies, processes and guidelines – Check within the proposing academic unit and/or college to see if there are existing academic progress policies and processes in place. If none have been established, please go to http://graduate.asu.edu/faculty_staff/policies and scroll down to the academic progress review and remediation processes (for faculty and staff) section to locate the reference tool and samples for establishing these procedures.

☑ Establish a Graduate Student Handbook for the new degree program – Students need to know the specific requirements and milestones they must meet throughout their degree program. A Graduate Student Handbook, provided to students when they are admitted to the degree program and published on the website for the new degree, gives students this information. To be included in the handbook are the unit/college satisfactory academic progress policies, current degree program requirements (outlined in the approved proposal) and a link to the Graduate Policies and Procedures website: http://graduate.asu.edu/faculty_staff/policies.
This template is to be used only by programs that have received specific written approval from the University Provost’s Office to proceed with internal proposal development and review. A separate proposal must be submitted for each individual new degree program.

1. PURPOSE AND NATURE OF PROGRAM

A. Provide a brief program description

The MA in Indigenous Education is an innovative degree that primarily engages individuals who are either interested in or currently working with and in Indigenous communities or schools serving Indigenous children. The program emphasizes research, theory, and practice related to both education as broadly defined as well as the process of schooling. The primary audience for this degree are those working in Indian education, for tribal nations with education programs, and those interested in American Indian education.

The history of schooling for American Indian students has been contentious and fraught with controversy; however, the (formal and informal) education of Indigenous students has always been complex, complicated, and conscious. That is, Indigenous education -- the ways that Indigenous communities have passed down knowledge to their children and youth -- has been purposeful and planned. This degree program seeks to explore the differences between the Indigenous educational processes and Western institutions of schooling. That is, we are interested in considering the convergences and divergences between schooling and education. The program will build critical understanding of contemporary Indigenous education, as well as train students to envision creative possibilities for the future. Because the Center for Indian Education is housed in the School of Social Transformation with faculty that collaborate with colleagues campus-wide, nationally and internationally, students will have access to a wealth of additional resources at the master’s level, allowing them to tailor their program so that it best fits their specific professional aspirations. Additional resources may include special guest lecturers (i.e. Indigenous researchers, Indigenous practitioners in the field and Tribal leaders) that will engage with students in pragmatic and intellectual discussions.

B. Will concentrations be established under this degree program? ☐ Yes  X No

(Please provide additional concentration information in the curricular structure section – number 7.)

2. PROGRAM NEED

Explain why the university should offer this program (include data and discussion of the target audience and market).

The Center for Indian Education—and, by extension the School of Social Transformation (SST)—has been approached several times by tribal communities and nations both within Arizona and outside the state to create a graduate program in Indigenous education that would allow potential students to stay in their Native communities and/or jobs while earning a graduate degree. The Indigenous Education faculty at the ASU Tempe campus (in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences) proposes an online MA degree in Indigenous Education. The goal of the degree is to provide students with advanced theoretical underpinnings and current practices in Indigenous education, strengthening their ability to work in the field of Indian Education and within tribal nations with education programs. The online program will focus on Indigenous knowledge systems, current issues in American Indian education, history of American Indian education, issues of Indigenous language and culture, American Indian education policy, American Indians in higher education, and critical Indigenous research methodologies. This is not a program that will lead to state licensure.

In an examination of similar programs across the U.S., there appear to be eight-degree programs (University of New Mexico, University of Minnesota, Lakehead University, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Portland State University, University of Washington, University of Oregon, and University of Arizona). Three of the programs are grant-funded, dependent on soft funding with a focus on teacher preparation. Two of the programs are offered on-line (including one of the grant-funded projects). The University of Nebraska on-line program funding is for 22 students. The Lakehead University on-line program indicates that enrollment size depends on who applies and is accepted. Although other universities offer similar programs, none focuses entirely on the same academic areas of the ASU proposed Indigenous Education program as mentioned in the paragraph above. The proposed MA in Indigenous Education is training to envision creative possibilities of Indigenous education in their own communities. The need for such trained professionals encompasses a wide range of settings within Native communities including Tribal education, K-12 schools, and Tribal governing entities. Within the state of Arizona, there are approximately 2,000 employees who are employed in tribal education departments, including over 1,000 in the Department of Diné Education.

3. IMPACT ON OTHER PROGRAMS

Attach any letters of collaboration or support from impacted programs (see checklist coversheet). Please submit as a separate document.

There is no other program at ASU focused on Indigenous Education. To an extent, the proposed online MA in Indigenous Education fills a void between masters programs offered at ASU: CLAS American Indian Studies and Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College.

a. Master of Science (MS) in American Indian Studies. CLAS MS in American Indian Studies offers four concentration options; Indigenous Rights and Social Justice, Tribal Leadership and Governance, Cultural Resource Revitalization, and Sustainability and Visual and Oral Culture. These concentrations do not focus on Indigenous Education nor are they offered in an on-line format. The Cultural Resource Revitalization and Sustainability and Visual and Oral Culture are not currently accepting applications.

b. Master of Education (MEd) and Master of Arts (MA). Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College offers master’s degree options that encompass such majors as Curriculum and Instruction, Educational Leadership, Educational Policy, Educational Technology, Elementary Education, Higher and Postsecondary Education, Physical Education, Secondary Education, and Special Education. None of these options explicitly focuses on Indigenous Education.

Since the MA in Indigenous Education program is an on-line program that will not lead to state licensure, we do not anticipate a significant impact on existing programs. We foresee the typical candidate in this program as residing outside of the Valley. They are interested in seeking a graduate program without having to leave their Native communities and/or jobs to pursue a graduate degree.

Please see the Appendix II Letters of Support.

4. PROJECTED ENROLLMENT

How many new students do you anticipate enrolling in this program each year for the next five years?

Note: The Arizona Board of Regents (ABOR) requires that nine master’s degrees be awarded every three years. Thus, the projected enrollment numbers must account for this ABOR requirement.

A. Course Prefix(es): Provide the following information for the proposed graduate program.
   i. Will a new course prefix(es) be required for this degree program?
      Yes □ No ☒
   ii. If yes, complete the Course Prefixes / Subjects Form for each new prefix and submit it as part of this proposal submission.

B. New Courses Required for Proposed Degree Program: Provide course prefix, number, title, credit hours and description for any new courses required for this degree program.

   IED 501 Critical Indigenous Research Methodologies, 3.0
   This course examines research, its methods, and methodologies through an Indigenous framework. It will present different methods, their connections to various research questions, and thoughts of ways to analyze extant educational data. Additionally, it examines traditional methodologies, methodological clashes, and the insertion of Critical Indigenous Research Methodologies into the framing of the conversation. This course offers an historical overview of research in Indigenous communities.

   IED 502 Indigenous Knowledges in Education, 3.0
   This course will provide an overview of the literature on Indigenous knowledge systems as they tie into education as broadly defined. Specifically, the course will focus on Indigenous knowledge systems and how it encapsulates relationships (between people and each other, humans and their environment, and humans and written and oral learning), responsibility, reciprocity, and respect. The course covers both historical understandings of Indigenous knowledge systems and the ways that these knowledge systems are currently being taken up by tribal peoples.

IED 503 Current Issues in American Indian Education, 3.0
This course focuses on issues of current relevance for Indigenous education and educators. More specifically, in the 2010s, these topics include but not limited to—early childhood education, achievement data, its collection and analyses, and role of language and culture in classrooms, higher education, Indigenous peoples and the No Child Left Behind Act, and the preparation of Indigenous educators.

IED 535 Community-Based Participatory Action Research, 3.0
This course examines the basic structures of what comprises the research paradigm called Community-Based Participatory Action Research (CBPR). CBPR is research that connects “research experts” with community members with an explicit focus on sharing power, knowledge, and ownership of data and its concomitant resources and products. The course will offer a “how-to” for students in constructing research projects utilizing this lens/framework.

IED 585 Capstone
This course allows students to build a culminating experience that reflects the breadth and depth of their MA experience and allows each student to explore a research area, interest, theme or question within Indigenous Education. Final written products will be developed individually based on consultation with faculty. Each student will have a two faculty members committee to support the capstone project.

SST 530 Culture and Education, 3.0
This course examines the relationship between local cultures, local knowledge, and education. Drawing from comparative and international education and paying particular attention to the world’s most marginalized populations—Indigenous peoples—this course will explore historical trajectories of education, the global expansion of schooling, state and international education and language policies, as well as notions of local/Indigenous resistance, agency, response, and educational innovation. The course will expand our knowledge of Indigenous communities in diverse places, for example U.S. American Indian and Alaska native communities to agrarian Indigenous communities in the highland Andes and beyond. Central to our exploration will be learning the ways in which local communities redefine multiple educational contexts and processes, including formal and nonformal education structures, local educational philosophies, and pedagogies.

SST 520 Learning Technologies in Native Education, 3.0
As the internet and digital devices become more accessible in Indian country, educators are increasingly developing digital systems for formal and informal learning environments. From distance learning systems to digital language learning and apps for informal learning, this course will review types of educational technologies in different American Indian and Indigenous educational settings, highlighting the relationship between technical affordances, pedagogical approaches, and social impacts.

ii. New Faculty - Describe the new faculty hiring needed during the next three years to sustain the program. List the anticipated hiring schedule and financial sources for supporting the addition of these faculty members.

There are no new hires needed at this time. As the master's program grows; however, we anticipate the need for future hires.
iii. Administration of the program - Explain how the program will be administered for the purposes of admissions, advising, course offerings, etc. Discuss the available staff support.

Admissions will be managed by the SST graduate director and the Center for Indian Education faculty. Collaboratively, they will ensure that the admissions and course offerings will be processed in a timely and acceptable manner.

Advising will be done by the Center for Indian Education faculty and the SST graduate advisor. No additional staff will be required for advising.

B. Resource requirements needed to launch and sustain the program: Describe any new resources required for this program’s success such as new staff, new facilities, new library resources, new technology resources, etc.

A program fee proposal has been submitted which will cover the resources listed below. If the program fee is denied the cost will be covered internally at School of Social Transformation (SST) and Center for Indian Education (CIE).

The proposed MA Indigenous Education program will need:

1) Additional technology resources (i.e. computer for coordinator);

2) Additional support for faculty associates needed to fill course load of current faculty that will be teaching in the Indigenous Education MA program;

3) Additional support needed for guest lecturers that will engage with students in pragmatic and intellectual discussions (i.e. national and international Indigenous researchers, Indigenous practitioners in the field, and Tribal leaders).
APPENDIX I
OPERATIONAL INFORMATION FOR GRADUATE PROGRAMS
(This information is used to populate the Graduate Programs Search/catalog website.)

1. Proposed title of major: Indigenous Education

2. Provide a brief program description (catalog type (i.e. will appear in Degree Search) – no more than 150 words):
   The MA degree in Indigenous Education (IED) will provide students with advanced training in research, theory, and practice related to both Indigenous education as broadly defined as well as the process of schooling. The primary audience for this degree are those working in Indian Education, for tribal nations with education programs, and those interested in Indigenous education. Because the Center for Indian Education is housed in the School of Social Transformation with faculty that collaborate with colleagues nationally, internationally, and across ASU campuses, students will have access to a wealth of additional resources at the master’s level, which will allow them to develop a final project that best fits their specific professional aspirations.

3. Marketing text: Whether you are an experienced educator working in tribal communities or new to exploring the topic, the Master of Arts in Indigenous Education will help you create practical solutions. Our researchers and students work collaboratively with Native communities, and contribute to the advancement of new knowledge, practice, and policy in American Indian/Indigenous education.

4. Campus(es) where program will be offered:
   ASU Online curriculum consists of courses that have no face-to-face content. iCourses are online courses for students in on-campus programs. iCourses may be included in a program, but may not comprise the entirety of a program. On-campus programs must have some face-to-face content.
   Note: Office of the Provost approval is needed for ASU Online campus options.
   - ☑ ASU Online only (all courses online and managed by ASU Online)
   - ☐ All other campus or location options (please select all that apply):
     - ☐ Downtown Phoenix  ☐ Polytechnic  ☐ Tempe  ☐ West  ☐ Other:
     - ☑ Both on-campus and ☐ ASU Online* - (check applicable campus(es) from options listed above)
   *Note: Once students elect a campus or Online option, students will not be able to move back and forth between the on-campus and the ASU Online options. Approval from the Office of the University Provost and Philip Regier (Executive Vice Provost and Dean) is required to offer programs through ASU Online. Please complete the ASU Online Offering form in Curriculum ChangeMaker to begin this request.

5. Admission Requirements:
   Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

   Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor’s or master’s degree in a related field such as history, education, anthropology, sociology, ethnic studies, justice studies, or political science, from a regionally accredited institution.

   Applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = “A”) in the last 60 hours of a student’s first bachelor’s degree program, or applicants must have a minimum of a 3.00 cumulative GPA (scale is 4.00 = “A”) in an applicable master’s degree program.

   Applicants are required to submit:
   1. Graduate admission application and application fee
   2. official transcripts
   3. letter of intent/written statement
   4. example of writing
   5. professional resume
   6. three letters of recommendation
   7. Proof of English proficiency
Additional Application Information
Applicants whose native language is not English (regardless of current residency) must provide proof of English proficiency.

A selection committee, comprised of faculty members will choose candidates based on application materials and applicants ability to succeed.

6. Application Review Terms (if applicable session):
Indicate the first term and year in which applications will be opened for admission. Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis after that time.

Note: It is the academic unit's responsibility to display program deadline dates on their website.

ASU College of Liberal Arts and Sciences — Transforming learning, discovery and lives
January 31, 2017

Dear Drs. Moore and Brayboy,

On behalf of American Indian Studies, I am writing this letter in support of the School of Social Transformation’s proposed online master’s degree program in Indigenous Education. This initiative promise to fill a big void in Indian education.

Please let me know if I may be of further assistance to you regarding this matter.

Sincerely,

James Riding In, PhD
Interim Director
January 25, 2017

To Whom It May Concern:

The Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College fully supports The School of Social Transformation/Center for Indian Education’s planning of an on-line MA degree in Indigenous Education, through the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences. We feel that this program will be advantageous to the surrounding community and provide much needed support to educators and others who work with indigenous populations.

Sincerely,

Carole G. Basile, Dean
January 11, 2017

Elsie Moore, Professor and Director
School of Social Transformation
College of Liberal Arts and Sciences
Arizona State University

Re: Master of Arts degree in Indigenous Education

Dear Professor Moore:

The Sandra Day O’Connor College of Law at Arizona State University has reviewed the proposal for a new, on-line Master of Arts degree in Indigenous Education by the School of Social Transformation and Center for Indian Education. This new degree, to be offered through the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, would fulfill a need in Native communities and would, we believe, compliment the work we do in our Indian Legal Program. We therefore fully support the creation of this new master’s degree.

Thank you for sharing this proposal, and best of luck in implementing this new degree.

Sincerely,

[Signature]
