1. OVERVIEW

Below, please provide a brief overview of the certificate, including the rationale and need for the program, potential size and nature of the target audience, information on comparable programs (at ASU and/or peer institutions), how this program would relate to existing programs at ASU, and any additional appropriate information.

The School of Criminology and Criminal Justice currently offers an undergraduate certificate in homeland security. We also offer a range of online courses at the graduate level concerning homeland security issues that students often take as electives. Students frequently inquire about whether they could earn a certificate in this area of specialization. As a result, the proposed certificate is being developed in response to student calls for such an option as the overall career outlook in this field is strong. According to the Bureau of Justice Statistics' Careers in Homeland Security, career opportunities in homeland security are abundant in the U.S. Department of Homeland Security's (including air marshals, asylum officers, immigration officers, Customs and Border Patrol agents, FEMA specialists, Information Analysis and Infrastructure Protection Directorate specialists, Office of the Inspector General auditors, TSA investigators and intelligence operations specialists, program analysts, U.S. Coast Guard contract specialists, and U.S. Secret Service criminal investigators), the Central Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency, the U.S. Department of Labor, U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Diplomatic Security, and in both state and local governments. Overall, the protective service occupations is anticipated to grow at 3 percent, resulting in about 95,200 new jobs by 2028 (Bureau of Labor Statistics, 2019) and security positions are growing at a rate of at least 4% annually (Bureau of Labor Statistics, 2019). According to Payscale, salaries at the Department for Homeland Security for those holding post-baccalaureate educations range from $57,000 to $127,000, with the median salary for intelligence analysts being $79,096.

The Homeland Security Certificate will provide students with the skills and credentials necessary to prepare them to enter fields specializing in Homeland Security. Students will receive extended education in topics pertaining to Homeland Security such as Domestic and International Terrorism, Cyber Terrorism, and advanced crime courses. These courses will better equip students to take advantage of career opportunities that require this specialization.

Graduates of this program should expect to find employment within government agencies such as the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) which is comprised of agencies, such as the Secret Service, Coast Guard, and Customs and Border Protection (CBP). Most of the personnel in this field work at the local, state or federal level to implement and maintain public and national safety. Some homeland security personnel work will also work for private organizations that deal with emergency response, law enforcement and information technology.

The certificate program will be of interest to graduate students in disciplines such as criminology and criminal justice (the MA in Criminal Justice degree program and the MS in Criminology and Criminal Justice), MPA in Public Administration students, private security, and other related fields. In addition, the market for potential students includes criminal justice graduate students who wish to pursue a specialization in homeland security, or those who hold a previous graduate degree and wish to supplement or update their skills and knowledge base. Finally, this certificate will be of interest to those who hold a bachelor's degree and are not able or willing to commit to a full graduate degree program. This certificate program is specifically designed to appeal to current ASU students (who can add-on a certificate to a current degree program) as well as a broader audience.

In order to remain competitive, we reviewed peer institutions for similar homeland security graduate certificate programs. Penn State, University of Maryland and George Mason University all offer online graduate certificates in homeland security. The certificate programs generally range between 12-18 credits.

2. ADMINISTRATION AND RESOURCES

A. Administration

How will the proposed certificate be administered (including recommendations for admissions, student advisement, retention etc.)? Describe the administering body in detail, especially if the proposed certificate is part of a larger interdisciplinary agenda. How will the graduate support staffing needs for this proposed certificate program be met?

Students interested in the online Graduate Certificate in Homeland Security will be directed to the graduate advising team in the School of Criminology and Criminal Justice. ASU Online personnel, the Graduate Advising team in the School of Criminology and Criminal Justice, and Dr. Jesenia Pizarro (the Director of Master's Programs for the school) will assist interested students in applying for the certificate. They will also explain that students may apply for admission concurrently with the Master of Arts in Criminal Justice or other closely related Master's programs. Students will also have the option to apply for the certificate program as a non-degree certificate-seeking student. Dr. Pizarro will coordinate the admissions process with Ms. Shannon Stewart, the Graduate Academic Success Coordinator for the School of Criminology and Criminal Justice.

B. Resource requirements needed to launch and sustain the program

Describe any new resources required for this program's success such as new staff, new facilities, new library resources, new technology resources, etc. If multiple units/programs will collaborate in offering this certificate, please discuss the resource contribution of each participating program. Letters of support must be included from all academic units that will commit resources to this certificate program.

No additional resources will be required.

Additional Recommendations

All new graduate programs require specific processes and procedures to maintain a successful program. Below are items that Graduate College strongly recommends that academic units establish after the program is approved for implementation.

Establish satisfactory academic progress policies, processes and guidelines – Check within the proposing academic unit and/or college to see if there are existing academic progress policies and processes in place. If none have been established, please go to http://graduate.asu.edu/faculty_staff/policies and scroll down to the academic progress review and remediation processes (for faculty and staff) section to locate the reference tool and samples for establishing these procedures.

Establish a Graduate Student Handbook for the new degree program – Students need to know the specific requirements and milestones they must meet throughout their degree program. A Graduate Student Handbook provided to students when they are admitted to the degree program and published on the website for the new degree gives students this information. Include in the handbook the unit/college satisfactory academic progress policies, current degree program requirements (outlined in the approved proposal) and provide a link to the Graduate Policies and Procedures website. Please go to http://graduate.asu.edu/faculty_staff/policies to access Graduate Policies and Procedures.

Brian,

Greetings! I hope this message finds you well.

As you and I discussed last spring, we are moving forward with developing a graduate certificate in homeland security. Our proposal is attached. Kindly review it and let me know if you have any changes. If not, please respond to this email with a statement of support for the certificate being created. We will need to send that statement to the Provost's Office as part of the curriculum development process.

Also, you will see that, as you suggested, we included a course from the Global Security program. Thus, we will need a statement of support from that program as well. Would you let me know who your contact is in that program so I can reach out to him/her and seek a statement of support from the Global Security program?

Thank you!

Hello Hank,

We definitely support the creation of the grad certificate in Homeland Security and would be delighted to collaborate. We request that the GSC 502 course not be listed as a requirement for the reasons we discussed. We certainly can support the course as an elective in the certificate program. We would want to cap student enrollment at some level below 5 each offering, but would very much enjoy having criminal justice students in our class.

Please keep us posted on the progress and let's talk more about collaborating on courses in the future.

Best,
Jeff Kubiak and Daniel Rothenberg

Thank you, Brian.

Jeff and Daniel, it's nice to "meet" you, even if only electronically for the moment. I write in the hopes that you will be able to provide a short statement of support (even if just by responding to this email message) for the creation of the proposed graduate certificate in homeland security to compliment the undergraduate one we currently offer. As you will see from the curriculum proposal attached to this email message, we included GSC 502 as a required course at Brian Gerber's suggestion. If, however, you would prefer that we make that course an elective, rather than a requirement, or if you prefer we omit it entirely, we can do either. But I suspect the law enforcement community would benefit greatly from the content of that course, so I hope you will support its inclusion.

Thank you in advance for your consideration.

With best wishes,

Hank
