This template is to be used only by programs that have received specific written approval from the Provost’s office to proceed with internal proposal development and review. The proposal template should be completed in full and submitted to the University Provost’s Office [mailto: curriculumplanning@asu.edu]. It must undergo all internal university review and approval steps including those at the unit, college, and university levels. A program may not be implemented until the Provost’s Office notifies the academic unit that the program may be offered.

DEAN APPROVAL(S)

This proposal has been approved by all necessary unit and college/school levels of review, and the college/school(s) has the resources to offer this degree program. I recommend implementation of the proposed degree program.

Note: An electronic signature, an email from the dean or dean’s designee, or a PDF of the signed signature page is acceptable.
PROPOSAL TO ESTABLISH A NEW MASTER’S DEGREE PROGRAM

Please note: Proposals for new degrees also require the review and recommendation of approval from the University Graduate Council, Curriculum and Academic Programs Committee (CAPC), the Academic Senate (2 readings), and the Office of the Provost before they can be put into operation.

The final approval notification will come from the Office of the Provost.

1. PURPOSE AND NATURE OF PROGRAM

   A. Provide a brief program description:

   The MA in Classical Liberal Education and Leadership provides an immersive encounter with primary texts of philosophy, literature, politics, mathematics, and science. This encounter will occur through slow and careful reading, deliberate reflection, and guided discussion of the most thought-provoking and influential texts in human history. In a modern world increasingly separated from an appreciation of fundamentally human experiences and questions, such a course of study answers a growing social demand for balance in education and society. Students who complete this degree program will be equipped to lead more fulfilling lives as lifelong learners. They will also be prepared for jobs as educators, particularly in the rapidly growing sector of “classical” education. In this growing sector of the education industry, and in the education reform movement more broadly, there is an increasing call for content-focused teacher education programs, to which this program will respond. The broad, immersive encounter provided in the program is complemented by an emphasis on texts that illumine the themes of practical wisdom as well as pedagogical, civic, and political leadership. Courses are taught using the Socratic discussion method (inspired by the inquiry-based method of education pursued originally by Socrates) in order to maximize student interaction with course texts, as well as provide classical educators with the pedagogical skills needed to succeed and grow in their work.

   B. Will concentrations be established under this degree program? ☐ Yes ☒ No

   (Please provide additional concentration information in the curricular structure section – number 7.)

2. PROGRAM NEED

   Explain why the university should offer this program (include data and discussion of the target audience and market).

   The ASU Charter states that the university assumes “fundamental responsibility” for the communities it serves. This MA program is the result of a direct and felt need in the community: the need for teachers in classical-spaced charter schools, for continuing education and a graduate degree program suited to their particular educational niche. It will be a unique academic program serving a growing need in the community as well as an increasingly important national trend in the direction of liberal education. This particular educational need is different from a teacher program that leads to certification, because most teachers in these unique programs do not require a certification for their professional development (or have already received one). Teacher programs leading to certification are already widespread and readily accessible; teacher programs focusing on content, on the other hand, are not.

   There is high demand for school educators nationwide, with Emsi data showing 41,000 annual openings for teachers in secondary schools alone nationally. In total, there are approximately 70,000 annual openings for careers in education in related positions such as teachers, administrators, and education counselors.

   Analysis suggests that charter schools make up approximately 2,755 of these job openings. At a recent national conference on classical education held at the ASU Sandra Day O’Connor College of Law, industry experts... estimated that there were approximately 500,000 students enrolled in some form of classical education program—including charter schools, private schools, and homeschool associations and cooperatives. This is a strong and growing market nationwide. In the local and regional areas in particular, classical charter systems such as the Great Hearts schools have seen rapid growth in recent years. The Great Hearts system reports overall enrollment growth from just over 5,000 students in 2012-13 to over 17,000 students in 2018-19. This has been reflected in teacher growth as well, from 400 teachers in 2012-13 to 1,451 teachers in 2018-19. There are currently 14,000 students on the waiting list for enrollment in Great Hearts schools in the Phoenix area alone.

The high volume of charter schools with a classical liberal education curriculum in the region supplies a large core market for this particular degree program. This strong core market will be augmented by a substantial national market, as documented above, among teachers at similar schools and within homeschooling cooperatives. The School of Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership provides an undergraduate curriculum focused on classical liberal education and leadership. This is a curricular niche that is not within the predominant expertise of the Teachers College. It is therefore appropriate that the School of Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership take the lead on this degree program, cooperating as appropriate with the Teachers College.

Comparable programs at the University of Dallas and Eastern University both developed in the last five years in response to this market need. St. John’s College is also launching a similar program for classical educators next year. The demand for classical schooling is likely to continue along positive trajectories in the future; according to a recent survey by Hart Research Associates, for example, 74 percent of employers would recommend a classical liberal educational approach to college-bound students.

3. IMPACT ON OTHER PROGRAMS

Attach any letters of collaboration or support from impacted programs (see checklist sheet). Please submit as a separate document. Please see attached (Appendix III).

4. PROJECTED ENROLLMENT

How many new students do you anticipate enrolling in this program each year for the next five years?

Note: The Arizona Board of Regents (ABOR) requires that nine master’s degrees be awarded every three years. Thus, the projected enrollment numbers must account for this ABOR requirement.

B. Will concentrations be established under this degree program? ☐ Yes ☒ No
8. COURSES

A. Course Prefix(es): Provide the following information for the proposed graduate program.
   i. Will a new course prefix(es) be required for this degree program?
      Yes ☐ No ☒
      If yes, complete the Course Prefixes / Subjects Form for each new prefix and submit it as part of this proposal submission. Form is located under the courses tab.

B. New Courses Required for Proposed Degree Program: Provide course prefix, number, title, credit hours and brief description for any new courses required for this degree program.

   Core Courses (15 credit hours required)

   CEL 501 Literary Leaders, 3 credit hours
   In this seminar we will examine literary leadership in two different respects. We will look at literary depictions of different kinds of leadership at different times and places, in a variety of classic works. At the same time, we will also investigate the ways in which literary artists themselves lead, not only by inventing and adapting different styles and genres, but also and primarily by indirectly shaping the opinions and tastes of their audiences.

   CEL 503 Classic Texts in Political Philosophy and Justice, 3 credit hours
   This course will provide an overview of the four major periods of political thought--ancient, medieval, modern, and post-modern--and engage in close readings of classic texts from each of these periods. The concept of justice will serve as an organizing theme, complemented by analyses of other political concepts such as virtue, the common good, natural law, rights, liberty, and equality. Texts include Plato's Republic, St. Thomas Aquinas' Summa Theologica, Machiavelli's The Prince, John Locke's Second Treatise of Government, and John Rawls' A Theory of Justice, among others.

   CEL 513 Classic Texts in Historical Leadership and Statesmanship, 3 credit hours
   In this course, students will encounter classic texts featuring analyses and discussions of important historical leaders and their actions. These texts will both situate examples of leadership and statesmanship in their historical context, and highlight timeless principles of wise and effective leadership. Texts include Thucydides' History of the Peloponnesian War, Plutarch's Lives, Cicero's On Duties, Shakespeare's histories, and the writings and speeches of Abraham Lincoln.

   CEL 520 Classic Texts in the Foundations of Logic, 3 credit hours
   This course will provide knowledge of the principles of logical thought through close readings of Euclid's Elements and Aristotle's Organon. Students will learn and demonstrate Euclidean geometric proofs in class, and will reflect in discussion upon the relationship between Euclidean geometry and the logical principles analyzed in Aristotle's works.

   CEL 510 Classic Texts in Natural Science and Philosophy, 3 credit hours
   In this course, students will study the development of natural philosophy and theories of scientific knowledge from Plato and Aristotle to Newton and Darwin. Particular attention will be given to the period known as the Scientific Revolution, and inspired most famously by Francis Bacon. The relationship between natural philosophy, epistemology, moral philosophy, and political philosophy will be explored throughout.

   Restricted Elective Topics Courses to be offered (3 credits hours required)

   One elective must be chosen from among the following courses offered by the School of International Letters and Cultures:

   SLC 598 Topic: Tragedy and Comedy in the Greek Polis [3 credit hours]
   In ancient Greek civic thought, poets wielded influence beyond that even of philosophers. Not merely entertainment, theater was the venue in which the body politic saw itself, and its values, both reflected and criticized. This course examines the tragedies of Aeschylus, Sophocles, and Euripides, the comedies of Aristophanes, and the criticism of Plato and Aristotle, with a view to their impact on political ideas both ancient and modern. The course will be taught in English and texts will be read in English translation.

SLC 598 Topic: Greco-Roman Ideas of Leadership and Politics [3 credit hours]
This course is intended to include a number of rotating topics, in accordance with student interest and faculty availability. These include “Leadership in Epic,” “Theorizing the Ancient State,” “Education in Antiquity,” and “Christianity and Classical Culture.” In each of these, both Greek and Roman authors will be studied for their views of the proper function of the leader in the state. The course will be taught in English and texts will be read in English translation.

SLC 598 Topic: The Classical Tradition [3 credit hours]
The impact of the ancient Greeks and Romans on the construction of modernity is hard to underestimate, but often poorly understood. This course traces that influence through literature, philosophy, and the arts, and shows how it influences modern societies, including the way that its fundamental ideas are framed. The course will be taught in English and texts will be read in English translation.

LAT 421 Topic: Advanced Latin [3 credit hours]
Readings in the Latin masterpieces. Authors read change each year in accordance with needs of the class. May be repeated for credit. Texts will be read in the Latin language; LAT 202 or equivalent proficiency in Latin is a pre-requisite (equivalent proficiency can be determined by foreign language exam administered by SILC).

GRK 598 Topic: Advanced Greek [3 credit hours]
Readings in the ancient Greek masterpieces. Authors read change each year in accordance with needs of the class. May be repeated for credit. Texts will be read in the Latin language; GRK 301/302 or equivalent proficiency in ancient Greek is a pre-requisite (equivalent proficiency can be determined by foreign language exam administered by SILC).

Sample CEL Electives (NOT part of restricted electives course list):

CEL 598 Topic: Classic Texts in Faith and Reason, 3 credit hours
The question of the relationship between faith and reason is a perennial one, occupying political philosophers and theologians from ancient times to the present. This course will explore the relationship between faith and reason through a reading and discussion of the works of Plato, Aristotle, Maimonides, Al Farabi, St. Thomas Aquinas, and others. Themes explored will include the status of divine revelation, the limits of reason, definitions of happiness, and the role of politics.

CEL 598 Topic: Natural Law and Rights, 3 credit hours
The ideas of natural law and natural rights have had long, contested, and intertwined histories. Both find their origins in different ways in the classical world, and then undergo significant developments in the medieval and early modern periods. This course will engage the ideas of natural law and natural rights, both in themselves and in their complicated relationship to one another, as well as the impact of each on politics.

CEL 598 Topic: Classic Texts in Planetary Motion, 3 credit hours
Copernicus’s and Newton’s revolutionary transformations of the understanding of planetary motion followed a long and rich history of mathematical analysis and astronomical observation by predecessors such as Ptolemy. This course will introduce students to the history of philosophical and mathematical reflection on astronomical observation and planetary motion.

CEL 598 Topic: Classic Texts in Evolutionary Biology, 3 credit hours
This course will provide a thorough exploration of the development of evolutionary theory in the late 18th and early 19th centuries, culminating in the work of Charles Darwin, as well as the subsequent development of evolutionary theory in the 20th century and beyond. Particular attention will be paid throughout to the intersections of natural science with natural philosophy, as well as with theology and politics.

ii. New Faculty - Describe the new faculty hiring needed during the next three years to sustain the program. List the anticipated hiring schedule and financial sources for supporting the addition of these faculty members.

We recently hired a Director of Graduate Studies to help launch this and future graduate programs. Other than this position, the program can launch with existing faculty.

iii. Administration of the program - Explain how the program will be administered for the purposes of admissions, advising, course offerings, etc. Discuss the available staff support.

Beginning in Fall 2020, the program will be overseen by Colleen Sheehan, recently hired incoming Director of Graduate Studies for the School of Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership. Adam Seagrave, Associate Director of School of Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership, will assist in overseeing the program. Frank Pina, the School of Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership’s Manager of Academic Advising, will undertake advising duties for the program. Sheehan and Seagrave will form a graduate admissions committee in Spring 2019 comprised of unit faculty anticipated to teach regularly in the program.

B. Resource requirements needed to launch and sustain the program: Describe any new resources required for this program’s success such as new staff, new facilities, new library resources, new technology resources, etc.

Our existing staff will be sufficient to launch the MA degree program and sustain it into the foreseeable future.
PROPOSAL TO ESTABLISH A NEW MASTER’S DEGREE PROGRAM

APPENDIX I
OPERATIONAL INFORMATION FOR GRADUATE PROGRAMS
(This information is used to populate the Graduate Programs Search/catalog website.)

1. Proposed title of major: Classical Liberal Education and Leadership

2. Marketing description (Optional - 50 words maximum. The marketing description should not repeat content found in the program description.)

The MA in Classical Liberal Education and Leadership will provide a unique continuing education and professional development opportunity for educators, school leaders, and others interested in studying classic texts from a broad range of disciplines through the Socratic discussion method.

3. Provide a brief program description (Catalog type (i.e. will appear in Degree Search) – no more than 150 words. Do not include any admission or curriculum information)

The MA in classical liberal education and leadership offered by the School of Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership immerses students in timeless conversations about the big questions of human life. All classes are taught through the Socratic discussion method, and students are provided with regular opportunities to hone their pedagogical leadership skills by leading select course meetings and receiving feedback on their progress as Socratic discussants. As in most graduate programs in the humanities and social sciences, students are evaluated primarily through written assignments that evidence careful thought and reflection, argumentation, and textual analysis. Courses are offered across a wide range of subject areas including literature, politics, philosophy, mathematics and science, and leadership.

4. Delivery/Campus Information Options: On-campus only (ground courses and iCourses)

5. Campus(es) where program will be offered:
ASU Online curriculum consists of courses that have no face-to-face content. iCourses are online courses for students in on-campus programs. iCourses may be included in a program, but may not comprise the entirety of a program. On-campus programs must have some face-to-face content.
Note: Office of the Provost approval is needed for ASU Online delivery option.

☐ ASU Online only (all courses online and managed by ASU Online)

All other campus or location options (please select all that apply):

☐ Downtown ☐ Polytechnic ☑ Tempe ☐ West ☐ Other: Phoenix

☐ Both on-campus and ☐ ASU Online* - (check applicable campus(es) from options listed above)

Note: Once students elect a campus or Online option, students will not be able to move between the on-campus and the ASU Online options. Approval from the Office of the University Provost and Philip Regier (Executive Vice Provost and Dean) is required to offer programs through ASU Online. Please complete the ASU Online Offering form in Curriculum ChangeMaker to begin this request. Prior to completing the online Curriculum ChangeMaker form, please contact EdPlus at asuonline@asu.edu who can provide you with additional information regarding the online request process.

6. Admission Requirements:
Applicants must fulfill the requirements of both the Graduate College and The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences.

Applicants are eligible to apply to the program if they have earned a bachelor’s or master’s degree in liberal arts, political science, history, philosophy, theology, the natural sciences, or a related field, from a regionally accredited institution.
Applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in the last 60 hours of their first bachelor's degree program, or applicants must have a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 (scale is 4.00 = "A") in an applicable master's degree program.

Applicants are required to submit:
1. graduate admission application and application fee
2. official transcripts
3. proof of English proficiency
4. written statement

Additional Application Information
An applicant whose native language is not English must provide proof of English proficiency regardless of current residency.

7. Application Review Terms (if applicable session):

Indicate the first term and year in which applications will be opened for admission. Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis after that time.

Note: It is the academic unit's responsibility to display program deadline dates on their website.

Academic units should adhere to the following procedures when requesting new curricular initiatives (degrees, concentrations or certificates).

☑ Obtain the required approval from the Office of the Provost to move the initiative forward for internal ASU governance reviews/approvals. Please see the academic strategic plan website at: https://provost.asu.edu/curriculum-development.

☑ Submit any new courses that will be required for the new curricular program to the Curriculum ChangeMaker online course approval system for review and approval.
  ▪ Additional information can be found at the Provost’s Office Curriculum Development website: Courses link
  ▪ For questions regarding proposing new courses, send an email to: courses@asu.edu

☑ Prepare the applicable proposal template and operational appendix for the proposed initiative.

☑ Obtain letters or memos of support or collaboration (if applicable).
  ▪ when resources (faculty or courses) from another academic unit will be utilized
  ▪ when other academic units or degree programs may be impacted by the proposed request
  ▪ if the program will have an online delivery option support will be required from the Provost’s office and ASU Online. (Please complete the ASU Online Offering form in Curriculum ChangeMaker to begin this request.)

☑ Obtain the internal reviews/approvals of the academic unit.
  ▪ internal faculty governance review committee(s)
  ▪ academic unit head (e.g. Department Chair or School Director)
  ▪ academic unit Dean or their designee (will submit approved proposal to the curriculumplanning@asu.edu email account for further ASU internal governance reviews (as applicable, University Graduate Council, CAPC and Senate)

Additional Recommendations

All new graduate programs require specific processes and procedures to maintain a successful degree program. Below are items that the Graduate College strongly recommends that academic units establish after the program is approved for implementation.

☑ Establish satisfactory academic progress policies, processes and guidelines – Check within the proposing academic unit and/or college to see if there are existing academic progress policies and processes in place. If none have been established, please go to http://graduate.asu.edu/faculty_staff/policies and scroll down to the academic progress review and remediation processes (for faculty and staff) section to locate the reference tool and samples for establishing these procedures.

☑ Establish a Graduate Student Handbook for the new degree program – Students need to know the specific requirements and milestones they must meet throughout their degree program. A Graduate Student Handbook, provided to students when they are admitted to the degree program and published on the website for the new degree, gives students this information. To be included in the handbook are the unit/college satisfactory academic progress policies, current degree program requirements (outlined in the approved proposal) and a link to the Graduate Policies and Procedures website: http://graduate.asu.edu/faculty_staff/policies.

Dear Dean Basile,

I’m writing to touch base with you regarding an MA degree proposal that I have been working on--in Classical Liberal Education and Leadership, through SCETL (proposal attached). Our MA is an exclusively primary source, Socratic method-focused program along the lines of the St. John’s College integrated liberal arts curriculum. Although many of our students will be K-12 teachers, this MA will be very content-oriented rather than pedagogy-oriented--serving particular kinds of teachers in classical education schools or homeschooling cooperatives who are looking for this very specific sort of curriculum. We would, though, certainly be interested in collaborating with MLFTC and your faculty in offering complementary courses and programs as this MA is implemented.

Please let me know if you’d like to meet sometime to discuss our proposed MA. I am currently seeking letters of support from units with overlapping coverage areas, and hope that you will be supportive of our educational efforts with this program. And I look forward to collaborating in some way with MLFTC on this going forward.

All best,
Adam

Hi, Fabio.

I ran the proposal by Andy Mara and Kevin Ellsworth.

CISA is happy to support your proposal for a new MA in Classical Liberal Education and Leadership.

We are also happy to support all of your course proposals for CEL 501, 503, 510, 513, 520.
By the way, Kevin Ellsworth asked if you’d be willing make CEL 513: Classical Texts in Leadership and Statesmanship available to MS in Organizational Leadership students who need elective credit?

Dear Duane,

Adam Seagrave (SCETL) is working on a new MA program (Classical Liberal Education and Leadership) that needs a letter of support from CISA. Please find the proposal attached as well as proposals for five courses that will be in the program (CEL 501, 503, 510, 513, 520) that also need a letter of support from CISA. Since they are also asking for program support, this statement needs to come from dean-to-dean communication.

Would you please take a look at the attached materials and give us two statements of support, one in regards to the new MA program and another one for the new courses. The Provost’s Office needs to see the statement specifically spell out program support and support of the new courses separately.

Thanks so much,

Dear Paul:

The Department of English supports this new program proposal for a SCETL M.A. in Classical Liberal Education and Leadership. You and I, the unit directors, have agreed to meet at a near future date to discuss how English might develop a comparable ENG course number for CEL 513 so as to allow a few cross-listed ENG seats in the SCETL course.

The Department of English also supports the new courses in the proposed M.A. degree: CEL 501, CEL 503, CEL 510, CEL 513 (which might be cross listed, in future, with an English course) and CEL 520.

Dear Adam,

Thanks very much for this. It looks like most of the concerns raised by faculty in SHPRS have been satisfactorily addressed. The only point I would inquiry about is whether it might be possible to change the CEL 598 topic “Classic Texts in Philosophy and World Religions” to “Classic Texts in Faith and Reason.” The addition of “Classic Texts in” goes some way to addressing the concerns of faculty in SHPRS, but part of what the Religious Studies area were concerned about was the use of “world religions” – one of their areas of focus – in the title of this particular topic. The other issues seem to have been resolved.

Thanks again,
Richard

Dear Paul,

Thank you for consulting with SHPRS on SCETL’s proposed MA in Classical Liberal Education and Leadership. I appreciate your allowing us the opportunity to discuss the proposal within our three faculty areas now that the new semester has gotten underway. SHPRS supports the program and recognizes that it aims to offer something different than what we offer but would like to register the following caveats and concerns, which I have grouped according to discipline:

For its part, History welcomes the program, provided that:

- a. It will not be publicized or marketed as offering graduate work in history or historical methodology, and
- b. It will not be offered online without a further round of impact letters.

My understanding is that these concerns were conveyed during a meeting of our History leadership with Adam Seagrave, who reassured the historians that the program was on-ground and would not be marketed as a history program.

History also wanted to clarify that CEL 513: Historical Leadership and Statesmanship had a focus different from that of a HIST course. Perhaps this could be achieved by changing “Historical” to “Historic” in the title.

Our Philosophy faculty are also supportive and note that the planned courses that cover philosophical texts do not duplicate ones currently offered by Philosophy, and that the SCETL MA is aimed at a different demographic than is our Philosophy MA. They expressed the hope that SCETL would be open to allowing some of our own graduate students to enroll in some of these courses. (Our PhD students in Philosophy are required to take some non-PHI coursework.)

Philosophy does, however, encourage SCETL to consider revising the course titles of CEL 503: Politics and Justice and CEL 510: Natural Science and Philosophy to make clearer that the courses are geared around “Historical Ideas in...” or “Classical Texts in...” or “Ancient and Modern Concepts of...” Clarifying the distinctive content of these courses in the titles would, it is hoped, help to set them apart. Partly this is simply a matter of managing student expectations. For example, although it is clear to those who already have a classical education that “natural philosophy” anticipates what today is called “science,” incoming students (particularly those not already in the SCETL program) might benefit from a title that clearly identifies the content and distinguishes it from what Philosophy offers. (For instance, Philosophy currently offers “Studies in Philosophy of Science.”)

Finally, Religious Studies also welcomes the proposed MA program but voiced concerns about the title of the proposed course CEL 598 Topic: Philosophy and World Religions. The faculty in Religious Studies oppose the use of the phrase “World Religious” (as well as “Western Religion”) in the title, because those designations overlap with REL offerings (e.g., REL 391: Historical Perspectives on Philosophy and Religion; REL 385: Contemporary Western Religious Thought; REL 310: Western Religious Traditions). They suggest the alternate title “Faith and Reason.” The latter title has the additional advantages (a) of more closely fitting the language of the proposed course description and (b) of not using the term “Philosophy.”

To sum up, SHPRS welcomes the program but would like to see some revisions of course titles and understands this impact letter to pertain only to the proposed on-ground degree.

Sincerely,
Richard

Richard Amesbury
Director, School of Historical, Philosophical & Religious Studies
Professor of Religious Studies
Arizona State University

In response to the points Richard raises in this letter:

- It will not be publicized or marketed as offering graduate work in history or historical methodology

- It will not be offered fully online without a further round of impact letters. As discussed during our in-person meeting, our plan is for this to remain permanently a hybrid program, with some online courses and some required on-ground courses

- The title of CEL 513 has been changed to “Classic Texts in Historical Leadership and Statesmanship,” which we believe will sufficiently distinguish this course from a HIST course

- In response to Philosophy’s suggestion regarding course title changes: we have changed the course titles for all of our core courses and many of our proposed elective courses to begin with the phrase “Classic Texts in...” as the Philosophy faculty suggest. We agree that this will help to distinguish our CEL courses from those offered in other units. And we will certainly welcome any interested Philosophy graduate students into our courses, as well as encourage our students to take Philosophy courses.

- In response to the Religious Studies concern regarding our CEL 598 elective course involving philosophy and religion, we have changed the title to “Classic Texts in Philosophy and Religion,” dropping “World Religions” and adding “Classic Texts.” This seemed desirable to us since it is in line with the direction of alteration for our other course titles, and may be expected to sufficiently distinguish this course from those offered in Religious Studies.

Dear Cameron,

Thank you for taking a look at this course and the MA proposal. We appreciate your general support of the MA program as a whole, as well as your particular questions regarding the CEL 503 course: Classic Texts in Political Philosophy and Justice.

I understand your concern here, and you’re right that there is certainly substantial overlap between this single proposed course and these two POS courses taken together. I spoke with Avital in the hallway about this the other day. There are three considerations I would raise in response to the question of value added:

- It is a significant difference that our CEL 503 course is a single course as opposed to two: due to the nature of this degree program, it wouldn't make sense for us to require two courses in the history of political philosophy
- The two existing POS courses don't cover the medieval period--particularly Aquinas--as our CEL course does
- As a core course in the degree program, it is important that CEL 503 be integrated intentionally with the other courses in the program, which will distinguish it substantially from the two POS courses with overlapping content

I believe these points speak to the question you raise. And certainly, if any of our students in this course are interested in pursuing more focused study of one of these two periods in one of your POS courses, we will encourage them to do so as an elective in the program.

All best,
Adam

Dear Adam,

In general, we support your creation of the MA in Classical Liberal Education and Leadership. However, after looking over the proposed SCETL 503 course and our own course offerings, particularly POS 540 and 541 (descriptions included below), my graduate committee has a few questions and lingering concerns. Principally, the proposed class seems to be a traditional political theory course. It overlaps significantly with both our 540 and 541 classes. Based on the syllabus provided, it would appear to compress the literature included in the two core political theory courses we offer within a single course.

Where the proposed course differs perhaps is that it is ostensibly organized around the concept of justice, though the description provided also states that the course touches on rights, liberty, the common good, etc. This would seem to dilute the focus on justice as the organizing concept. Ultimately, we would like some clarification on what would distinguish this course from a broad survey of political philosophy across the major historical periods specified. In particular, it would be helpful to see how the substantive focus of the course might depart from the survey courses we already offer.

We would not necessarily oppose approval of this course, but would very much like to see some additional clarification on the points above. Namely, what is the value added of this course over what SPGS already provides?

Ancient Political Theory (540)
Course Description:
Surveys the historical and philosophical developments in political thinking from the ancient Greeks up to the Renaissance. The world studied predominantly is one of profound political conflict and change. Moves from the Greek cities to the edge of modern political developments. The movement encompasses the political transformation from city-states to empires to the establishment of an overarching Christian world order that balances secular and sacred power, only to be challenged if not foundationally shaken by Machiavelli and realism.
Modern Political Theory (541)
Course Description:
Surveys the development of modern political thought from Machiavelli--through Hobbes, Locke, Hume, Rousseau, Burke, Kant, Montesquieu, Constant, Bentham, Mill, and Hegel--to Marx. Focuses on the primary writings of these thinkers as well as reading secondary literature. In addition to focusing on the distinctive contribution and relevance of individual thinkers, further explores certain recurring themes among which are the following: Are freedom and equality foes or friends? What allegiance do we owe the state and why? Do we have rights against the state? What is a just state? Is private property essential to individual liberty? Do laws enhance or threaten liberty? Is self-interest an adequate basis for political allegiance? Why should we pursue the common good, if at all? Are self-interest and the common good reconcilable?

Best,
Cameron

Hi Cameron,

I've attached the degree proposal draft (please ignore the various highlighting and comments relating to cosmetic changes still to be made) and the syllabus for 503. I'm not sure which 540 you are referring to? Perhaps Susan can help me if I'm not recalling something with this.

All best,
Adam

Dear Adam,

Mike reviewed the proposal carefully. He wrote:

"Just one error, probably a typo. (This error might have been mine, in my note to them.) "GRK 498" should, of course, be "GRK 598."'

Otherwise we are good.

Thank you!

Nina

Dear Nina and Mike,

I’m sending the attached, revised version of our proposal for the MA in Classical Liberal Education and Leadership in which we have attempted to respond thoroughly to each of the letters of impact we have received from colleagues in other units.

We would very much appreciate it if you could look it over and send a quick note to confirm that we have satisfactorily addressed or responded to your questions and concerns. This will be helpful to the members of various committees in their timely evaluation of our revised proposal.

If at all possible, it would be most helpful to receive your response at least before November 8th.

Please feel free to let me know if you have any questions or concerns.
PROPOSAL TO ESTABLISH A NEW MASTER'S DEGREE PROGRAM

Intial letter September 6th 2019

September 6, 2019

Paul Carrese, Director
School of Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership

RE: Master's program in Classical Liberal Education and Leadership

The School of International Letters and Cultures (SILC) supports the establishment of a new Master's program in Classical Liberal Education and Leadership, to be offered through the School of Civic and Economic Thought and Leadership (SCETL).

We are particularly excited to participate in the elective courses that will be offered by SILC, including four new courses to be established by us (GRK/SILC 4XX/5XX, Tragedy and Comedy in the Greek Polis; GRK/LAT/SILC 4XX/5XX, Greco-Roman Ideas of Leadership and Politics; GRK/LAT/SILC 4XX/5XX, The Classical Tradition; and GRK 4XX/5XX, Advanced Greek), along with one course to which a graduate component will be added (LAT 421/5XX, Advanced Latin).

Sincerely yours,

Nina Berman
Director, School of International Letters and Cultures
