Requested designation: Humanities, Fine Arts and Design–HU
Note– a separate proposal is required for each designation requested

Eligibility:
Permanent numbered courses must have completed the university’s review and approval process.
For the rules governing approval of omnibus courses, contact the General Studies Program Office at (480) 965-0739.

Area(s) proposed course will serve:
A single course may be proposed for more than one core or awareness area. A course may satisfy a core area requirement and more than one awareness area requirements concurrently, but may not satisfy requirements in two core areas simultaneously, even if approved for those areas. With departmental consent, an approved General Studies course may be counted toward both the General Studies requirement and the major program of study.

Checklists for general studies designations:
Complete and attach the appropriate checklist
- Literacy and Critical Inquiry core courses (L)
- Mathematics core courses (MA)
- Computer/statistics/quantitative applications core courses (CS)
- Humanities, Fine Arts and Design core courses (HU)
- Social and Behavioral Sciences core courses (SB)
- Natural Sciences core courses (SO/SG)
- Global Awareness courses (G)
- Historical Awareness courses (H)
- Cultural Diversity in the United States courses (C)

A complete proposal should include:
☒ Signed General Studies Program Course Proposal Cover Form
☒ Criteria Checklist for the area
☒ Course Syllabus
☒ Table of Contents from the textbook, and/or lists of course materials

Arizona State University Criteria Checklist for

HUMANITIES, ARTS AND DESIGN [HU]

Rationale and Objectives

The humanities disciplines are concerned with questions of human existence and meaning, the nature of thinking and knowing, with moral and aesthetic experience. The humanities develop values of all kinds by making the human mind more supple, critical, and expansive. They are concerned with the study of the textual and artistic traditions of diverse cultures, including traditions in literature, philosophy, religion, ethics, history, and aesthetics. In sum, these disciplines explore the range of human thought and its application to the past and present human environment. They deepen awareness of the diversity of the human heritage and its traditions and histories and they may also promote the application of this knowledge to contemporary societies.

The study of the arts and design, like the humanities, deepens the student’s awareness of the diversity of human societies and cultures. The arts have as their primary purpose the creation and study of objects, installations, performances and other means of expressing or conveying aesthetic concepts and ideas. Design study concerns itself with material objects, images and spaces, their historical development, and their significance in society and culture. Disciplines in the arts and design employ modes of thought and communication that are often nonverbal, which means that courses in these areas tend to focus on objects, images, and structures and/or on the practical techniques and historical development of artistic and design traditions. The past and present accomplishments of artists and designers help form the student’s ability to perceive aesthetic qualities of art work and design.

The Humanities, Arts and Design are an important part of the General Studies Program, for they provide an opportunity for students to study intellectual and imaginative traditions and to observe and/or learn the production of art work and design. The knowledge acquired in courses fulfilling the Humanities, Arts and Design requirement may encourage students to investigate their own personal philosophies or beliefs and to understand better their own social experience. In sum, the Humanities, Arts and Design core area enables students to broaden and deepen their consideration of the variety of human experience.

<td>The course uses texts and stories that emphasize decisions about identity which illustrate the philosophies, values and belief systems of various cultures and subcultures of Israel.</td>
<td>The first of the three main texts, Scapegoat, explores the autobiography of a young man who comes to Israel from his Jewish observant society in Iraq, whose religious and ethical identity is challenged by the community of atheists and communists in the kibbutz. He studies at their school and they plan for him to join their movement. He finds himself torn between his old lifestyle with all its implications on everyday life, and the completely secular lifestyle of the kibbutz. Students are asked in the final essay about this text to reflect on and write about the crisis in Nuri's ethics and belief systems, in his family values, and in his adoption of Israeli language and cultural aesthetics. See page 7 of Syllabus.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>#2</td>
<td>The course analyzes the creation of written texts, technical aspects of the creation of story lines, use of imagery and symbolism, and how authors use known historical events in creative ways to support those story lines</td>
<td>The second of the three main texts, A Pigeon and A Boy, tells two love stories with parallel and eventually intersecting plot lines. One of the stories uses the historical background of the years before during and after the Independent War in the State of Israel as a setting for the love story. The second love story is set in the present day, and uses the social structure of Israeli society (specifically the difference between Ashkenazi Jews and Jews who emigrated from Arab countries) as its setting. Students are asked in the final paper to analyze the point of intersection between the two story lines, from an aesthetic perspective but also regarding the technical aspects of the creation of the text as well as the influence of the historical events on the characters. Students are also asked to interpret symbolism and imagery in the text, such as the role of the real and magical pigeons throughout the story. See pages 8 &amp; 9 of the syllabus.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4a</td>
<td>The course highlights texts that emphasize the analysis of philosophical and religious systems of thought. The third major text of the course, Bethlehem Road Murder, highlights two families, one Ashkenazi and one Yemenite. As such, these families represent two sectors of Israeli society divided by ethnic, class, and religious observation. The two families of the story nevertheless live adjacent to each other with a shared wall. The juxtaposition of their existence highlights the social tensions between the two groups in Israeli society as well as the differences in their religious philosophies and beliefs regarding, for example, arranged marriages, polygamy, and systems of prayer, reflected in their different prayer books, and even different characteristic music. In the Yemenite family, there is the struggle between the two philosophies of predestination, and therefore accepting the good and the bad that happens in life, or the ability of humans to determine their own destiny, and therefore if there's a wish, there's a way. This conflict arises from the case of the disappearing Yemenite children. Students are asked to discuss the juxtaposition of the two families in their final assignment, which includes their philosophical and religious differences. They are also asked to analyze the Yemenite mother's attitude toward her lost baby daughter and the extended family's acceptance of the events they see as somehow meant to be. (See pages 9 &amp; 10 of the syllabus.)</td>

| 4c | The course emphasizes the creative processes and aesthetic experience of Israeli literature by exploring three representative books of different genres of Israeli literature. There are two major concepts that define Israeli literature. The first is that modern Hebrew is a relatively new language. The second is that Israel, while only having existed for 67 years, has a history that is packed with momentous events from the end of the 19th century. The history of the nation plays a vital part in Israeli literature, whether directly or in the background. The readings throughout the course include books of different genres, namely a murder mystery, a love story, and an autobiography. These books, written by the authors Eli Amir, Meir Shalev, and Batya Gur, deal with topics such as building of the state, love and war, immigration to a new society, gender representation in society, the shade of the Holocaust, social cultural diversity of Europeans, Easterners, and the Kibbutz, all while using a relatively new language that still requires new words, new phrases, and the incorporation of foreign words that enable the creative process on these subjects. Course description:

The Modern Hebrew, or Israeli Hebrew, is relatively a young language. It started at the end of the 19th century in Europe, as part of the Enlightenment movement, and today it is the language of the State of Israel. As such, Modern Hebrew is the pillar of a vibrant culture: written, spoken, sung, used for slogans, and even cursing. It is used for all the natural uses of a language. During this short period Modern Hebrew developed literature with unique local characteristics, as well as, universal ideas. Some of the authors gained international recognition, just to mention a few: Agnon, who is considered one of the fathers of Hebrew literature in the modern era, who received in 1966 a Nobel Prize for his writings, or David Grossman, Meir Shalev, Amos Oz, whose books are translated to many languages.

The readings in the course will include books of the authors Eli Amir, Meir Shalev, and Batya Gur. In the course we will examine the books against their social and historical backdrop. Some of the subjects will cover the building of the state, love and war, immigration to a new society, femininity and manhood - gender representation in society, the shade of the Holocaust, social cultural diversity of Europeans, Easterners, and the Kibbutz. Israel is a Jewish state; through the books the course will look at how diverse social and cultural lifestyles have different Jewish religious expressions. With this, we will examine the tensions, from the early days of the country, between the religious sectors and the secular sectors of the Israeli society.

We will relate to the topics through different literature genres, a murder mystery, an autobiography, and a love story.
Course objectives:

- To introduce the students to a different culture literature, in general, and to present Israeli literature as a world literature, in particular.

- To provide students with an historical approach to the development of Modern Hebrew literature.

- To explore the creative processes of Israeli literature in the different genres of autobiography, romance, and murder mystery.

- To reflect on the social and historical events and values of the periods depicted and embodied in the books.

- To write a variety of pieces that focuses on the critical analysis of literature and includes expository analytical and argumentative essays.

- To improve students’ critical reading and thinking skills.

Students Learning Outcomes:

Upon successful completion of the course, students will be able:

- To be familiar with the literature of a different culture, in general, and Israeli literature, in particular, and to express the difference both in speaking and in writing.

- To elucidate an historical approach to the development of Modern Hebrew literature.

- To reflect on the social and historical events and values of the periods depicted and embodied in the books.

- To be capable of producing a variety of written expression which focus on the critical analysis of literature and include expository, analytical, and argumentative essays.

- To read and think critically about modern literature, in originally English texts and those in translation.

Announcements:

Students are responsible for reading all messages posted in the "Announcements" section of Blackboard. The "Announcements" section will contain messages from the instructor to the class as a whole, instructions for assignments, and any updates to the schedule. Be sure to check the "Announcements" section regularly.
Course guidance and requirements:

The course is built of four units. Under the title of the unit, there are the components of that unit. The first unit is an introduction to Modern Hebrew literature and a historical background to the course’s books. Each one of the other three units is dedicated to one of the three books that we will read, analyze, and discuss. Each unit has a folder, which can be found in ‘Course Content’, whose link is on the left hand column. The book’s folders will be available to you according to the time designated to each book.

The first two books, Scapegoat and A Pigeon and a Boy, are divided into weekly sections. Before you start reading each section, read my comments on it. Each section has its own folder, inside of the book’s folder. I have gathered concepts, terminology, and historical or cultural background, that I believe is needed to understand the chapters in depth. The folder for each section also has the questions and/or assignment for the weekly reading. To post your answers and assignments, you need to click on the title above the questions/assignment. When you open the assignment link, you will need to attach your document with your answers and/or assignment, and submit it.

Scapegoat is divided into 4 weekly reading portions, and A Pigeon and a Boy is divided into 6 weekly portions. At the end of each reading week, by Monday, you will post your answers to the questions on those chapters according to these instructions:

1. Give a title to each chapter, one that captures the main event of the chapter.
2. Answer one question for each chapter.
3. Be sure to incorporate and reflect upon the material that you learned about the historical, social and cultural background that is relevant to the assigned questions.

On Wednesdays, you will post, on ‘Discussion Board’, your thoughts, feelings, or refer to your unanswered question(s), all about the week’s reading. It should be at least 250 words.

By Friday, you will respond to another student’s discussion posting. It should be 2 to 3 sentences, which should provide enough substance to the discussion. You can agree with a fellow student as long as you add something of your own to the discussion; and you can also disagree with a fellow student and argue a different point of view, but this must be done respectfully and politely as would be expected in any classroom discussion.

At the end of each book, you will have a week to write an essay on an assigned topic, before moving to the next book. I highly suggest that you go over the topic of the essay before you start reading the books; as you are reading the book, annotate events and quotations, which will be useful to you when you come to write the essay. Each essay should be a minimum of 4 full pages following the MLA guidelines for writing papers, works cited, etc.

The third book, Beth Lehem Road Murder, is a suspenseful detective story. There are three weeks assigned for you to read it, as a whole. Note, there are also assignments regarding this book. You will find their due dates on the Time Table.

The quizzes are mandatory. You must complete them in order to continue with further assignments.

This will bring us to the end of the semester.

You can turn in assignments and quizzes earlier than the due dates, but not later.
Instructor expectations:
This is a distance learning course but not a self-paced course. Assignments have regular due dates. Due to the structure of the course, students are responsible for completion of all coursework and posting them by the end of their due dates.

Assignments are due before 11.59 p.m. of its respective due date.

Late work – Work is considered late if it is not turned in by midnight (Arizona time) on the day it is due. Late work will NOT be accepted. The due dates for the assignments are clearly outlined and will be upheld. Please start early and don’t allow yourself to get behind. You are responsible for keeping up in this course.

Required books:

Grading policy:
The overall grade for the course will be calculated on a point system.
1. Introductory to Hebrew Literature assignment: 100 points
2. 3 Final Essays: 450 points
3. Quizzes: 160 points
4. Questions 440 points
5. Discussion & responses: 330 points
Total: 1480 points

Grading scale:
- A+ >97.0%
- A 93.0 - <97.0%
- A- 90.0 - <93.0%
- B+ 87.0 - <90.0%
- B 83.0 - <87.0%
- B- 80.0 - <83.0%
- C+ 77.0 - <80.0%
- C 70.0 - <77.0%
- D 60.0 - <70.0%
- E <60.0%

Grades will be calculated out of 1360 points.

Honor’s Contract
The course offers Honor’s Contract. If you are interested, contact me so we can discuss a topic.
Suggested secondary sources:
Readings are useful for bolstering understanding of the primary material and as resources for the writing assignments.

Academic Integrity

Academic honesty is expected of all students in all examinations, papers, laboratory work, academic transactions and records. The possible sanctions include, but are not limited to, appropriate grade penalties, course failure (indicated on the transcript as a grade of E), course failure due to academic dishonesty (indicated on the transcript as a grade of XE), loss of registration privileges, disqualification and dismissal. For more information, see http://provost.asu.edu/academicintegrity.

Copyrighted Material:

I would like to state that the course content, are copyrighted material and students may not copy or download (See ACD 304–06, “Commercial Note Taking Services” for more information).

Changes to Syllabus:

The instructor reserves the right to change any part of the syllabus. If any changes are made a message will be posted in the “Announcements" section of Blackboard.

I hope that by the end of the course you will be familiar with Israeli historical background to different literary genres. This presents new dimensions to relevant and known issues. The three authors that we will meet in the course wrote other books, and of course, there are many other talented Israeli authors. I hope that the course will open your appetite to seek and read more Israeli books.

At the end of the syllabus and also on a separate document on Blackboard, you will find the course time table with its assignments, their points, and due dates.

If you have any questions or hesitations, I encourage you to write to me and ask.

I wish us all an interesting and challenging course,

Morah Shemer

Final Essay:

The years Nuri is in the kibbutz are a transition stage in his life, both physical and emotional. The process is through social and mental crises, and at the same time, it is natural transformation of coming of age. The story follows these crises and transformations.

These paths, for creating his mature identity, can be seen in the battle between his old and new values, in his attitude toward religion, family, friendships, loyalties to people and to ideas, or in his feelings toward Israel.

The kibbutz represents, for him, the Israeli society at large which absorbs the new immigrants.

Describe Nuri’s crises and its outcomes, resulting in his transformation. Be sure to discuss the interrelated forces of his conservative background from Iraq and his new culture in the Kibbutz. Base your answer on quotes from the book.

graphical experiences, tells of a group of immigrant youngsters from Iraq, Romania, Morocco and Poland who came to Israel in the 1950s. Living and studying on a kibbutz, their shocking encounters with this new way of life turn into a conflict between two cultures, East and West. The events described in this absorbing novel portray a time of great change in the values of Israeli society – a change that left a deep impression on Israeli life and produced the anger and protest which resulted in the social and political revolutions of the 1970s and ‘80s. Readers who have moved from one society to another – be it country to country or culture to culture – or have ever felt like outsiders, will find themselves in this novel.

Scapegoat, first published in Hebrew, has been a best-seller in Israel and was awarded the Youth Aliya Prize for Literature and the Jewish World Literature Prize from Mexico.

Some reviews of the best-selling Hebrew edition:

'In Scapegoat I found everything one looks for in an excellent novel.'

Amos Oz

'An outstanding novel, among the most beautiful I have read in Hebrew recently.'

Ha'aretz

'One does not read such a book everyday. Live and bubbly characters. An artistic description of reality…'

'One of the most important books written in Israel recently.'

Yoram Peri, Davar

WINNER OF THE NATIONAL JEWISH BOOK AWARD

“Shalev has deftly layered Yair's story in such a manner that a refreshingly nuanced picture of Israel emerges.” — The Miami Herald

“Vivid characters and sharp dialogue ... By working stories in the past and present against each other, Shalev brings into question the validity, and the reliability, of memory.” — The New York Times Book Review

“In homing pigeons, Shalev has found a motif that is replete with symbolism and scriptural allusion that he uses expertly, with maximum layered effect.” — Ottawa Citizen

“Brilliant ... Universal in its scope and examination of human longing for a sense of roosting.” — The Jerusalem Post

“An exquisite creation, a work of quiet language that needs no shouting to attain its impact.” — Chicago Jewish Star

“Stunning ... This gem of a story about the power of love brims with luminous originality.” — Publishers Weekly (starred review)
Internationally acclaimed author Batya Gur is known for her psychologically astute mysteries set in Israel and for the brooding and attractive Chief Superintendent Michael Ohayon they feature. In her latest novel, the body of a young woman is discovered in the attic of a Bethlehem Road house, in a neighborhood of Jerusalem known for its impenetrability to outsiders. Chief Superintendent Ohayon is called to the scene of the crime, where, beyond the usual horror, an old love and an unfinished romance await him.

In the style that has made Batya Gur an author who is read the world over, Bethlehem Road Murders spins out a complex and fascinating murder investigation set in a Jerusalem neighborhood that encapsulates the entire Israeli experience in miniature. This closed world with rules and a logic of its own is one in which each character has a secret he or she is struggling to hide.

Chief Superintendent Ohayon's criminal investigation is conducted against the backdrop of tensions between Ashkenazim and Mizrahim, hostility between Jews and Arabs, the affair of the kidnapped Yemenite children, and the al Aqsa Intifada. During the course of the investigation Michael Ohayon uncovers what is concealed beneath the surface reality, and in so doing, powerfully and dramatically reveals the subtext of Israeli society today.
INTERNATIONAL PRAISE FOR BETHLEHEM ROAD MURDER

“Batya Gur is a skillful observer of various milieux and the sensibilities within Israeli society. . . . It takes an uncompromising analyst like Batya Gur to make an outsider understand the complicated nuances of a seemingly homogenous society.” —Standard

“Through the investigative techniques of her fictional detective Michael Ohayon, Batya Gur finely lays bare the contradictions that tear modern-day Israel apart. . . . But also—and better than newspaper reports convey—she reveals the incredible love of life in this little country that dances on a volcano.” —Elle magazine (French edition)

“Under the apparently quotidian setting exists a very subtle analysis of Israeli society and history. . . . There is a substantial measure of courage and talent here, hidden under the pretext of an amiable detective novel.” —Le Monde

PRAISE FOR BATYA GUR’S MYSTERIES

“Murder Duet is not only a superb murder mystery, but also a subtle study of the relationships between creativity, ambition, love, and possessiveness. A warm book, full of skillful modulations.” —Amos Oz

“The Saturday Morning Murder is a splendid mystery. . . . Intriguing. . . . a therapeutic whodunit.” —Time

“Both the Jerusalem scenery and the psychological scenery of The Saturday Morning Murder are wonderfully presented. Like all good mystery novels, this fascinating, pleasurable book is difficult to put down: curiosity propels you from page to page until what seemed unlikely ends in being inevitable.” —Shimon Peres

“Murder on a Kibbutz is an enormously satisfying read, suspenseful and layered with colored details about everyday life in Israel.” —Cleveland Jewish News
