6. Subcommittee Reports

A) Literacy & Critical Inquiry

From ASU:
Approved for L designation, effective Fall 2016 (new):
CRJ 300 Oral and Written Communication for Criminology and Criminal Justice
FOR 410 Professional Practices in Forensic Science

Revise and Resubmit for L designation (new):
SLC 394 Classical Historians in Translation

Rationale: The course involves a great deal of writing, and all of it certainly reflects critical inquiry. The final research paper, which comprises 40% of the course, is a substantial writing assignment with opportunities for feedback. However, as criterion 1 notes, in-class essay exams, which comprise 30%, may not be used for [L] designation. Additionally, three separate essays assigned at three different times during the semester cannot be considered one substantial writing assignment; the committee has insufficient information to determine whether each of the essays could be considered substantial if they were completed outside of class and if feedback was provided on each before the next was due.

F) Cultural Diversity in the United States
From ASU:

Approved for C designation, effective Spring 2016 (new):
AIS 394 American Indian and Indigenous Film

Deny for C designation (new):
IAS 294 Games and Ethics

Rationale: At last 50% of the course should focus on the designation. While some of the course refers to material that relates to ethnicity and gender in terms that would satisfy the Cultural Diversity designation. The course description and objectives are in this case less important than the actual material covered in the course, as indicated in the syllabus. Where and how are specific communities referred to? Asking students to consider how ethnicity and gender contribute to a game's ethics in an assignment is productive, but it's not clear to our subcommittee how these assignments relate concretely to any specific groups and students' increased awareness of their contributions to culture in the United States.

Revise and Resubmit for G designation, (new):
From ASU:

IAS 294 Games and Ethics

Rationale: This course is designed using 6 assignments rather than weeks/modules, and includes the appropriate course learning outcomes (CLO) for each assignment. All assignments have 2 of the outside US CLOs included (with #6 all 3). They have an average of 3 inside the US LCOs included. Objectives 4-6 focus on games outside of the US; #7-11 focus on inside the US; #1-3 are the foundations of gameplay/design and ethics. The course’s main focus appears to within the US. The committee requests more information on how the course, taken as a whole, meets the criterion that “The course is a comparative cultural study in which most, i.e., more than half, of the material is devoted to non-U.S. areas.”

From MCCCD:
SBU 200 Society and Business

Rationale: The committee requests more information on how the highlighted parts of the syllabus, particularly regarding text chapters, satisfy the criterion that “the area or culture studied must be non-U.S. and the study must contribute to an understanding of the contemporary world.” It appears that less than half of the chapters of the text focus on global awareness.

Deny for G designation, (new):
From ASU:

AIS 394 American Indian and Indigenous Film

Rationale: The content of this course is focused on the depiction of United States Indian and Indigenous people. As such, less than a majority of the content is global (Non-U.S) in nature.

Deny for G designation, (mandatory review):

ASB 222 Buried Cities Lost Tribes
Rationale: The majority of the course focus, according to the text used, covers archaeology especially of the North American colonial archaeology. An insufficient amount of content is of non-American archeology. This course also does not reflect contemporary global awareness.

CON 101 Construction and Culture: a Built Environment

Rationale: This course focuses primarily on the historical and cultural approach to understanding construction. It is unclear how the course addresses the first criterion for the Global designation: “Studies must be composed of subject matter that addresses or leads to an understanding of the contemporary world outside the U.S.” The course only features four weeks with topics potentially about the contemporary global environment and construction.

For criteria 1, using the text: Chapter 1 is the introduction/history of building from the caveman to the middle ages. Chapter 7 - profile of the builder with focus on the USA. Reviewing the chapters mentioned, it includes some historical explanations for today’s built environment and construction. In general though, besides the historical overview and the last 2 chapters, all the others are focused on the construction in the USA. We note the change in the preferred criteria from 2d. to 2a. but the content, as reflected in the text chapters, is the same, i.e., primarily historical and not contemporary.

H) Historical Awareness

Approved for H designation, effective Fall 2016 (new):

ASB 222 Buried Cities Lost Tribes
