Note- a separate proposal is required for each designation requested

Eligibility:

Permanent numbered courses must have completed the university's review and approval process.
For the rules governing approval of omnibus courses, contact Phyllis.Lucie@asu.edu or Lauren.Leo@asu.edu.

Submission deadlines dates are as follow:

For Fall 2015 Effective Date: October 9, 2014

For Spring 2016 Effective Date: March 19, 2015

Area(s) proposed course will serve:

A single course may be proposed for more than one core or awareness area. A course may satisfy a core area requirement and more than one awareness area requirements concurrently, but may not satisfy requirements in two core areas simultaneously, even if approved for those areas. With departmental consent, an approved General Studies course may be counted toward both the General Studies requirement and the major program of study.

Checklists for general studies designations:

Complete and attach the appropriate checklist

- Literacy and Critical Inquiry core courses (L)
- Mathematics core courses (MA)

Arizona State University Criteria Checklist for

HISTORICAL AWARENESS [H]

Rationale and Objectives

Recent trends in higher education have called for the creation and development of historical consciousness in undergraduates now and in the future. From one perspective, historical awareness is a valuable aid in the analysis of present-day problems because historical forces and traditions have created modern life and lie just beneath its surface. From a second perspective, the historical past is an indispensable source of identity and of values, which facilitate social harmony and cooperative effort. Along with this observation, it should be noted that historical study can produce intercultural understanding by tracing cultural differences to their origins in the past. A third perspective on the need for historical awareness is that knowledge of history helps us to learn from the past to make better, more well-informed decisions in the present and the future.

The requirement of a course that is historical in method and content presumes that "history" designates a sequence of past events or a narrative whose intent or effect is to represent both the relationship between events and change over time. The requirement also presumes that these are human events and that history includes all that has been felt, thought, imagined, said, and done by human beings. The opportunities for nurturing historical consciousness are nearly unlimited. History is present in the languages, art, music, literatures, philosophy, religion, and the natural sciences, as well as in the social science traditionally called History.

Course Description:

Does it make sense to speak about American Indian “intellectuals,” “thinkers,” or “philosophers”? Not only have Indians been thinking and thinking deeply for generations, but also they have produced a body of written works that have formed the foundation of contemporary American Indian Studies. This course covers some of the major figures, their works, and the ideas and opinions (many of which were controversial) that shaped their thinking.

Course Objectives:

By the end of the semester, you ought to have an understanding and appreciation for the history of ideas generated by Indigenous thinkers regarding the pressing issues of their respective times—issues that often persist through today.

Educational Outcomes:

You will learn about three major epochs of American Indian intellectual history, the individuals who defined their eras, and ideas for which they advocated. In addition, you will see the diversity among Indigenous thinkers and various ways in which they enjoined a life of writing to a life of activism.

Organization of Course:

We will meet in the classroom regularly on Mondays and Wednesdays. Fridays are exclusively online. MW will be based on a lecture/discussion format, in which your professor will mix his presentations with questions and discussions for the students. Each class will be based on that day’s reading assignment (see Reading Schedule below), so students are expected to have done the reading before coming to class. In turn, Fridays will also have a reading assignment, in addition to a written assignment that students will be expected to complete on that very same Friday.

Course requirements: Students will earn points from completing the following:

10-12 page paper. (100 points). Papers must be about an author or topic relevant to the course. They must contain a thesis, in addition to being properly researched, complete with analysis of the appropriate books and articles. Citations may be done in either MLA or Chicago Manual of Style.

2-3 page book reviews. (20 points each). Upon completing each of the required books for the course, you will submit a critical review, in which you assess an author’s work for how well it met its objectives, eg thesis, argument, contribution, or comparison.

Weekly discussion comments. (10 points each). Each Friday you will be asked one or two questions about that day’s reading assignment. You will post your answers on the Discussion Board available for this course on Blackboard. Your responses must be at least one full paragraph long.

In-Class Presentation. (50 points). Toward the end of the semester, you will make a 5-7 minute presentation summarizing the work you have done with your final research paper. Using a PowerPoint is optional. Guidelines will be posted on Blackboard.

Attendance: on site attendance is mandatory for MW, the record for which will be maintained with a daily sign-in attendance sheet. At the end of the semester, students may earn bonus points for an excellent attendance record. 20 pts (0 absences), 15 pts (1 absence), 10 pts (2 absences), 5 pts (3 absences), 0 pts (4 or more absences).

PLEASE NOTE: If you have a learning disability, sensory, or physical disability or other impairment, or if English is your second language, and you may need special assistance in lectures, reading, assignments, and or testing, please contact the instructor.

Note

In this story of the Salish people are elements which will be recognized as belonging to the story of tribes from Hudson Bay southward. The particular facts may be found in the journals of Ross Cox, David Thompson, Alexander Henry the younger, John Work, Major John Owen; in the journals and other writings of Pierre J. De Smet, S.J., and Lawrence B. Palladino, S.J., and in later writers. Marius Barbeau has collected some fine stories of the Mountain Indians ("Indian Days in the Canadian Rockies"), and to him I am indebted for Big Raven's story of the wistful search for "The Thing That Was to Make Life Easy." The "Story of Flint" was told by Chief Charlot, the last of the Flatheads to leave the ancestral homeland when the Government gave the order to move on. It was collected by Mrs. Helen Fitzgerald Sanders in her "Trails Through Western Woods," an excellent book.

ideals to the white man, leading in the end to a partial reaction in favor of the earlier, the simpler, perhaps the more spiritual philosophy. It is clearly impossible to tell the whole story, but much that cannot be told may be read "between the lines." The broad outlines, the salient features of an uncommon experience are here set forth in the hope that they may strengthen for some readers the conception of our common humanity.
