Requested designation: Historical Awareness-H

Note- a separate proposal is required for each designation requested

Eligibility:

Permanent numbered courses must have completed the university's review and approval process.
For the rules governing approval of omnibus courses, contact Phyllis.Lucie@asu.edu or Lauren.Leo@asu.edu.

Submission deadlines dates are as follow:

For Fall 2015 Effective Date: October 9, 2014

For Spring 2016 Effective Date: March 19, 2015

Area(s) proposed course will serve:

A single course may be proposed for more than one core or awareness area. A course may satisfy a core area requirement and more than one awareness area requirements concurrently, but may not satisfy requirements in two core areas simultaneously, even if approved for those areas. With departmental consent, an approved General Studies course may be counted toward both the General Studies requirement and the major program of study.

Checklists for general studies designations:

Complete and attach the appropriate checklist

- Literacy and Critical Inquiry core courses \(L\)
- Mathematics core courses \(MA\)
- Computer/statistics/quantitative applications core courses \(CS\)

Arizona State University Criteria Checklist for

HISTORICAL AWARENESS [H]

Rationale and Objectives

Recent trends in higher education have called for the creation and development of historical consciousness in undergraduates now and in the future. From one perspective, historical awareness is a valuable aid in the analysis of present-day problems because historical forces and traditions have created modern life and lie just beneath its surface. From a second perspective, the historical past is an indispensable source of identity and of values, which facilitate social harmony and cooperative effort. Along with this observation, it should be noted that historical study can produce intercultural understanding by tracing cultural differences to their origins in the past. A third perspective on the need for historical awareness is that knowledge of history helps us to learn from the past to make better, more well-informed decisions in the present and the future.

The requirement of a course that is historical in method and content presumes that "history" designates a sequence of past events or a narrative whose intent or effect is to represent both the relationship between events and change over time. The requirement also presumes that these are human events and that history includes all that has been felt, thought, imagined, said, and done by human beings. The opportunities for nurturing historical consciousness are nearly unlimited. History is present in the languages, art, music, literatures, philosophy, religion, and the natural sciences, as well as in the social science traditionally called History.

History of Ancient Philosophy

PHI 328 (Fall 2014, Session A, 7.5 Weeks, Combined i- and o-course)

Thomas A. Blackson
School of Historical, Philosophical, and Religious Studies
Arizona State University

PHI 328 satisfies H (historical awareness) and HU (humanities, arts and design) of the University Undergraduate General Studies Requirement. It also satisfies a requirement for the Philosophy Major.

Course Description

The ancient Greek philosophical tradition begins in 585 BCE with Thales of Miletus. It ends in 529 CE when the Christian Emperor Justinian prohibited pagans from teaching in the Schools. This thousand year period in the history of philosophy subdivides into the three periods of unequal duration and importance: the Presocratic Period, the Period of Schools, and the Period of Scholarship. The focus in this course is on the first two periods, or roughly the first five hundred years of ancient philosophy. Within this focus, the concentration is on Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, and the Hellenistic philosophers (the Epicureans, the Stoics, and the Academic Skeptics). This focus and concentration is standard in the sequence of history courses required for the philosophy major in most American universities.

H1
H3

The history of ancient philosophy is a study in history. The aim is to understand what the ancients philosophers thought, why they had these thoughts, and how these thoughts figured in major areas of human development. The method is to consider what they wrote and what others wrote about them.

H1
H3

At the completion of this course, students will be familiar with the institution of philosophy in the ancient world and with some of the most important developments in the institution from its beginnings in 585 BCE with Thales and his fellow Milesian inquirers into nature to the end of the Period of Schools in 100 BCE, when the critical attitude that united the Hellenistic philosophers gave way to a resurgence of interest in non-skeptical forms of Platonism and to the eventual rise and dominance of Christianity. Students will know how ancient philosophy influenced the development of physics, beginning with the Milesian revolution in the Presocratic Period and continuing with the theory of "nature" (φύσις) in the work of Plato and Aristotle in the Period of Schools. Students will know how ancient philosophy influenced the development of psychology, beginning with Socrates' conception of the "soul" (ψυχή), its reinterpretation first in Plato and then in Aristotle, and with the attempt in the Stoics to clarify and develop the Socratic conception. Students will know how ancient philosophy influenced ethics and politics, beginning with the subversive forms of education and conceptions of the good life associated with Socrates and the Sophists, with Plato's interpretation of the Socratic conception and the way this interpretation figures in his theory of justice, with Aristotle's attempt to remove the excesses from and preserve the insights in the Platonic interpretation, and finally with the interpretations of the good life and happiness in the Epicureans and the Stoics. H2

This knowledge in the history of ancient philosophy is valuable in several important ways. It provides essential background for more advanced studies in the field philosophy. It illuminates many present-day institutions and ways of thinking because so much of modern life has its origins in the pioneering and now long-lived work of the ancient philosophers. In addition, because so many modern ways of thinking about human beings and their place in the world have their origins in ancient philosophy, a historical understanding of these developments in antiquity puts one a good position to consider whether some of these ways of thinking have outlived their usefulness and have become a burden and no longer help us understand ourselves, what we do, and our place in the world. Reading

The primary text for this course is Ancient Greek Philosophy: From the Presocratics to the Hellenistic Philosophers, by Thomas A. Blackson (Wiley-Blackwell, 2011). We will also read selected passages from the source material for the period of study. For the most part, they are available for free in translation on the internet in the Perseus Digital Library and the MIT Classics Library.

In addition to this reading, I have developed an extensive website for the course (<http://tomblackson.com/Ancient/syllabus.html>). The pages on this site highlight some of the more important points in the course. The website supplements the reading. It is not intended as substitute for reading either the text or the ancients themselves.

Grading

The final grade (A+, A, A-, B+, B, B-, C+, C, D, E) is determined by your grade on 5 quizzes, 10 writing assignments, and 5 debriefing sessions. There is a quiz for each major unit of the course (Presocratics, Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, Hellenistic Philosophers). Each quiz consists of ten multiple-choice questions. Each quiz is worth 10% of your total grade. There are writing assignments for each of the major units of the course. Each assignment should be one to two pages in length and is graded on a pass/fail basis. Each writing assignment is worth 4% of your total grade. There is a "debriefing" session for each of the major units of the course. In the debriefing sessions, you share your experiences in the course with the class. Each debriefing session is worth 2% of your total grade.

The 5 quizzes (10 points each), 10 writing assignments (4 points each), and 5 debriefing sessions (2 points each) sum to 100 points. The point total determines the final letter grade: A+ (100-97), A (96-94), A- (93-90), B+ (89-87), B (86-84), B- (83-80), C+ (79-77), C (76-70), D (69-60), E (59-0).

There is no possibility for extra credit, but I am more than happy to help students with independent projects. Late work will not be accepted without good reason. Incompletes are given only to accommodate serious illnesses and family emergencies, which must be adequately documented.
