Academic Unit: College of Letters and Sciences  Department: IHC

Subject: ENG  Number: 329  Title: 19th Century British Fiction  Units: 3.0

Is this a cross-listed course? No

Is this a shared course? Yes  If so, list all academic units offering this course: CLAS

Requested designation: Literacy and Critical Inquiry-L

Note: a separate proposal is required for each designation requested

Eligibility:
Permanent numbered courses must have completed the university's review and approval process.
For the rules governing approval of omnibus courses, contact Phyllis.Lucie@asu.edu or Lauren.Leo@asu.edu.

Submission deadlines dates are as follow:
For Fall 2015 Effective Date: October 9, 2014
For Spring 2016 Effective Date: March 19, 2015

Area(s) proposed course will serve:
A single course may be proposed for more than one core or awareness area. A course may satisfy a core area requirement and more than one awareness area requirements concurrently, but may not satisfy requirements in two core areas simultaneously, even if approved for those areas. With departmental consent, an approved General Studies course may be counted toward both the General Studies requirement and the major program of study.

Checklists for general studies designations:
Complete and attach the appropriate checklist
- Literacy and Critical Inquiry core courses (L)
- Mathematics core courses (MA)
- Computer/statistics/quantitative applications core courses (CS)
- Humanities, Arts and Design core courses (HU)
- Social-Behavioral Sciences core courses (SB)
- Natural Sciences core courses (SQ/SG)
- Cultural Diversity in the United States courses (C)
- Global Awareness courses (G)
- Historical Awareness courses (H)

A complete proposal should include:
☐ Signed General Studies Program Course Proposal Cover Form
☐ Criteria Checklist for the area
☐ Course Catalog description
☐ Course Syllabus
☐ Copy of Table of Contents from the textbook and list of required readings/books

Respectfully request that proposals are submitted electronically with all files compiled into one PDF. If necessary, a hard copy of the proposal will be accepted.

Arizona State University Criteria Checklist for

LITERACY AND CRITICAL INQUIRY - [L]

Rationale and Objectives

Literacy is here defined broadly as communicative competence—that is, competence in written and oral discourse. Critical inquiry involves the gathering, interpretation, and evaluation of evidence. Any field of university study may require unique critical skills that have little to do with language in the usual sense (words), but the analysis of written and spoken evidence pervades university study and everyday life. Thus, the General Studies requirements assume that all undergraduates should develop the ability to reason critically and communicate using the medium of language.

The requirement in Literacy and Critical Inquiry presumes, first, that training in literacy and critical inquiry must be sustained beyond traditional First Year English in order to create a habitual skill in every student; and, second, that the skill levels become more advanced, as well as more secure, as the student learns challenging subject matter. Thus, two courses beyond First Year English are required in order for students to meet the Literacy and Critical Inquiry requirement.

Most lower-level [L] courses are devoted primarily to the further development of critical skills in reading, writing, listening, speaking, or analysis of discourse. Upper-division [L] courses generally are courses in a particular discipline into which writing and critical thinking have been fully integrated as means of learning the content and, in most cases, demonstrating that it has been learned.

Notes:

1. ENG 101, 107 or ENG 105 must be prerequisites
2. Honors theses, XXX 493 meet [L] requirements
3. The list of criteria that must be satisfied for designation as a Literacy and Critical Inquiry [L] course is presented on the following page. This list will help you determine whether the current version of your course meets all of these requirements. If you decide to apply, please attach a current syllabus, or handouts, or other documentation that will provide sufficient information for the General Studies Council to make an informed decision regarding the status of your proposal.

Revised April 2014
Proposer: Please complete the following section and attach appropriate documentation.

ASU - [L] CRITERIA

TO QUALIFY FOR [L] DESIGNATION, THE COURSE DESIGN MUST PLACE A MAJOR EMPHASIS ON COMPLETING CRITICAL DISCOURSE -- AS EVIDENCED BY THE FOLLOWING CRITERIA:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>YES</th>
<th>NO</th>
<th>Identify Documentation Submitted</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>CRITERION 1: At least 50 percent of the grade in the course should depend upon writing assignments (see Criterion 3). Group projects are acceptable only if each student gathers, interprets, and evaluates evidence, and prepares a summary report. In-class essay exams may not be used for [L] designation.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1. Please describe the assignments that are considered in the computation of course grades--and indicate the proportion of the final grade that is determined by each assignment.

2. Also:

Please circle, underline, or otherwise mark the information presented in the most recent course syllabus (or other material you have submitted) that verifies this description of the grading process--and label this information "C-1".

|     |    | CRITERION 2: The writing assignments should involve gathering, interpreting, and evaluating evidence. They should reflect critical inquiry, extending beyond opinion and/or reflection. | syllabus |

1. Please describe the way(s) in which this criterion is addressed in the course design.

2. Also:

Please circle, underline, or otherwise mark the information presented in the most recent course syllabus (or other material you have submitted) that verifies this description of the grading process--and label this information "C-2".

|     |    | CRITERION 3: The syllabus should include a minimum of two writing and/or speaking assignments that are substantial in depth, quality, and quantity. Substantial writing assignments entail sustained in-depth engagement with the material. Examples include research papers, reports, articles, essays, or speeches that reflect critical inquiry and evaluation. Assignments such as brief reaction papers, opinion pieces, reflections, discussion posts, and impromptu presentations are not considered substantial writing/speaking assignments. | syllabus |

1. Please provide relatively detailed descriptions of two or more substantial writing or speaking tasks that are included in the course requirements.

2. Also:

Please circle, underline, or otherwise mark the information presented in the most recent course syllabus (or other material you have submitted) that verifies this description of the grading process--and label this information "C-3".

ENG 329 19th-Century British Fiction

Includes such authors as Austen, Dickens, Eliot, and Conrad.
The Gothic Tradition

ENG 329 – 19th Century British Fiction
Arizona State University
Spring 2015 – Online
Instructor: Dr. Melanie Pitts
Office: Polytechnic Campus, Santa Catalina 233z
E-mail: Melanie.Pitts@asu.edu
Office Hours: by appointment

Welcome to the class!

"In a fit of enthusiastic madness I created a rational creature and was bound towards him to assure, as far as was in my power, his happiness and well-being . . . I refused, and I did right in refusing, to create a companion for the first creature. He showed unparalleled malignity and selfishness in evil; he destroyed my friends . . . The task of his destruction was mine, but I have failed."

--Shelley, Frankenstein (Chapter 24)

Our Theme: The Gothic Tradition

What's your favorite scary story?

Whether you picked Dracula, the Shining or some other horror tale, your answer was certainly rooted in the Gothic. Ever since "horror" stories became the best-sellers of the late 18th century, the Gothic has been an important and influential literary genre. It has given us such conventions as claustrophobic castles, tormented heroines, and animated corpses. More importantly, the Gothic genre has explored many important themes: the dialectic between reason and irrationality (and science and religion), the limits of human knowledge, the conflict between the individual and society, and tensions concerning race, gender and Imperialism.

Since the late 1970s, the Gothic has become a highly popular field of academic study. Many books have been published on Gothic styles, subgenres, and individual authors. A journal, Gothic Studies, has been established, and is connected to the International Gothic Association. This section of ENG 329 will focus on the evolution of the Gothic tradition in 19th century Britain. We will start by examining the beginning of Gothic fiction (around 1770) and trace how the tropes and themes associated with Gothic developed over 130 years.
Please note, this course is offered by the School of Letters and Sciences. For more information about the school, visit our website: https://sis.asu.edu. If you have questions or concerns, please contact me first. If I cannot answer your question, send an inquiry to sls@asu.edu.

In this course students will:

1) Read a variety of Gothic fiction written in 19th century Britain
2) Situate these fictional texts within the cultural and historical realities of 19th century Britain (the industrial revolution, the rise of science, imperial concerns, increased anxieties about the "new woman")
3) Analyze Gothic fiction (and scholarly approaches) both in online discussions and extended essays
4) Apply knowledge learned from analysis of 19th century British literature to identify and analyze contemporary Gothic texts (and situate them within our own cultural and historical realities)
5) Create a fictional Gothic text in the form of a short ghost story

Readings:

I’ve ordered copies of the following books, which should be available at the bookstore. You may want to order books online. PLEASE NOTE: in most cases there are critical readings in these particular editions that will be required. Please be sure to buy these editions for the class. I’ve included ISBN numbers in case you are ordering online:

We will be reading other articles and short stories which will be provided online via files or links to websites.

Required Assignments (more detail is provided at the Blackboard site):

(14 x 3 = 42 points total) Discussion Posts and replies: Students will participate in online discussions based on various texts throughout the term. Prompts for each of these discussions are posted on the Discussion Board forums. For these assignments, I am looking for 2 things, 1) that you participate in the discussion by giving feedback or "replying" to previous postings, and 2) that you post a 300-400 word response as a new thread to the question/prompt that shows you have completed and evaluated the reading.

(2 x 10 = 20 points total) Mini – Analyses: In addition to Discussion Posts, students will write Mini-Analyses on some of the works we will read. The Mini-Analysis should be 2-3 pages double-spaced (500-600 words) have a thesis, and focus on a theme/issue from the work. Students should feel free to take a theme/issue discussed in class and expand the discussion into a more formal analysis.

(15 points) Creative Writing Assignment (5-7 pages): For this assignment students will write either a short story or a missing chapter from one of the texts discussed in class.
(20 points) Final Paper: Gothic in the 21st Century (5-7 pages): There has been a resurgence of gothic films and texts in the last 20 or so years in the US. For this project students will chose 2 contemporary texts, movies, video games, or other cultural artifacts (any combination) that represent the gothic tradition in contemporary society. For the first part of the paper, students should describe the texts/items and argue and provide evidence for why and how they are gothic (that is, how they connect to the elements of gothic discussed during the term and continue the gothic tradition). For the second part of the paper, students should discuss how the gothic tradition has evolved (what it looks like today) how the current tradition connects to current cultural/social anxieties and issues. Feel free to include images or other media in your paper.

Grading Scale: Please note there is no weighing of grades in this class. The assignments above total 100 points

- Late Work:

  Responses / Online Postings: Take careful note of the due dates listed on the syllabus. Late responses/postings will not receive credit without a valid excuse e-mailed to me in advance.

  Assignments: The syllabus indicates deadlines for major Writing Assignments to be submitted. Late assignments will lose one letter grade for each day past the due date.

COURSE POLICIES AND PROCEDURES:

Attendance:

YES – There is attendance in online classes!!

- Definition of missed attendance in online classes: A student who fails to post an acceptable assignment (participate in discussion) to the class website during the assigned “window” of time will be counted absent for that class day. More than 3 “absences” will impact your final grade by resulting in a “0” for participation.
- Technical problems online: While these do occur either at home or from an on-campus connection, they are usually not valid reasons for failing to fulfill the requirements for attendance on that day. Students are responsible for allocating enough time to complete online assignments, and they should include the possibility of technical "glitches." Thus students need to allow enough time to try again later or to travel to a campus computer lab or alternative place to complete the assignment and therefore avoid an absence for the day. Exceptions may be made by the instructor in the event of widespread computer viruses or some... other large-scale event affecting ASU's computer network, but exceptions will not be made for routine computer problems.

NOTE: Students enrolled in hybrid/online courses must make every reasonable attempt to attend class or contact the instructor during the first week. After the first week those who do not show up either in person or by calling or e-mailing the instructor may be dropped.

Contacting Me & Staying on Track:

My office is located at the Polytechnic Campus (Santa Catalina Hall, 233Z). The best way to contact me is via e-mail – I check it several times a day. I will be e-mailing you at least 1-2 times per week with notes and reminders about the class. And, I hope to hear from you this term with questions or just notes to check in or say “hello.” I’m never bothered by e-mails from students.

Although you should feel free to e-mail me anytime, there are certain circumstances where you should absolutely e-mail me, including when and if:

- you have a question about an assignment
- you are concerned about a grade
- you are unclear about any instructions connected to the class
- you face life circumstances that are interfering with your course work
- you have questions about your degree program
- you are considering taking time off from school

Along with teaching this class my main priority is to help you stay on track to complete your educational goals. Don’t hesitate to give a “shout out” if you find yourself in any of these situations!

Replying to Your Peers on the Discussion Board

Online discussions can be one of the richest elements of your online experience. Electronic discussions offer a unique opportunity to be “heard.” You don’t need to raise your hand and wait to be called on. You can think carefully about what you want to say and look it over before you post it. You can consider the contributions of your peers more thoughtfully and go back to comments again when a second reading offers clarification and a deeper understanding.

I value your contributions to our discussions. You have a great deal to offer and to learn from one another. In addition to your main response to the assignment questions, you will need to respond to your peers to receive full points. When you reply to the posts of others try to do so in a way that advances the conversation. You might, for instance:

- Post an opinion based on reading/research you do on the topic.
- Respond thoughtfully to a topic from your own experience.
- Provide links and resources related to the topic that would be of interest to other participants.
- Pose a thought-provoking question related to the topic.
- Collect multiple perspectives on a topic or provide an alternate perspective to the one currently dominating the discussion.
- Thoughtfully (and respectfully) rebut another participant’s comments.
- Synthesize the current class discussion by summing up arguments or discussion points.

University Resources

ASU Libraries - offers 24/7 access to librarians through “Ask a Librarian” online chat and help by librarians in person at the Reference Desk during most hours the libraries are open.

Student Support Services

Student Conduct: Students are required to adhere to the behavior standards listed in Arizona Board of Regents Policy Manual Chapter V – Campus and Student Affairs: Code of Conduct (http://www.abor.asu.edu/1_the_regents/policymanual/chap5/chapter_v.htm#C.%20CODE%20OF%20CONDUCT), ACD 125: Computer, Internet, and Electronic Communications
Students are entitled to receive instruction free from interference by other members of the class. If a student is disruptive, an instructor may ask the student to stop the disruptive behavior and warn the student that such disruptive behavior can result in withdrawal from the course. An instructor may withdraw a student from a course when the student's behavior disrupts the educational process under USI 201-10.

Accommodations for Disabilities: The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) is a federal antidiscrimination statute that provides comprehensive civil rights protection for persons with disabilities. One element of this legislation requires that all qualified students with documented disabilities be guaranteed a learning environment that provides for reasonable accommodation of their disabilities. If you believe you have a disability requiring an accommodation please contact the Disability Resource Center at ASU Polytechnic located in Student Affairs Quad # 4 or call 480-727-1039 / TTY: 480-727-1009. Eligibility and documentation policies online: http://www.asu.edu/studentaffairs/ed/drc/

The Public Nature of the Class (Writing and Discussion): Part of becoming an effective writer is learning to appreciate the ideas and criticisms of others, and in this course our purpose is to come together as a community of writers. Remember that you will often be expected to share your writing with others. Avoid writing about topics that you may not be prepared to subject to public scrutiny or that you feel so strongly about that you are unwilling to listen to perspectives other than your own. You are free to express your perspectives in writing and discussion, but you also need to write responsibly, contemplating the possible effects on others and on yourself.

Academic Integrity

See the Student Affairs web page at http://www.asu.edu/studentaffairs/studentlife/judicial/ and http://provost.asu.edu/academicintegrity as well as the School of Letters and Sciences web page http://sle.asu.edu/bis/forms.html for policies to which we adhere. Read them.

The Purdue University Writing Lab is a great resource for all types of writing issues. Look through lots of handouts and materials there...see information on research and documenting sources, paraphrasing, etc. http://owl.english.purdue.edu/

Schedule and due dates (subject to change): NOTE The reading and posting of assignments should be COMPLETED by midnight on the date indicated on the left, so be sure you are looking ahead to the next few due dates. I will periodically post additional instructions as Announcements on the course webpage and/or in mass e-mails.

DUE DATES:

TOPICS, READINGS, and ASSIGNMENTS:

PART I: Gothic Beginnings and Gothic and Romantic

Week 1 - Introduction to the class & Gothic Beginnings

M 1/12 - Go to the Course Website via MyASU. Review the syllabus carefully under Course Information.
-Go to Literary Gothic (http://www.litgothic.com/index_fl.html) and explore the website (this is a resource we will use often in the class).
-Go to the Discussion Board and the "Virtual Lounge" forum. Introduce yourself to the class and socialize a bit.
-If you are new to Literature courses (or would like a review), click the "reading Literature" tab and review the Elements of Fiction and the PDF file on reading fiction.
-Click the "Learning Units" tab and begin working on "Learning Unit 1: Gothic Beginnings." You have a post due Monday.

R 1/15
Due: Learning Unit 1: Readings, Posts, Replies (by midnight)
- Check for Announcements
- Begin working on Learning Unit 2 – Gothic and Romantic – Click the Learning Units tab

Week 2 – Gothic and Romanticism (Shelley’s Frankenstein)

MARGARET ATWOOD was born in 1939 in Ottawa and grew up in northern Ontario and Quebec, and Toronto. She received her undergraduate degree from Victoria College at the University of Toronto and her master's degree from Radcliffe College.

Throughout her thirty years of writing, Margaret Atwood has received numerous awards and several honorary degrees. She is the author of more than thirty-five volumes of poetry, fiction and non-fiction and is perhaps best known for her novels, which include The Edible Woman (1970), The Handmaid's Tale (1983), The Robber Bride (1994), Alias Grace (1996) and The Blind Assassin, which won the 2000 Booker Prize. Her latest work of non-fiction, Negotiating With the Dead: A Writer on Writing, was published in 2002 and in April 2008, her eleventh novel, the Man Booker Prize-nominated Oryx and Crake, was released to great acclaim. Her work has been published in more than thirty languages, including Farsi, Japanese, Turkish, Finnish, Korean, Icelandic and Estonian.

Margaret Atwood currently lives in Toronto with novelist Graeme Gibson.

STEVEN MCLEAN has recently completed his Ph.D. in the Department of English Literature at the University of Sheffield. His thesis investigates the relationship between H. G. Wells's scientific romances and the discourses of science in the 1890s and early 1900s. Steven has published on Wells's early fiction. He is the current Secretary of the H. G. Wells Society.

Preface

You've heard the name: you know his story. But you may well know it from films, TV, and conversation, and you may not know whether Frankenstein is the monster or his scientist-creator (it's the latter). And you may not be aware that the story comes from a nineteenth-century novel by a young woman—only eighteen when she conceived the story and began to write it, not yet twenty when she finished it—who created it for a kind of ghost-story contest. The story of how the book came to be written by Mary Shelley is almost as mysterious and convoluted as the story Frankenstein itself tells. It too is a story of beauty and terror, ambition and disappointment, intellectual reaching and fear of knowledge, love and hate.

Frankenstein the book came about almost by accident. Weary of the breadths of everyday life in England and irritated by the torments of conventional family values there, the author (with her lover and infant son) embarked in the summer of 1816 on a trip to Switzerland. There, among a small group of young English writers and intellectuals, she participated in intense literary and philosophical discussions. On stormy June nights on the shores of Lake Leman (near Geneva, almost within the shadow of the Alps), the group began lengthy readings of ghost stories, and she was drawn into an agreement (later abandoned by most of the others) to write a story of the supernatural—something that would involve sublimity, terror, and the unknown. She had not deliberately set out to write a book (not, anyway, at this moment), and in the beginning she apparently had no particular idea for a plot, only an intention of inventing a scary story. But other stories were read and told (there was then a great vogue of ghost stories, and a lot of published material was available), and the group talked about contemporary science and current theories of the origins of life, matters that were to become prominent in the narrative Mary Shelley ultimately wrote. The immediate occasion of the writing thus involved both serious intellectual issues and a simpler desire to entertain and tell a compelling story.

Even though she was still a teenager, Mary Shelley brought to the occasion a background of grim experience, vivid fears, and powerful ambition. Her own mother had died in the aftermath of giving her life, and she grew up in a chaotic family that included a half-sister, a stepmother, a stepbrother, and a stepsister, in addition to her brilliant but Though Dracula was published in 1897, it is difficult to detach the novel from its vigorous twentieth-century life: we tend to superimpose on Bram Stoker’s enigmatic monster Bela Lugosi’s intonations or Frank Langella’s sinuous seductiveness or Gary Oldman’s tears. Stoker’s vampire story is far more important to us than it was to its contemporary Victorians, who relished it as a good potboiler but never made Bram Stoker or his monster famous. A novel that seemed commonplace in its time unfurled into a legend haunting and defining the next century.

Dracula seemed commonplace in 1897 in part because it was one of many fantastic adventure stories pitting mainly Englishmen against foreign monsters. Throughout the 1880s and 1890s, authors such as H. Rider Haggard, Rudyard Kipling, Robert Louis Stevenson, and H. G. Wells turned out hordes of tales—several more eloquent and sophisticated than Dracula—in which fabulous creatures from remote corners of the earth (or beyond) threatened the integrity of the British home and empire. Sometimes these creatures arose from within: in Robert Louis Stevenson’s The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, a hideous alien reminiscent of a monkey, a Cockney, and an overgrown boy springs out from within a doctor even more respectable than Stoker’s John Seward. Dracula’s essential formula of invasion and appropriation was by 1897 cozily familiar to readers of adventure tales.

But unlike Rider Haggard’s She or the Beast People in H. G. Wells’s The Island of Doctor Moreau, Dracula is an adaptable monster—more so in Stoker’s novel than in its many flamboyant film adaptations—and this may be why we continue to believe in him. When we meet the vampire, he has never left his native Transylvania, but his English is more elegant and lucid than that of the Englishmen he accosts, many of whom are tangled in the thicket of their own dialect.

Moreover, Dracula is a monster only to those who know him. Humans instinctively shy away from Stevenson’s Mr. Hyde as an alien, though he has no visible deformity; Dracula blends into London as if he belongs there, even sporting a straw hat. When we strip away the mannerisms of movie Draculas, we meet a vampire with the potential to be at home everywhere.

Dracula may be less alien than he seems, but he is a monster of his time in that he embodies a threat that haunted fin-de-siècle England:
