Rationale and Objectives

Recent trends in higher education have called for the creation and development of historical consciousness in undergraduates now and in the future. From one perspective, historical awareness is a valuable aid in the analysis of present-day problems because historical forces and traditions have created modern life and lie just beneath its surface. From a second perspective, the historical past is an indispensable source of identity and of values, which facilitate social harmony and cooperative effort. Along with this observation, it should be noted that historical study can produce intercultural understanding by tracing cultural differences to their origins in the past. A third perspective on the need for historical awareness is that knowledge of history helps us to learn from the past to make better, more well-informed decisions in the present and the future.

The requirement of a course that is historical in method and content presumes that "history" designates a sequence of past events or a narrative whose intent or effect is to represent both the relationship between events and change over time. The requirement also presumes that these are human events and that history includes all that has been felt, thought, imagined, said, and done by human beings. The opportunities for nurturing historical consciousness are nearly unlimited. History is present in the languages, art, music, literatures, philosophy, religion, and the natural sciences, as well as in the social science traditionally called History.

Course Objective for Fall 2008

This course is an introduction to major topics in U.S. foreign relations in the twentieth century and beyond. It will cover the main themes of the period, emphasizing the domestic and international context in which the United States rose to world power status, dominating social, cultural, economic and political relations in the post-World War I era. The class will stress commercial and territorial expansion and the rise of U.S. interventionism in the non-industrialized world, emphasizing the interplay between the United States and other core powers, primarily Great Britain, France, Japan, the Soviet Union, and Germany. The goal of the class is to teach you about modern U.S. foreign relations and to help you develop a basic mastery of the important historical themes, events, and personalities, and simultaneously challenge you to improve your analytical skills in both the classroom and on written assignments.

Texts

Assignments

Your grade will be determined by your performance on a number of assignments. You will write two short papers (3-4 pages) on Hoganson and Dower. You will have a midterm examination and comprehensive final examination that will include questions from lectures, the text, and additional readings. You will have a group project, one ultimately that will require an extensive PowerPoint presentation (more on details to come) that will become a class designed website. Finally, a discussion grade will be determined by classroom participation and quizzes. Your wear it there, not in class. You will be given a warning and should it happen again, you will be asked to leave and an absence added to your record.

Finally, you should not record the lectures and discussions without permission. The lectures are copyrighted by the professor and are not for the use of others. Only those with special needs will be allowed to tape any in class comments.

Attendance: Attendance is mandatory. Studies demonstrate that there is a direct correlation between attendance and performance, and I cannot teach you if you do not attend class. I promise to try to make the class worth your time and help you toward developing needed skills for historical and general skills in any profession. As a result, after two unexcused absences (the equivalent of a week of classes) the students will lose ten points for each for additional absence. In addition, I encourage you to be to class on time. If you are not here at the time that the roll is taken without a legitimate excuse, you are considered absent.

Participation Grade: Approximately 20% of your grade will be determined by your participation in the class. Since I rely heavily on a Socratic method, which emphasizes question and answer, I encourage you to come to class prepared to talk about the materials assigned for that day. To promote your reading and preparation, I will administer quizzes over the assigned materials during the semester.

Plagiarism and Cheating: You will receive all the help you need to succeed in this course. Submitting work that is not your own will not be tolerated. Plagiarism and cheating in any form (please refer to your student handbook if you are unclear on the definition of either) will result in failure in the course as well as any other disciplinary action that can be taken through appropriate university channels.

PART III: THE WAR IN JAPANESE EYES

8. The Pure Self 203
Some five years ago, while drafting the opening chapter to a projected book about the occupation of Japan that followed World War Two I found myself mentioning in passing the race hates and merciless fighting that had been so conspicuous in the war in Asia and the Pacific. One of the impressive features of the occupation, after all, was that the defeated Japanese and victorious Allies, predominantly Americans, worked together so amicably and constructively. War-crimes trials were conducted after Japan's surrender; reports of wartime atrocities preoccupied journalists and jurists for many months; and there was hardly a corner of Japanese society that was not subjected to critical scrutiny. The war hates themselves, however, seemed to disappear almost overnight—so quickly, in fact, that they are easily forgotten now.

In a world that continues to experience so much violence and racial hatred, such a dramatic transformation from bitter enmity to genuine cooperation is heartening, and thus the fading memories of the war pose a paradox. It is fortunate that people on all sides can put such a terrible conflict behind them, but dangerous to forget how easily war came about between Japan and the Western Allies, and how extraordinarily fierce and Manichaean it was. We can never hope to understand the nature of World War Two in Asia, or international and interracial conflict in general, if we fail to work constantly at correcting and re-creating the historical memory. At a more modest level, the significance of the occupation of Japan and postwar rapprochement between the Japanese and their
