Arizona State University Criteria Checklist for

GLOBAL AWARENESS [G]

Rationale and Objectives

Human organizations and relationships have evolved from being family and village centered to modern global interdependence. The greatest challenge in the nuclear age is developing and maintaining a global perspective which fosters international cooperation. While the modern world is comprised of politically independent states, people must transcend nationalism and recognize the significant interdependence among peoples of the world. The exposure of students to different cultural systems provides the background of thought necessary to developing a global perspective.

Cultural learning is present in many disciplines. Exposure to perspectives on art, business, engineering, music, and the natural and social sciences that lead to an understanding of the contemporary world supports the view that intercultural interaction has become a daily necessity. The complexity of American society forces people to balance regional and national goals with global concerns. Many of the most serious problems are world issues and require solutions which exhibit mutuality and reciprocity. No longer are hunger, ecology, health care delivery, language planning, information exchanges, economic and social developments, law, technology transfer, philosophy, and the arts solely national concerns; they affect all the people of the world. Survival may be dependent on the ability to generate global solutions to some of the most pressing problems.

The word university, from universitas, implies that knowledge comes from many sources and is not restricted to local, regional, or national perspectives. The Global Awareness Area recognizes the need for an understanding of the values, elements, and social processes of cultures other than the culture of the United States. Learning which recognizes the nature of others cultures and the relationship of America’s cultural system to generic human goals and welfare will help create the multicultural and global perspective necessary for effective interaction in the human community.

Courses which meet the requirement in global awareness are of one or more of the following types: (1) in-depth area studies which are concerned with an examination of culture-specific elements of a region of the world, country, or culture group, (2) the study of contemporary non-English language courses that have a significant cultural component, (3) comparative cultural studies with an emphasis on non-U.S. areas, and (4) in-depth studies of non-U.S. centered cultural interrelationships of global scope such as the global interdependence produced by problems of world ecology, multinational corporations, migration, and the threat of nuclear war.

This introductory course will explore how different religions interact with the various processes of globalization. Students will deepen their understanding of how the world’s major religions have been transformed by economic, political, cultural and technological aspects of globalization, and how certain religious communities have responded to these transformations. In particular we will look at how the values and beliefs of various religions intersect with the processes of globalization. Topics will include: religious terrorism, human rights, and religion and gender. The course will focus on these topics in the contemporary world outside of the US.

Teaching and learning objectives:

- To gain a more nuanced understanding of how religion influences and is influenced by the various processes of globalization so students can become informed participants in discussions about the role and function of religion in the contemporary world.
- The ability to read and critically evaluate primary and secondary texts.
- The ability to combine description and analysis of religious and global phenomena in written and oral work in such a way as to construct a coherent and cogent argument.

Required Reading: (Available at the ASU Bookstore and on reserve at Hayden library):

- Other readings will be available online or will be made available via electronic reserve at the library.

Course Requirements:
In class mid-term exam: The mid-term exam will examine a series of questions of central importance to the first half of the semester. It will be a mix of short answer and short essay questions.

Final Exam: The final will examine a series of questions of central importance to the entire course. It will be a mix of short answer and short essay questions.

Quizzes / One Page Essays: At various points throughout the semester I will give quizzes or distribute short essay questions regarding the readings or classroom discussion. Some of these are listed on the syllabus. I also reserve the right to give in-class pop quizzes. The essays will be one page in length and will be due the following class period.

Classroom Module Design: You will design a lesson plan for a new topic to be added to a Religion and Globalization course syllabus. You will choose a topic that you feel should be addressed in this course and design the lesson plan for the two or three days needed to cover it in class. This will include:
- A one page explanation of why the topic you have chosen is relevant, why it is important, and what it adds to the overall course.
- A set of appropriate (in terms of content, length and difficulty) required readings for each class period along with an explanation of why you have chosen those readings.
- A list of recommended additional readings.
- Any media that you feel will enhance student learning (film, website, podcast, etc).

Class Participation: Class participation is NOT the same thing as class attendance. You are expected to complete the reading assignments for each week and to take an active role in this class. Class participation should provide some evidence to the instructor that you are keeping up with the readings and continuing to think about the issues raised in the course. Evaluation of your participation will be based on the following criteria:
- Raising and answering questions related to assigned readings
- Sharing ideas and insights
- Sharing relevant personal observations
- Pointing out relevant data / recent news accounts related to class topics
- Relating and synthesizing the topics discussed in class

Class Preparation: One goal of this class is to promote discussion on the issues we are exploring and we cannot do that if you do not come to class prepared. I will assume that if you attend class you have done the reading and will be able to answer basic questions about said readings. Calling on you is not an attempt to embarrass you, but rather to engage you in the class discussion.

CLASSROOM BEHAVIOR: In this class we will discuss complex issues about which some class members may have strong feelings. However, this class is for learning about these issues, not trying to convince other students that your personal viewpoint is the correct one or that theirs is the wrong one. Classroom discussion is not a platform for you to denounce religions other than your own; rather it is aimed at discussing the topic at hand to enhance our mutual understandings of complicated issues from a variety of nuanced perspectives. To encourage broad participation, and in the name of creating a comfortable and secure academic environment in which all class members feel free to express their reasoned opinions in class, I will have a zero tolerance policy for the following behaviors:

- Hate speech of any kind.
- Violent, threatening or disruptive behavior.
- Any other violations of the Student Code of Conduct

The instructor reserves the right to drop any student who is guilty of the above mentioned behaviors from the class. If you have any questions regarding this policy please contact your dean.

Grading

A/A- = consistently outstanding achievement in the course
B+/B = work of good to very good quality, but not consistently outstanding
B-/C+/C = acceptable level of competence and basic understanding of material
C-/D = minimally adequate; student may not be ready for further related coursework
E = unsatisfactory and unworthy of credit

ASSIGNMENTS:

- Assignments are due at the beginning of class. Papers or essays arriving at the end of, or after, class are considered one day late.
- Except in the case of emergencies, you should notify me before rather than after a late assignment is due. Late papers unaccompanied by a letter from a doctor, counselor, or funeral director will be penalized a third of a grade (an A- becomes a B+, etc.) for each 24 hour period after it is due. To be clear, turning in an assignment any time during the first 24 hours after it is due is penalized a third of a grade; between 24 and 48 hours two thirds of a grade, etc. Materials submitted more than 7 days after the due date will receive a grade of F. Even with a letter from a doctor, counselor, or funeral director, extension times must be reasonable.
- All papers will be submitted by e-mail. It is your responsibility to ensure they are received. If you do not receive an e-mail acknowledging receipt of your paper it has NOT been received and will be marked down for being late. No excuses will be accepted.

COMMUNICATION WITH INSTRUCTOR:

➢ Please include your name in all e-mails that you send me. Unsigned e-mails will not be answered.
➢ Do not expect me to answer e-mails sent after 7pm until the next day.
➢ All course relevant e-mails will be sent to your asu.edu accounts. You are responsible to check this account for any course updates.

ATTENDANCE, MAKE-UPS: Attendance is mandatory for all classes. Missed classes will lead to a lower grade.

ACADEMIC HONESTY: The Department of Religious Studies abides by ASU’s Office of Student Life: “Student
Academic Integrity Policy.” See: http://provost.asu.edu/academicintegrity

Academic honesty is fundamental to the activities and principles of a university. All members of the academic community must be confident that each person’s work has been responsibly and honorably acquired, developed, and presented. Any effort to gain an advantage not given to all students is dishonest whether or not that effort is successful. The academic community regards academic dishonesty as an extremely serious matter, with serious consequences that range from probation to expulsion.

It is your responsibility to know what constitutes plagiarism. Claiming to not understand what constitutes plagiarism will not be accepted as an excuse and you will fail the class.

You may not submit a paper written for another class to meet the requirements for this class. If you do you will, minimally, receive a zero on that paper, and could receive an F for the course, as well as be referred to the dean’s office for further sanctions.

Students with Disabilities: Students with disabilities or special needs are advised to contact the Disability Resource Center at (480) 965-1234 for more information.

short essay questions regarding the readings or classroom discussion. Some of these are listed on the syllabus. I also reserve the right to give in-class pop quizzes. The essays will be one page in length and will be due the following class period.

Classroom Module Design: You will design a lesson plan for a new topic to be added to a Religion and Globalization course syllabus. You will choose a topic that you feel should be addressed in this course and design the lesson plan for the two or three days needed to cover it in class. This will include:

- A one page explanation of why the topic you have chosen is relevant, why it is important, and what it adds to the overall course.
- A set of appropriate (in terms of content, length and difficulty) required readings for each class period along with an explanation of why you have chosen those readings.
- A list of recommended additional readings.
- Any media that you feel will enhance student learning (film, website, podcast, etc).

Class Participation: Class participation is NOT the same thing as class attendance. You are expected to complete the reading assignments for each week and to take an active role in this class. Class participation should provide some evidence to the instructor that you are keeping up with the readings and continuing to think about the issues raised in the course. Evaluation of your participation will be based on the following criteria:

- Raising and answering questions related to assigned readings
- Sharing ideas and insights
- Sharing relevant personal observations
- Pointing out relevant data / recent news accounts related to class topics
- Relating and synthesizing the topics discussed in class

Class Preparation: One goal of this class is to promote discussion on the issues we are exploring and we cannot do that if you do not come to class prepared. I will assume that if you attend class you have done the reading and will be able to answer basic questions about said readings. Calling on you is not an attempt to embarrass you, but rather to engage you in the class discussion.

THE FINE PRINT

I reserve the right to change course readings, films, or the class schedule throughout the course of the semester.

CLASSROOM BEHAVIOR: In this class we will discuss complex issues about which some class members may have strong feelings. However, this class is for learning about these issues, not trying to convince other students that your personal viewpoint is the correct one or that theirs is the wrong one. Classroom discussion is not a platform for you to denounce religions other than your own; rather it is aimed at discussing the topic at hand to enhance our mutual understandings of complicated issues from a variety of nuanced perspectives. To encourage broad participation, and in the name of creating a comfortable and secure academic environment in which all class members feel free to express their reasoned opinions in class, I will have a zero tolerance policy for the following behaviors:

- Hate speech of any kind.
- Violent, threatening or disruptive behavior.
- Any other violations of the Student Code of Conduct

The instructor reserves the right to drop any student who is guilty of the above mentioned behaviors from the class. If you have any questions regarding this policy please contact your dean.

Grading
A/A- = consistently outstanding achievement in the course
B+/B = work of good to very good quality, but not consistently outstanding
B-/C+/C = acceptable level of competence and basic understanding of material
C-/D = minimally adequate; student may not be ready for further related coursework
E = unsatisfactory and unworthy of credit

ASSIGNMENTS:
- Assignments are due at the beginning of class. Papers or essays arriving at the end of, or after, class are considered one day late.
- Except in the case of emergencies, you should notify me before rather than after a late assignment is due. Late papers unaccompanied by a letter from a doctor, counselor, or funeral director will be penalized a third of a grade (an A- becomes a B+, etc.) for each 24 hour period after it is due. To be clear, turning in an assignment any time during the first 24 hours after it is due is penalized a third of a grade; between 24 and 48 hours two thirds of a grade, etc. Materials submitted more than 7 days after the due date will receive a grade of F. Even with a letter from a doctor, counselor, or funeral director, extension times must be reasonable.
- All papers will be submitted by e-mail. It is your responsibility to ensure they are received. If you do not receive an e-mail acknowledging receipt of your paper it has NOT been received and will be marked down for being late. No excuses will be accepted.

COMMUNICATION WITH INSTRUCTOR:
- Please include your name in all e-mails that you send me. Unsigned e-mails will not be answered.
- Do not expect me to answer e-mails sent after 7pm until the next day.
- All course relevant e-mails will be sent to your asu.edu accounts. You are responsible to check this account for any course updates.

ATTENDANCE, MAKE-UPS: Attendance is mandatory for all classes. Missed classes will lead to a lower grade.

ACADEMIC HONESTY: The Department of Religious Studies abides by ASU’s Office of Student Life: “Student
Academic Integrity Policy.” See: http://provost.asu.edu/academicintegrity

Academic honesty is fundamental to the activities and principles of a university. All members of the academic community must be confident that each person’s work has been responsibly and honorably acquired, developed, and presented. Any effort to gain an advantage not given to all students is dishonest whether or not that effort is successful. The academic community regards academic dishonesty as an extremely serious matter, with serious consequences that range from probation to expulsion.

It is your responsibility to know what constitutes plagiarism. Claiming to not understand what constitutes plagiarism will not be accepted as an excuse and you will fail the class.

You may not submit a paper written for another class to meet the requirements for this class. If you do you will, minimally, receive a zero on that paper, and could receive an F for the course, as well as be referred to the dean’s office for further sanctions.

STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES: Students with disabilities or special needs are advised to contact the Disability Resource Center at (480) 965-1234 for more information.
