MANDATORY REVIEW:

☐ The above specified course is undergoing Mandatory Review for the following Core or Awareness Area (only one area is permitted; if a course meets more than one Core or Awareness Area, please submit a separate Mandatory Review Cover Form for each Area).

POLICY: The General Studies Council (GSC-T) Policies and Procedures requires the review of previously approved community college courses every five years, to verify that they continue to meet the requirements of Core or Awareness Areas already assigned to these courses. This review is also necessary as the General Studies program evolves.

AREA(S) PROPOSED COURSE WILL SERVE: A course may be proposed for more than one core or awareness area. Although a course may satisfy a core area requirement and an awareness area requirement concurrently, a course may not be used to satisfy requirements in two core or awareness areas simultaneously, even if approved for those areas. With departmental consent, an approved General Studies course may be counted toward both the General Studies requirements and the major program of study.

5.) PLEASE SELECT EITHER A CORE AREA OR AN AWARENESS AREA:

trove of historical information and insight." From its earliest days, cinema has found ample and important source material in history. Since every country in the world has its own history, and often rife with iconic cultural figures, it is one of the most popular and ubiquitous film genres. Furthermore, as our histories often bisect each other’s, a global cross-cultural experience becomes a unique feature of historical films. Films such as The Longest Day (Britain’s Ken Annakin, America’s Andrew Marton, and Germany’s Bernhard Wicki) and Tora Tora Tora (America’s Richard Fleischer and Japan’s Kinji Fukasaku and Toshiro Masuda) have even used multinational directors to portray national perspectives of the same historical events. Film, as an art, is inherently subjective in its perspective; hence historical films are also at times agents of social controversy. A premiere example is the 1915 landmark film, Birth of a Nation. D.W. Griffith’s revolutionary film not only created the template and grammar for the modern motion picture, but his depiction of the Civil War and Reconstruction Period that followed created a storm of outrage. The film was met by protests and condemnations while grossing millions of dollars and launching modern cinema. HUM 220 critically examines and analyzes historical films for their historical accuracy, cultural influence, global perspective, and cinematic techniques and formal elements. Since more people watch historical films than read history books, the presentation of history on film, including subject matter as well as the filmmaker’s perspective and personal biases become our history teachers in the popular cultural view of history. According to Mark C. Carnes, “Like drama and fiction, movies inspire and entertain. They often teach important truths about the human condition. They do not provide a substitute for history that has been painstakingly assembled from the best available evidence and analysis. But sometimes filmmakers, wholly smitten by their creations, proclaim them to be historically 'accurate' or 'truthful,' and many viewers presume them to be so. Viewers should neither accept such claims nor dismiss them out of hand, but regard them as an invitation for further exploration.” Oliver Stone’s JFK exhibited his view, based on New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison’s theory, of President Kennedy’s assassination. The film, although entertaining and well made, was heavily criticized by historians. The ensuing public outcry (not too dissimilar to that faced by Birth of a Nation) forced the creation of the Assassination Review Board by Congress in 1992. The result was the declassifying of reams of documents pertaining to the assassination as well as new interviews with witnesses. Robert A. Rosenstone has observed that, “The familiar, solid world of history on the page and the equally familiar but more ephemeral world history on the screen are similar in at least two ways: they refer to actual events, moments, and movements from the past, and at the same time they partake of the unreal and the fictional, since both are made out of sets of conventions we have developed for talking about where we human beings have come from (and also where we are and where we think we are going, though this is something most people concerned with the past don’t always admit.” Students of HUM 220 will be able to achieve the critical thinking and analytical skills of a genre of film that is culturally, globally, and artistically vital to our past, present, and future.

| 4.b. Concerns aesthetic systems and values, literary and visual arts | The course emphasizes the cinematic experience of historical films for their aesthetic values, formal elements of filmmaking, and cultural impact. The art of filmmaking is explored as a means for presenting historical films for their aesthetic, literary, and historic value. Furthermore, the inherent aesthetic of film as a medium of communication, teaching, and entertainment will be applied to the historical films presented in class. | MCCCD Course Competencies

REQUIRED TEXTS: History and Film, by Maarten Pereboom; and Past Imperfect, edited by Mark C. Carnes.

COURSE DESCRIPTION
Prepares historically based films and analyzes their accuracy, filmmaking techniques, and their value as cinematic historical records of U.S. and global events.

COURSE OBJECTIVES
Students will recognize that subjects for films have been common since the earliest days of silent films, and since that time history has been a very popular subject in both American and foreign films. Due to the great popularity of film, cinematic versions of history have often become the history teachers or textbooks for popular culture. This course will examine and deconstruct American and foreign historical films of varying eras and events to analyze their historical accuracy, or inaccuracy, as well as their cinematic techniques and value in the pantheon of cinema history and formal filmmaking elements.

REQUIREMENTS
1. One 2-3 page critique analyzing the stylistic elements as well as the historical accuracy/presentation of an historically-based film viewed outside of class. Typed, double-spaced, stapled, one inch margins all around. The assignment is attached.
2. Midterm and Final exams. Students MUST provide a Scantron Answer Form No. 19641 for EACH exam, a No. 2 pencil, and a Blue Book. These can be purchased at the campus bookstore.
You CANNOT take an exam without these!
3. Class participation. The class is centered on the viewing and discussing of films. Students are expected to give their full attention to the films and to actively participate in discussions.

COURSE POLICIES
• Students with disabilities who believe that they may need accommodations in this class are encouraged to contact the Disability Resource Center (KSC 119) (602-787-7170).

• Students are responsible for knowing the course requirements and policies included in this syllabus. Students will be notified by the instructor of any changes in course requirements, due dates, or policies.

• Students are responsible for knowing and following the policies included in the Paradise Valley Community College Catalog and the Paradise Valley Community College Student Handbook & Planner.
HUM 220: History and Film

- Students are expected to abide by the Code of Conduct as stipulated in the Paradise Valley Community College Catalog.

- Keep all graded work until the semester is over.

- There will be NO extra credit assignments available except for critiques written based on your optional attendance at the Film Festival @ PVCC.

- It is the student’s responsibility to ask the instructor for any handouts that may have been missed because of late arrival or absences, and to keep abreast of schedule changes.

- There will be no formal reviews given before the exams. Therefore, it is the student’s responsibility to take detailed notes, watch all of the assigned films, and fully comprehend the reading assignments. Students are encouraged to ask questions and to see the instructor for help outside of class.

- Students caught cheating on exams or assignments will receive a zero on that assignment and be immediately withdrawn from the class, and will be referred to the college administration for possible further disciplinary action.

- Plagiarism will not be tolerated, and students caught plagiarizing will be subject to the actions in the above paragraph. The PVCC Student Handbook states, “Plagiarism includes, but is not limited to, the use of paraphrase or direct quotation of the published or unpublished work of another person without full and clear acknowledgment. It also includes the unacknowledged use of materials prepared by another person or agency engaged in the selling of term papers or other academic materials. Information gathered from the Internet and not properly identified is also considered plagiarism.”

- There are NO EXCEPTIONS to these policies unless in cases of extreme and extraordinary circumstances and at the instructor’s discretion. Read these policies carefully and follow them EXACTLY!!!

ATTENDANCE

Attendance and punctuality are vital. If a student is absent from a class more than three times, the instructor reserves the right to withdraw the student from the course. Arriving late and leaving early from class are considered absences. Extenuating circumstances will always be considered, although documentation from the student may be necessary.

Exams missed because of UNOFFICIAL absences CANNOT BE MADE UP, and students will receive a zero for those assignments. Exams MUST be taken on the scheduled dates, and critiques may NOT be turned in after the due date.

The college defines official absences to include ONLY the following: Official activity of the college, jury duty, subpoenas, death of an immediate family member, and religious holidays.
HUM 220: History and Film

With the exception of death of an immediate family member, exams missed due to an official absence must be taken BEFORE the scheduled exam date. It is the student’s responsibility to make arrangements with the instructor in advance. In the case of the death of an immediate family member, the student will arrange with the instructor to take the exam upon their return to class.

All other absences than those stipulated above are UNOFFICIAL. The college does NOT define as official absences such circumstances as the following: work, illness, personal emergencies, transportation problems, and childcare problems.

Exams may NOT be made up for any of the reasons in the above paragraph. The attendance policy applies to the first day of scheduled class even though you may have registered late.

WITHDRAWAL FROM CLASS
Although the instructor may withdraw a student who stops attending class, responsibility for official withdrawal rests with the student. Please consult your student class schedule for withdrawal deadlines. NO students will be withdrawn after the Last Day to Withdrawal With Instructor’s Signature. Students withdrawing with a grade of D or F may be given a Y.

VIEWING ETIQUETTE
Food and beverages can easily ruin a film for those around you, as well as the carpet, so please do not bring them to class. Also, if you must leave the room during a viewing, please open and close the door quietly. Courtesy is important, so please do not talk during the films. Please turn off your cell phones during class. This includes NO text messaging during class!

CONTACTING YOUR PROFESSOR
Feel free to contact me anytime you want. You may come by my office anytime, but making an appointment is always best to insure I will be there. If you call me and I’m not in, please leave a message with your full name and phone number. If you email me I will always email you back, so if you don’t hear back then I did not receive your email. Voice mails and emails left over the weekend will be returned on Monday.

CONTESTING A GRADE
Wait at least twenty-four hours after receiving your grade before making an appointment to meet with the instructor in his office. You are advised to review your class notes and reading assignments. At the meeting, the entire assignment will be open to review, not just the points you are contesting. You have ten working days after the grade is assigned to request a review of the grade. After ten working days, you may still discuss your work with the instructor, but your grade will be final.

SUCCESS IN THIS COURSE
You are responsible for the grade you will earn in this class. It is strongly recommended that you keep track of your grade progress in this class, and if you have questions about it or need help, you will need to contact the instructor. Students need to take notes and completely understand all of the reading assignments. All due dates are firm, and while my expectations of you are high, I am always willing and available to help you throughout the semester. No additional assignments outside of this syllabus will be given to help students wishing to bring up their grades. Also, the films shown in this class are not shown for your personal entertainment, but rather as academic examples of cinema to be analyzed and critiqued in a scholarly manner.

COURSE ADVISEMENT
As this course examines contemporary cinema, some of the films shown contain graphic violence, nudity, and sexual content. If this presents a concern to the student they will need to reconsider enrollment in this course. No substitute or alternative films or assignments will be given if a student does not want to watch a film presented in class. Please see the instructor with any questions you may have regarding this. Finally, you must be at least 17 years of age to be enrolled in this class. If you’re not you must notify the instructor immediately.
HUM 220: History and Film

Readings are to be completed either before or right after the film is scheduled for screening. Please note that changes may be necessary, including films, to meet the needs of the class.

Film Critique

Critique: All critiques MUST by typed, double-spaced, using a 12-point font and no fancy font styles, and 2-3 pages in length. Papers will be graded on content, spelling, grammar, and punctuation. Do not make handwritten corrections. No extra spacing between the title (yes, your critique needs a title) and the body of the paper or between paragraphs. Papers should follow a standard format for a persuasive or argumentative essay. Late papers will NOT be accepted. Please do not put your critique in a folder or use a cover page, but staple it and identify it with the following information in the upper left or right hand corner of your first page:

Your Name
HUM 220, History and Film
Due Date

Assignment: Choose a historically based film to watch that we are NOT scheduled to view in class. You will include in your analysis of the film how it is or is not an accurate cinematic portrayal of historic events, what biases may exist in the film, the cultural impact of the film, the global reaction to the film, and the use of the formal elements of filmmaking used in the construction of the film. Develop a clear thesis statement based on your viewing and analysis of the film. Support your thesis with specifically described scenes from the film. 100 points possible.

Hint: Include the film’s title, director, stars, and pertinent information in the first paragraph. Film titles are always underlined or italicized. Don’t get carried away with retelling the plot. Remember, a critique is not a review it is an analysis of a particular aspect of a film. In this case, you are analyzing how the film you have selected is or is not an accurate or historically/culturally valid representation of an historical event. Please make your work original and do NOT rely on your textbooks for information (I read it too!) Critiques are due on the date listed on your syllabus.

If you have difficulty with writing, you are strongly encouraged to get assistance at the Learning Support Center in E Building (across from the library). They can help with your writing skills, but you must make an appointment with them in advance and bring your rough draft with you. Their number is 602-787-7180.

Paradise Valley Community College's Definition of Plagiarism: Plagiarism includes, but is not limited to, the use of paraphrase or direct quotation of the published or unpublished work of another person without full and clear acknowledgment. It also includes the unacknowledged use of materials prepared by another person or agency engaged in the selling of term papers or other academic materials. Information gathered from the Internet and not properly identified is also considered plagiarism.  -PVCC Student Handbook. 2008/2009. p. 177

Films: Choose any film based on actual events in history that we are NOT scheduled to view in class (see the class schedule). I will be glad to help you with film selections if you want.
