Is this a cross-listed course? Yes
If yes, please identify course(s) SLC 494, FMS 494

Is this a shared course? (Choose one) If so, list all academic units offering this course

Note- For courses that are crosslisted and/or shared, a letter of support from the chair/director of each department that offers the course is required for each designation requested. By submitting this letter of support, the chair/director agrees to ensure that all faculty teaching the course are aware of the General Studies designation(s) and will teach the course in a manner that meets the criteria for each approved designation.

Is this a permanent numbered course with topics? No

If yes, all topics under this permanent numbered course must be taught in a manner that meets the criteria for the approved designation(s). It is the responsibility of the chair/director to ensure that all faculty teaching the course are aware of the General Studies designation(s) and adhere to the above guidelines.

Chair/Director Initials
(Required)

Course description: Covers topics of immediate or special interest to a faculty member and students

Requested designation: Mandatory Review: Yes

Humanities, Arts and Design-HU
Note- a separate proposal is required for each designation.

Eligibility:
Permanent numbered courses must have completed the university’s review and approval process.
For the rules governing approval of omnibus courses, contact Phyllis.Lucie@asu.edu.

Submission deadlines dates are as follow:
For Fall 2016 Effective Date: October 1, 2015
For Spring 2017 Effective Date: March 10, 2016

Area(s) proposed course will serve:
A single course may be proposed for more than one core or awareness area. A course may satisfy a core area requirement and more than one awareness area requirements concurrently, but may not satisfy requirements in two core areas simultaneously, even if approved for those areas. With departmental consent, an approved General Studies course may be counted toward both the General Studies requirement and the major program of study.

Checklists for general studies designations:
Complete and attach the appropriate checklist

- Literacy and Critical Inquiry core courses (L)
- Mathematics core courses (MA)
- Computer/statistics/quantitative applications core courses (CS)
- Humanities, Arts and Design core courses (HU)
- Social Behavioral Sciences core courses (SB)
- Natural Sciences core courses (SO/SG)
- Cultural Diversity in the United States courses (C)
- Global Awareness courses (G)
- Historical Awareness courses (H)

A complete proposal should include:
☐ Signed course proposal cover form
☐ Criteria checklist for General Studies designation(s) being requested
☐ Course catalog description
☐ Sample syllabus for the course
☐ Copy of table of contents from the textbook and list of required readings/books

It is respectfully requested that proposals are submitted electronically with all files compiled into one PDF.

Arizona State University Criteria Checklist for

HUMANITIES, ARTS AND DESIGN [HU]

Rationale and Objectives

The humanities disciplines are concerned with questions of human existence and meaning, the nature of thinking and knowing, with moral and aesthetic experience. The humanities develop values of all kinds by making the human mind more supple, critical, and expansive. They are concerned with the study of the textual and artistic traditions of diverse cultures, including traditions in literature, philosophy, religion, ethics, history, and aesthetics. In sum, these disciplines explore the range of human thought and its application to the past and present human environment. They deepen awareness of the diversity of the human heritage and its traditions and histories and they may also promote the application of this knowledge to contemporary societies.

The study of the arts and design, like the humanities, deepens the student’s awareness of the diversity of human societies and cultures. The arts have as their primary purpose the creation and study of objects, installations, performances and other means of expressing or conveying aesthetic concepts and ideas. Design study concerns itself with material objects, images and spaces, their historical development, and their significance in society and culture. Disciplines in the arts and design employ modes of thought and communication that are often nonverbal, which means that courses in these areas tend to focus on objects, images, and structures and/or on the practical techniques and historical development of artistic and design traditions. The past and present accomplishments of artists and designers help form the student’s ability to perceive aesthetic qualities of art work and design.

The Humanities, Arts and Design are an important part of the General Studies Program, for they provide an opportunity for students to study intellectual and imaginative traditions and to observe and/or learn the production of art work and design. The knowledge acquired in courses fulfilling the Humanities, Arts and Design requirement may encourage students to investigate their own personal philosophies or beliefs and to understand better their own social experience. In sum, the Humanities, Arts and Design core area enables students to broaden and deepen their consideration of the variety of human experience.

Overview

This course introduces students to new voices in the contemporary cinema of Russia and the former Soviet Republics, highlighting daring stylistic experimentation and sharply articulated issues of social justice, equality, freedom of conscience, and basic human rights. We will consider maverick documentary and fiction films, which experiment with novel forms of visual expression as they seek to give justice to complex social and political problems with global resonance, including the return of Cold War rhetoric, the ongoing armed conflict in Ukraine, international human trafficking, migrant workers, the exploitation of natural oil to the detriment of local communities, state corruption, the crumbling of social support institutions, inefficacy of judicial systems, and lack of tolerance towards minorities.

By delving into the cultural-political context of the most recent history of these regions, we will seek to gain a better understanding of the poignant social critique presented in these films, as well as the possibilities of democratic protest in these regions in general. Analyzing these films from a stylistic perspective, we will also consider the condition of film industries in post-Soviet republics, paying special attention to the economic and political factors that shape film distribution and reception at home and in the West. We will learn how independent filmmakers survive despite the increasing pressures of censorship, official "disapproval campaigns," withdrawal of state funding, and the undercutting of foreign art-house sponsorship.

Grade Breakdown

30% Class participation
40% Festival Team Project
30% Final essay

Grade Scale Minimums

A (94), A- (90), B+ (86), B (84), B- (80), C+ (76), C (70), D (60)

Mini Festival

In addition to the traditional format of weekly lectures, discussion sections, and film screenings, this course will also include a special opportunity for learning outside the classroom – a mini film festival open to the wider ASU community, which would be programmed, curated, and run entirely by the students.
Assignments and Evaluation

Class Participation and Online Forum Contributions

“Classroom citizenship” involves coming to class prepared, contributing to the online discussion forum, engaging in discussion, showing respect to others, and otherwise contributing to the creation of a stimulating and supportive intellectual environment.

As part of the class participation credit, the students will post weekly response papers (200-250 words), based on the film and readings in that week's unit. Study questions will be provided as prompts for the posts; however, you may also bring up your own topic or respond to your peers. While these weekly posts will not be graded, I will address all of them in class and structure our discussion section around the ideas you have articulated.

Festival Team Project

A unique feature of the course is the students’ involvement in the preparation of a mini film festival for the ASU community. The festival will include public screenings of 3-4 films from the syllabus (or other, related films from the former Soviet states), preceded by 10 min. student introductions. Student teams will assist the instructor in booking films from distributors, securing public screening rights, developing the festival’s concept, promoting the event across campus, and creating online advertising blurbs for all films to be screened. The workload for each team’s project will be distributed as small tasks throughout the semester. During the festival weeks, the teams will first do a mock-run of their talks in class and go through a peer-review workshop of the festival-related web materials they created.

Final Project

At the end of the course, each student will submit a final essay (8-9 pages, double spaced, Times New Roman 12 pt. script; MLA-formatted bibliography). The students are encouraged to write about the film they chose to present on at the mini festival. The paper will require citing at least three scholarly sources, one of which may come from the readings.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:
-- demonstrate knowledge of the newest trends in the independent cinema of Russia and its neighboring countries, as well as the broader cultural, political, and social factors that influence film production and circulation in this region
-- analyze the artistic vision of complex social issues, pertaining to global geopolitical developments, which are negotiated in the recent cinema of Russia and other post-Soviet states
-- master the critical vocabulary necessary to understand interdisciplinary scholarship in film studies, history, gender studies, political science, and critical theory
-- find, evaluate, and synthesize information, necessary to create an accurate and engaging curatorial presentation of these recent foreign films for the general public outside class

Course Policies

Attendance of lectures and sections is obligatory. Please provide a written explanation if you miss more than one lecture, or section. Missing more than two classes without a serious excuse (such as a medical issue or a family emergency) will negatively affect your final grade.

Please be sure to watch the assigned films in preparation for the discussion section.

The reflection papers are due as web posts by 7 pm on the evening before the discussion section. As these posts will help structure our discussion, they are of no use to us after class and will not be accepted. Late final paper submissions will be penalized. Extensions are granted only in exceptional circumstances. Students are expected to refrain from surfing the internet, checking facebook, texting, and other distracting activities during class time, as this is disrespectful and disruptive of the learning environment. If it becomes apparent that you are persistently plugged into your media devices, you will be marked as “absent” for that day.

A Note on Film Content

Learning about foreign cultures by definition takes one out of their comfort zone. The films on our syllabus will introduce you to unfamiliar ideas, practices, and attitudes, some of which you may find inappropriate and even upsetting. Several of the contemporary films we will watch deal with violent subjects and contain scenes that might be disturbing. Please talk to me, if you are concerned about film content for any reason.

Plagiarism

Academic honesty is expected of all students in all examinations, papers, academic transactions, and records. Passing another person’s work as your own or failing to acknowledge your sources properly is a serious breech of academic integrity. Plagiarism will result in a “zero” grade for the assignment, and may lead to further sanctions, including an XE (“academic dishonesty”) final grade and a report of your case to the Office of the University Provost.

Plagiarism, even if unintentional, is theft and cheating. Learn how to avoid it here:
- ASU Academic Integrity: https://provost.asu.edu/academicintegrity/students
- The Governors of Acadia University's interactive video on plagiarism: http://library.acadiau.ca/sites/default/files/library/tutorials/plagiarism/

Accommodating Students With Disabilities

Students who feel they will need disability accommodations in this class but have not registered with the Disability Resource Center (DRC) should contact DRC immediately. The DRC Tempe office is located on the first floor of the Matthews Center Building. DRC staff can also be reached at: (480) 965-1234 (V) or (480) 965-9000 (TTY). For additional information, visit: www.asu.edu/studentaffairs/ed/drc.

Religious Holidays and University Sanctioned Activities

ASU Board of Regents policy prohibits discrimination against any student, employee, or other individual because of such individual’s religious belief or practice, or any absence thereof. Students should notify faculty at the beginning of the semester about the need to be absent from class due to religious observances. The course head will arrange for alternative assignments to make up for the missed class time.

Likewise, students who need to miss classes due to their participation in university sanctioned activities are required to notify the course head as early as possible (preferably, at the beginning of the semester) to arrange for alternative assignments to make up for the missed class time.

ASU Policy Against Threatening Behavior

All incidents and allegations of violent or threatening conduct by an ASU student (whether on-or off campus) must be reported to the ASU Police Department (ASU PD) and the Office of the Dean of Students. If either office determines that the behavior poses or has posed a serious threat to personal safety or to the welfare of the campus, the student will not be permitted to return to campus or reside in any ASU residence hall until an appropriate threat assessment has been completed and, if necessary, conditions for return are imposed. ASU PD, the Office of the Dean of Students, and other appropriate offices will coordinate the assessment in light of the relevant circumstances.

Title IX

Title IX is a federal law that provides that no person be excluded on the basis of sex from participation in, be denied benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity. Both Title IX and university policy make clear that sexual violence and harassment based on sex is prohibited. An individual who believes they have been subjected to sexual violence or harassed on the basis of sex can seek support, including counseling and academic support, from the university. If you or someone you know has been harassed on the basis of sex or sexually assaulted, you can find information and resources at https://sexualviolenceprevention.asu.edu.

ASU Writing Center

Students who need additional help with writing research papers are encouraged to schedule a free 30-min one-on-one tutoring appointment at the ASU Writing Center (https://tutoring.asu.edu/writing-centers).

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2 Interpretation of visual texts</td>
<td>The course invites students to examine contemporary documentary and fictional films from post-Soviet states.</td>
<td>The assigned readings in Units 1-12 will help the students to contextualize these films in their historical moment, while weekly response papers, classroom discussions, and the preparation of film festival materials will provide an opportunity for students to interpret the aesthetic and cultural-political dimensions of these works.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3 Interpretation of aesthetic practices; analysis of historical development of traditions</td>
<td>Students will learn to recognize and interpret stylistic decisions taken by various filmmakers, and the ways in which these formal choices break away from or engage with classical continuity-style storytelling and contemporary European art house film trends. They will also learn about the economic and political factors impacting film production, distribution, and critical reception in post-Soviet countries.</td>
<td>The assigned readings in Units 1-12 combine film scholarship with contextual readings in order to help the students connect the films' style and themes with the broader cultural-political situation they stem from. Unit 13 addresses the politics of film reception and canon formation domestically and in the Western film festivals.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4b: aesthetic systems and values in art</td>
<td>With its focus on stylistic innovation and political protest, the course emphasizes the analysis of aesthetic systems and ethical values embraced and promoted by various contemporary filmmakers in post-Soviet countries.</td>
<td>As stated in the description of &quot;Assignments,&quot; students will write weekly response papers, participate in class discussions, and prepare the materials for a mini film-festival. Each of these tasks is geared towards building the students' skills in interpreting the stylistic and thematic elements of recent films produced in post-Soviet states.</td>
