COURSE OVERVIEW

Race, Gender & Justice is an upper division course that introduces students to the socio-legal literature on race, ethnicity, gender, class, justice and the legal order. The course challenges student to think critically about justice issues and institutions as we assess the major contemporary debates and controversies in the field in their historical contexts and from a variety of theoretical lenses. Major themes we will address include conceptualizations and constructions of race and gender in studies of crime, law, and justice; the multiple means of assessing and measuring discrimination; and the racialized and gendered consequences—whether intended or unintended—of recent legislation, popular referendums and court decisions. For example, many laws and policies appear on their face to be race or gender neutral, yet their impacts on different societal groups may differ, regardless of intent.

We will discuss a variety of current issues such as the wars on drugs, gangs and crime; affirmative action in higher education; immigration policies and practices; the victimization of women; and racial profiling. Throughout, we will be attentive to the relationships among law, policy, and economic, social and political inequalities. For example, we will look at how we as a society define and seek to resolve social problems, and whether and how those definitions and solutions differentially affect individuals and communities along racial, gender, or class lines. In so doing, we will develop conceptual tools for studying intertwining and sometimes contradictory social relations, social structures, and social constructions. Most of our attention will be placed on the situation in the United States, but we will also consider global influences on, and effects of, U.S. policies and practices.

OBJECTIVES: Upon completion of this course, students may be able to
1. Question assumptions and develop accurate knowledge about justice issues and legal institutions as they relate to race, ethnicity, and gender.
2. Have an enhanced understanding of key issues confronting our society.
3. Understand a number of conceptual frameworks used to study race, gender, law and justice.
4. Place contemporary debates about race, gender, crime, and the legal order within historical frameworks.
5. Develop the ability to think critically and present and review differing points of view.
6. Identify and analyze scholarly and popular source material.
7. Write a research paper.
8. Integrate personal experiences with course content.
9. Develop creative and critical thought through sustained inquiry.
10. Work individually and with others.

COURSE MATERIALS

Required Readings:

COURSE EXPECTATIONS AND OUTCOMES

This course will assist you in developing the following skills, all of which have been identified by ASU’s College of Liberal Arts and Sciences as skills which a college student should acquire:

- Oral and written communication
- Analytical and critical thinking
- Multi-cultural and diversity awareness
- Organizational and research skills
- Flexibility and adaptability
- Ability to meet multiple goals on deadline
- Interpersonal skills
- Global perspectives

Student responsibilities:
1. Confirm course registration on Blackboard and check the course Blackboard site often.
2. Complete readings by the date assigned.
3. Actively participate in class discussions.
4. Be respectful of your colleagues. You may have strong feelings about material we are discussing. While discussions may be heated, I expect that all class participants will be respectful of one another.
5. Monitor the quantity and quality of your contributions, regardless of your learning style or comfort level.
6. Be aware of deadlines and any modifications to the course syllabus.
7. Identify and obtain necessary resources (e.g., Disability Resources, the SJSI Writing Mentorship Program).
8. Carefully proofread your work and keep a copy of your assignments.
9. Submit assignments at the beginning of class; late assignments will be penalized.
10. Any grade appeals must be made within one week of the assignment being returned to you. Turn in the original assignment and your written request in the case of an appeal.
11. Be familiar with relevant ASU policies, including the ASU Academic Integrity Policy, which may be found at http://www.asu.edu/studentaffairs/studentlife/judicial/academic_integrity.htm. Academic dishonesty will not be tolerated. There are severe sanctions for cheating, plagiarizing, and any other form of dishonesty.

Activities/Assignments and Grade Point Total:

- 10 Response Essays are required. These are due on the date assigned. Late essays will not be accepted. 4 points each, total of 40 points.
- Regular attendance and active participation in class discussion. 10 points.
- Research paper. Topic/brief description (2 points), outline (5 points), bibliography (3 points), final product (30 points). Total: 50 points.
Grading Rubric:

A: 90-100%. Outstanding. Demonstrates a thorough knowledge of concepts and frameworks, and exceptional skill in the application and articulation of those concepts and frameworks in satisfying course requirements. Demonstrates the ability to analyze and synthesize materials from both inside and outside the classroom. Written work is carefully edited. Participates thoughtfully and regularly in class discussions and group exercises. Is not late for or absent from class.

B: 80-89%. Good. Above average level of knowledge of concepts and frameworks, along with considerable skill in using them to satisfy course requirements. Ability to write college level papers with few minor flaws. Participates regularly in class discussions and group exercises. Is rarely late for or absent from class.

C: 70-79%. Fairly Competent. Basic, acceptable level of knowledge of concepts and frameworks together with some skill in using them to satisfy course requirements. Follows assignments directions and meets deadlines. Ability to write college level papers with limited grammar, mechanical or organizational problems. Participates irregularly in class discussions and group exercise. Is not late for or absent from class more than three times.

D: 60-69% Below Expectations. Minimal knowledge of concepts and frameworks and below average ability to use them to satisfy course requirements. Communication skills below what is expected of advanced college student. Written work demonstrates significant grammar, mechanical and/or organizational problems. Fails to attend class regularly and to participate appropriately in class discussions and group exercises.

E. 59% and below. Well Below Expectations. Written work below college level, even when revises. Fails to seek assistance for improvement from appropriate resources. Consistently late in meeting course requirements and/or absent from class. Shows little or no understanding of concepts; unable to relate materials from inside and outside the classroom. Fails to participate appropriate in classroom discussion and group exercises.
Weekly Response Essay Guidelines

See course outline for due dates. Late essays will not be accepted (although you may email them in advance if you must miss class).

The response essays are intended to help you to make sense of the week’s readings and prepare for class discussion. They also provide you with the opportunity to connect personally with the readings and think about which parts you agree or disagree with most, which parts surprised you, and which made you think about the material in a new way. The essays should also help you to build upon earlier readings, drawing parallels and identifying different perspectives.

Essays must be typed, double-spaced, and consist of four paragraphs. Essays should be 1 to 1 ½ pages in length. Each essay is worth 4 points and will be evaluated based on substance (understanding of readings, critical thinking, analysis, etc.) and presentation (spelling, grammar, organization, etc.) Response essays total 40% of your grade.

Paragraph 1: What is the primary theme of the readings (substantive findings, theoretical debates discussed, etc.)? What are the common ideas running through the readings? Points of distinction?

Paragraph 2: What surprised, frustrated, or excited you about the readings? This is where you can address how you felt about the readings, and why.

Paragraph 3: What did you learn from the readings? How did they connect with other material we have read or discussed? What about material you read read for previous classes? Did the readings confirm or challenge your previous assumptions and understandings about race, gender and justice?

Paragraph 4: What is a question or critique that you have about these readings? What would you ask one of the authors if you met him/her?
Research Paper Guidelines

See course outline for due dates for topic, outline, bibliography, final paper.

This is a research paper on a topic of your choice that relates to race, gender and justice. The paper is worth 50 points (50% of your grade).

The paper should be approximately 12-18 pages in length, including a bibliography of at least one page. The paper will include:

- an introduction to the problem,
- statement of the research questions to be addressed,
- literature review based on a bibliography consisting of social science or humanities journal articles and books,
- analysis of the evidence and your findings, and
- conclusions.

ASU - [L] CRITERIA

TO QUALIFY FOR [L] DESIGNATION, THE COURSE DESIGN MUST PLACE A MAJOR EMPHASIS ON COMPLETING CRITICAL DISCOURSE—AS EVIDENCED BY THE FOLLOWING CRITERIA:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>YES</th>
<th>NO</th>
<th>Identify Documentation Submitted</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

CRITERION 1: At least 50 percent of the grade in the course should depend upon writing, including prepared essays, speeches, or in-class essay examinations. Group projects are acceptable only if each student gathers, interprets, and evaluates evidence, and prepares a summary report.

1. Please describe the assignments that are considered in the computation of course grades—and indicate the proportion of the final grade that is determined by each assignment.

2. Also:
   - Please circle, underline, or otherwise mark the information presented in the most recent course syllabus (or other material you have submitted) that verifies this description of the grading process—and label this information "C-1".

CRITERION 2: The composition tasks involve the gathering, interpretation, and evaluation of evidence.

1. Please describe the way(s) in which this criterion is addressed in the course design.

2. Also:
   - Please circle, underline, or otherwise mark the information presented in the most recent course syllabus (or other material you have submitted) that verifies this description of the grading process—and label this information "C-2".

CRITERION 3: The syllabus should include a minimum of two substantial writing or speaking tasks, other than or in addition to in-class essay exams.

1. Please provide relatively detailed descriptions of two or more substantial writing or speaking tasks that are included in the course requirements.

2. Also:
   - Please circle, underline, or otherwise mark the information presented in the most recent course syllabus (or other material you have submitted) that verifies this description of the grading process—and label this information "C-3".
| YES | NO | CRITERION 4: These substantial writing or speaking assignments should be arranged so that the students will get timely feedback from the instructor on each assignment in time to help them do better on subsequent assignments. Intervention at earlier stages in the writing process is especially welcomed. | L-1 and L-2 and L-3 Feedback on essay and on research paper |

1. Please describe the sequence of course assignments--and the nature of the feedback the current (or most recent) course instructor provides to help students do better on subsequent assignments.

2. Also:

   Please circle, underline, or otherwise mark the information presented in the most recent course syllabus (or other material you have submitted) that verifies this description of the grading process--and label this information "C-4".
