Arizona State University Criteria Checklist for

SOCIAL AND BEHAVIORAL SCIENCES [SB]

Rationale and Objectives

The importance of the social and behavioral sciences is evident in both the increasing number of scientific inquiries into human behavior and the amount of attention paid to those inquiries. In both private and public sectors people rely on social scientific findings to assess the social consequences of large-scale economic, technological, scientific, and cultural changes.

Social scientists' observations about human behavior and their unique perspectives on human events make an important contribution to civic dialogue. Today, those insights are particularly crucial due to the growing economic and political interdependence among nations.

Courses proposed for General Studies designation in the Social and Behavioral Sciences area must demonstrate emphases on: (1) social scientific theories and principles, (2) the methods used to acquire knowledge about cultural or social events and processes, and (3) the impact of social scientific understanding on the world.
Proposer: Please complete the following section and attach appropriate documentation.

ASU--[SB] CRITERIA

A SOCIAL AND BEHAVIORAL SCIENCE [SB] course should meet all of the following criteria. If not, a rationale for exclusion should be provided.

COURSE SYLLABUS
INTRODUCTION TO AFRICAN AND AFRICAN DIASPORA STUDIES 200 12:00pm-1:15pm TTH
COWDN215

COURSE DESCRIPTION AND OBJECTIVES: This course is generally an introduction to African and African Diaspora Studies. More specifically, it is an interrogation of the salience of race in these fields of studies, as well as opportunity to assess the African Diaspora’s historical and contemporary influence on international relations, transnational relations, foreign policy, diplomacy, repatriation, and development in Africa and its Diaspora. This course also queries the issue of identity among Diasporans (old and new), while providing a backdrop against which the frequently posed question in the run-up to the 2008 US Presidential election “Is Obama Black enough?” can be posed. Also, the more long-standing question “Is Pan Africanism still relevant?” as an ideology and a movement, is a question which will also be broached throughout the semester. The main objective of this course is to introduce and expose students to pertinent concepts, theories, perspectives, and debates in African and African Diaspora Studies.

COURSE FORMAT: This course is a reading intensive course. You must read in order to participate effectively. The teaching and learning methodology of this course is based mostly on interactive discussions, films, guest lectures, and student presentations. Guest lectures by AAAS core and affiliated faculty will feature prominently in the class Class participation figures into your final grade for the course.

ASSIGMENTS AND GRADING: You will have 3 map/data collection exercises and five 3-page double-spaced 12-point font thinkpieces due on readings. Your 5 thinkpieces will account for 50% of your final grade (10% each). Your map/data collection exercises will account for 30 (likewise, 10% each), and class attendance and participation 20%. Together, they total a possible 100%. Students will be asked to make presentations on readings, and write in-class reaction papers. There will be no final in-class exam, only a final paper which is counted among the ones mentioned above.

For each day your assignment is late you will earn an automatic one-letter grade reduction. Do not send your assignments to class by a mate or by email, unless I have indicated to do so.
PLAGIARISM: The use of someone else's words or ideas (verbatim or paraphrased) without giving that person due credit is not acceptable academic behavior. It constitutes plagiarism and will earn you automatic ejection from this course and consequences deemed appropriate by the university.

EMAIL AND CELL PHONES: Matters of pertinence relevant to the course are welcome by email and will be addressed within a reasonable time frame. I do not constantly sit on the net, or repeat class discussions over email in case of your absence. You are responsible for making up your own work. PLEASE ENTER COURSE NUMBER IN THE SUBJECT LINE OF YOUR EMAIL. Please turn off cell phones during class. Texting during class can be a cause of failure.

Pointers for your Thinkpieces

1) Read/watch all of the assigned books/articles/films.

2) For your benefit, summarize and synthesize the information provided, including lectures/discussions/films. To do this, ask yourself
   a) What is/are the author(s) saying? What are the themes that emanate from the readings etc? Do the authors share the same perspective? Do their arguments differ? If so, in what ways? Do their arguments make sense? How are their arguments linked to the course description and objectives?
   b) Develop your original argument based on knowledge that you have gained from the books/articles/films/discussions. What do you think about the arguments and conclusions that emanate from these, and why? Armed with information, construct an informed argument, which reflects the critical attention you have given to the assignment.
   c) DO NOT TURN IN SUMMARIES OR REVIEWS. We have all read/watched/heard the same information. DO NOT DO EXTENSIVE RESEARCH. FOCUS ON THE SHARED READINGS/WORKS ASSIGNED IN CLASS.
   d) Do not use someone else's words or thoughts (verbatim or paraphrased) without citations as this constitutes plagiarism and carries heavy penalties.

3) Engage the AAAS, political, or political science-related concepts/terms/theories that we have discussed thus far, and that are relevant to the topic. Make relevant linkages.

4) Do not exceed the page limit. Do not turn in a reference sheet unless you must use additional sources.
5) Refrain from using "I" "my" "myself" etc. This is not a personal narrative.

Map and Data Collection Assignments

1. Individually, you are to use an outline map of the continent of Africa and identify, by writing in, countries, capitals, and major bodies of water. You are then to choose 4 African countries and collect the following data for each. Present in chart form:
   a) former colonial power
   b) year of independence
   c) name of head of state (president/prime minister)
   d) years of tenure of head of state
   e) GNP/GDP
   f) PCI
g) amount of external debt

h) population size

i) number of racial groups

j) number of ethnic groups

k) number of migrants (including refugees) who leave the country

l) countries to which they immigrate

You may add additional variables that you deem relevant on which to collect data. Adding variables is not a requirement.

Please draft a one-page observation of what the data tells you, and turn this in with your map and data chart. Add a reference sheet to indicate your sources of information.
This book is dedicated to the blacks, reds, browns, and yellows who have resisted the Racial Contract and the white renegades and race traitors who have refused it.

INTRODUCTION 1

1. OVERVIEW
   The Racial Contract is political, moral and epistemological 9
   The Racial Contract is a historical actuality 19
   The Racial Contract is an exploitation contract 31

2. DETAILS
   The Racial Contract norms (and races) space 41
   The Racial Contract norms (and races) the individual 53
   The Racial Contract underwrites the modern social contract 62
   The Racial Contract has to be enforced through violence and ideological conditioning 81

3. "NATURALIZED" MERITS
   The Racial Contract historically tracks the actual moral/political consciousness of (most) white moral agents 91
   The Racial Contract has always been recognized by nonwhites as the real moral/political agreement to be challenged 109
   The "Racial Contract" as a theory is explanatorily superior to the raceless social contract 120

II. Take a look at the more recent African immigrants (not of the slavery Diaspora) in the state of Arizona today. Dig for data that tells us what countries they come from, what their numbers are (for instance and hypothetically, 500 Tanzanians in AZ), what their occupations are, what their gender, age, educational level, religious affiliation, etc breakdowns are. Be creative in your search of information. We will use this data to begin to create a data base. Please present your findings in chart form, with prose explanations if necessary. Include sources from which you find the data.
