Arizona State University Criteria Checklist for

HUMANITIES, FINE ARTS AND DESIGN [HU]

Rationale and Objectives

The humanities disciplines are concerned with questions of human existence and meaning, the nature of thinking and knowing, with moral and aesthetic experience. The humanities develop values of all kinds by making the human mind more supple, critical, and expansive. They are concerned with the study of the textual and artistic traditions of diverse cultures, including traditions in literature, philosophy, religion, ethics, history, and aesthetics. In sum, these disciplines explore the range of human thought and its application to the past and present human environment. They deepen awareness of the diversity of the human heritage and its traditions and histories and they may also promote the application of this knowledge to contemporary societies.

The study of the arts and design, like the humanities, deepens the student’s awareness of the diversity of human societies and cultures. The fine arts have as their primary purpose the creation and study of objects, installations, performances and other means of expressing or conveying aesthetic concepts and ideas. Design study concerns itself with material objects, images and spaces, their historical development, and their significance in society and culture. Disciplines in the fine arts and design employ modes of thought and communication that are often nonverbal, which means that courses in these areas tend to focus on objects, images, and structures and/or on the practical techniques and historical development of artistic and design traditions. The past and present accomplishments of artists and designers help form the student’s ability to perceive aesthetic qualities of art work and design.

The Humanities, Fine Arts and Design are an important part of the General Studies Program, for they provide an opportunity for students to study intellectual and imaginative traditions and to observe and/or learn the production of art work and design. The knowledge acquired in courses fulfilling the Humanities, Fine Arts and Design requirement may encourage students to investigate their own personal philosophies or beliefs and to understand better their own social experience. In sum, the Humanities, Fine Arts and Design core area enables students to broaden and deepen their consideration of the variety of human experience.

The course covers the history of the United States from the end of World War II to the present time, emphasizing the human interaction in this diverse, multicultural society that is America. Through the use of texts, articles, the internet, movies, music, and television, the course provides the contextual framework for understanding and exploring the range of American experiences during this period. Special emphasis is placed on the minority rights movements, the changing patterns of immigration, and the moving demographic nature of the country. The course encourages awareness of the historical diversity of the United States in order to deepen students' understanding of their own social and cultural experiences. By examining these aspects, the course provides students with a greater awareness of present challenges, with emphasis on social and cultural aspects, the struggle for minority rights, environmental changes, and globalism.

MOVIES

Select two movies from the attached list, from separate “Blocks.” You may select any of the movies within a block, and any of the two blocks to select from, but the two movies must come from two separate sections.

While most of these movies are older ones, many from the 1950s, they should all be available for rental from a large rental organization such as Blockbusters. If you have any trouble finding a movie, go to a similarly-themed one in the same Block.

Write-up:

After viewing a movie, write up a review of it. This would be approximately 3 pages, double spaced and typed. It should contain a synopsis outlining what the movie is about, how you think it reflects the time in which it was made, any larger theme/s that you perceived running through the movie, what if anything it says about that particular time, what if any insights it gave you into the time that it was made, and your own views on the movie, i.e. whether you liked it, disliked it, and why.

This assignment can be done at any time during the semester, on your own schedule. The write-ups, which make up 10% of the grade for the class, must be handed in by Wednesday, November 26. This is the last date they will be received for full credit, but you can hand them in at any time during the semester before that deadline. You can also hand them in separately, i.e. as you view a movie and write it up, and then perhaps a couple of weeks later see the next one and hand in that review. Any late hand-ins will have 5 points per day (including weekends) deducted from the total points available for that review. Each review is worth 50 points.
Book Report

Due: In Last Regular Class Meeting Before Exam Week (Latest time accepted: Noon, Friday, December 5)
Late Submissions will not be Accepted

Purpose
Student will select a book, generally non-fiction although there may be some exceptions, covering the period of United States history 1945 to the present. The book must be approved by the instructor ahead of time. Select a topic (i.e. person, event or period) that particularly interests you. If you use this approach, this project should be fun, interesting, and enlightening.

Be sure to give full citation to the selected book at the beginning of the report, e.g.

When quoting directly from the book, use quotation marks and page numbers at the end of the quotation, e.g. "LBJ’s admiration for Robert McNamara crumbled when the exhausted, tormented Secretary of Defense privately concluded that the war had been a mistake" (426).

Organization
Your book report should be organized into three parts.

I Introduction
The introduction should introduce the book you have chosen and why you have selected your subject. Why is this particular person, event or period significant, and why does he/she/it particularly interest you?

II Content Review
This is the main body of the report. In your own words, using author’s quotes where appropriate, write a synopsis of the book, giving the major points (preferably in chronological order) that, according to your author, have brought your person, event or period to historical prominence.

III Conclusion
Draw together the elements of the book, and explain their significance to the life of the individual or the event covered, and its historical importance. Then express YOUR opinion of the book and the subject covered in the book.

Format
The book report must be typed, double-spaced, and be between a minimum of 3 and a maximum of 5 pages. It should be in prose form with complete sentences and paragraphs. Correct and appropriate grammar and structure should be used throughout the report. Sources other than the specific book you are reading are not required, but if you do use, or quote, another source, full citation must be given.
