Rationale and Objectives

The humanities disciplines are concerned with questions of human existence and meaning, the nature of thinking and knowing, with moral and aesthetic experience. The humanities develop values of all kinds by making the human mind more supple, critical, and expansive. They are concerned with the study of the textual and artistic traditions of diverse cultures, including traditions in literature, philosophy, religion, ethics, history, and aesthetics. In sum, these disciplines explore the range of human thought and its application to the past and present human environment. They deepen awareness of the diversity of the human heritage and its traditions and histories and they may also promote the application of this knowledge to contemporary societies.

The study of the arts and design, like the humanities, deepens the student’s awareness of the diversity of human societies and cultures. The fine arts have as their primary purpose the creation and study of objects, installations, performances and other means of expressing or conveying aesthetic concepts and ideas. Design study concerns itself with material objects, images and spaces, their historical development, and their significance in society and culture. Disciplines in the fine arts and design employ modes of thought and communication that are often nonverbal, which means that courses in these areas tend to focus on objects, images, and structures and/or on the practical techniques and historical development of artistic and design traditions. The past and present accomplishments of artists and designers help form the student’s ability to perceive aesthetic qualities of art work and design.

The Humanities, Fine Arts and Design are an important part of the General Studies Program, for they provide an opportunity for students to study intellectual and imaginative traditions and to observe and/or learn the production of art work and design. The knowledge acquired in courses fulfilling the Humanities, Fine Arts and Design requirement may encourage students to investigate their own personal philosophies or beliefs and to understand better their own social experience. In sum, the Humanities, Fine Arts and Design core area enables students to broaden and deepen their consideration of the variety of human experience.

Name of program: City in Film : London

Program dates: May 18-June 6  2009

Program overview description:

Explore London through it’s image in the cinema! We will experience places already made familiar through the eyes of directors, screenwriters and production designers. The program is organized around visiting London locations which have been featured in films and speculating on the relationship between architecture and film. Places we will visit include the spectacular St Pancreas Chambers (Batman Begins), Norman Foster’s Swiss Re Tower (Match Point) and Battersea Power Station (Richard III, Children of Men) among many others. We will also go to the British Film Institute, BBC studios and Three Mills Studios and visit interactive designers such as Jason Bruges Studio and Usman Haque as well as various architectural practices. We will watch movies at some of London’s art house cinemas and attend cinema events such as “Secret Cinema”.

Aim

The aim of the course is to develop knowledge and understanding of the relationship between architecture and film prior to and during a three week visit to London, England.

General Description

This is part of a Summer Abroad program run by the School of Architecture and Landscape Architecture which takes place in London during 3 weeks of May/June.

This three credit component will consist of movie watching, analysis through storyboarding, reading of relevant texts and a seminar.

This course is taken concurrently with APH 494 City in Film : London (3)

Stage 1a – MEETS POINT 2 OF ASU HU CRITERIA

At this stage students will watch a selection of films and read a series of related texts.

Students will start by watching a selection of films set and made in London over the last half century and asking a series of general questions. For example:

• How is the film revealing that it is set in London?
• What aspects of London is it communicating?
• How are individual elements of the city (buildings, weather, iconography etc) used to enhance the story of the film?
• Is London the background, a character, the subject in this film?
• How has the image of London as portrayed in films developed over the last 50 or so years?

Please see list of films attached.

Students will also read an essay or essays from the following publications:

London In Cinema by Charlotte Brunsdon
Cinematic Storytelling by Jennifer Van Sijll
Film Directing Shot by Shot by Steven d. Katz
Film Architecture From Metropolis to Blade Runner ed by Dietrich Neumann
Cineaste
Film Comment

Stage 1b – MEETS POINT 4b OF ASU HU CRITERIA

Students will also analyse the films in terms of the aesthetic systems and values that were employed to create them, specifically how cinematic storytelling techniques are used to communicate a story.
Students will look at:
camera placement,
lighting,
composition, motion and editing

This will lead to the production of a set of storyboards annotating this information.

Stage 1c - MEETS POINTS 2 AND 4b

Students will present their work from stages 1a+b at a seminar which will occur during the beginning of the London trip. The aim of the seminar is to share and discuss the information gained from the analyses and to broaden the range of topics available to the students.
