Prefix:	CHI	Number:	294
Title:	Chinese Ghost Stories		Units: 3

Course description:

(Short) This course will introduce in English Chinese tales of the strange and supernatural in both their traditional cultural contexts and through modern representations in various media.

(Long) Powerful spirits, vengeful ghosts, prophetic dreams, and monstrous creatures—stories of such oddities abound in Chinese literature. Among the earliest examples of Chinese narrative, these so-called “tales of the strange” (zhiguai) have maintained their popularity for almost two thousand years.

In this course participants will explore these tales in translation and in doing explore medieval Chinese conceptions of the body and soul(s), the afterlife, and the precarious relationship between the living and the dead. Materials will include original stories in translation, scholarly works, and modern re-interpretations of these tales and their content in film and other media.

Note- For courses that are crosslisted and/or shared, a letter of support from the chair/director of each department that offers the course is required for each designation requested. By submitting this letter of support, the chair/director agrees to ensure that all faculty teaching the course are aware of the General Studies designation(s) and will teach the course in a manner that meets the criteria for each approved designation.

Is this a permanent-numbered course with topics?	No
--	----

If yes, all topics under this permanent-numbered course must be taught in a manner that meets the criteria for the approved designation(s). It is the responsibility of the chair/director to ensure that all faculty teaching the course are aware of the General Studies designation(s) and adhere to the above guidelines. _____ (Required)

Requested designation: Global Awareness–G Mandatory Review: No

Note- a separate proposal is required for each designation.

Eligibility: Permanent numbered courses must have completed the university’s review and approval process. For the rules governing approval of omnibus courses, contact Phyllis.Lucie@asu.edu.

Submission deadlines dates are as follow:

For Fall 2018 Effective Date: October 1, 2017

For Spring 2019 Effective Date: March 10, 2018

Area(s) proposed course will serve:

A single course may be proposed for more than one core or awareness area. A course may satisfy a core area requirement and more than one awareness area requirements concurrently, but may not satisfy requirements in two core areas simultaneously, even if approved for those areas. With departmental consent, an approved General Studies course may be counted toward both the General Studies requirement and the major program of study.

Arizona State University Criteria Checklist for

GLOBAL AWARENESS [G]

Rationale and Objectives

Human organizations and relationships have evolved from being family and village centered to modern global interdependence. The greatest challenge in the nuclear age is developing and maintaining a global perspective which fosters international cooperation. While the modern world is comprised of politically independent states, people must transcend nationalism and recognize the significant interdependence among peoples of the world. The exposure of students to different cultural systems provides the background of thought necessary to developing a global perspective.

Cultural learning is present in many disciplines. Exposure to perspectives on art, business, engineering, music, and the natural and social sciences that lead to an understanding of the contemporary world supports the view that intercultural interaction has become a daily necessity. The complexity of American society forces people to balance regional and national goals with global concerns. Many of the most serious problems are world issues and require solutions which exhibit mutuality and reciprocity. No longer are hunger, ecology, health care delivery, language planning, information exchanges, economic and social developments, law, technology transfer, philosophy, and the arts solely national concerns; they affect all the people of the world. Survival may be dependent on the ability to generate global solutions to some of the most pressing problems.

The word university, from universitas, implies that knowledge comes from many sources and is not restricted to local, regional, or national perspectives. The Global Awareness Area recognizes the need for an understanding of the values, elements, and social processes of cultures other than the culture of the United States. Learning which recognizes the nature of others cultures and the relationship of America's cultural system to generic human goals and welfare will help create the multicultural and global perspective necessary for effective interaction in the human community.

Courses which meet the requirement in global awareness are of one or more of the following types: (1) in-depth area studies which are concerned with an examination of culture-specific elements of a region of the world, country, or culture group, (2) the study of contemporary non-English language courses that have a significant cultural component, (3) comparative cultural studies with an emphasis on non-U.S. areas, and (4) in-depth studies of non-U.S. centered cultural interrelationships of global scope such as the global interdependence produced by problems of world ecology, multinational corporations, migration, and the threat of nuclear war.

COURSE DESCRIPTION:

Powerful spirits, vengeful ghosts, prophetic dreams, and monstrous creatures—stories of such oddities abound in Chinese literature. Among the earliest examples of Chinese narrative, these so-called “tales of the strange” (zhiguai) have maintained their popularity for almost two thousand years.

In this course participants will explore these tales in translation and in doing so explore medieval Chinese conceptions of the body and soul(s), the afterlife, and the precarious relationship between the living and the dead. Materials will include original stories in translation, scholarly works, and modern re-interpretations of these tales and their content in film and other media.

Commented [LW1]: For Item 1 and 2A

All lectures, assignments, and reading materials will be provided in English and no knowledge of Chinese is required.

LEARNING OUTCOMES:

With the successful completion of this course, participants will be able to:

- communicate and define fundamental elements of traditional Chinese short stories
- define medieval and modern interpretations of religious Chinese ideas (including Buddhist and Daoist elements)
- read and analyze scholarly works on Chinese religion and literature
- compose short analytical papers on topics derived from and related to supernatural tales in clear, analytical English prose
- constructively revise and improve their work throughout the semester—a critical part of the writing process
- express their appreciation of one of the great cultural traditions and recognize its influence in other cultures in East Asia

- exchange ideas in a respectful and open-minded manner with peers from a wide-variety of backgrounds and experiences

Commented [LW2]: For Item 2A

REQUIRED BOOKS:

There are no required texts for this course. All material will be provided on Blackboard or via course reserve.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS:

1) As the title suggests this is a reading-heavy course and students are expected to have completed the assigned material before each class session and to be prepared to discuss what they have read. Occasional lectures will be given if additional historical or religious background is required but the emphasis will be on discussion and interpretation of stories of the supernatural and their cultural context.

2) The course will be comprised of the following units, each of which explores one aspect of the ghost story in its traditional Chinese form:

- a) The formation of supernatural narratives (what is a ghost story?)
- b) The Chinese conception of the body and soul(s)
- c) Gender and depictions of the supernatural
- d) Dreams and the ephemeral
- e) Animals and oddities
- f) Religious tales of the strange
- g) Scholars and beauties
- h) Modern interpretations of the ghost story

3) For each class students are expected to bring a card containing a short (2-3 sentence) response to the readings assigned for that day. This passport will demonstrate that students have completed the readings in advance and that they have given some thought to the material that will be covered for that day.

4) Attendance is mandatory and your participation in class is heavily factored into your final score (20%). Your grade is determined not only from your attendance, but also from your submission of your passport as well as your participation in class. Asking and answering questions and taking part in group and class discussions are all important elements of your final grade.

5) You are allowed three (3) unexcused absences throughout the semester. If you cannot attend class (family emergency, illness, etc.) be sure to contact your instructor and provide documentation when possible. For every five (5) unexcused absences your grade will be lowered by one letter grade.

6) Late assignments are subjected to a penalty of 20% per day. If there is an emergency or you are unable to submit your assignment for a valid reason, contact your instructor and they will discuss your options. If you are unable to submit an assignment or attend class due to religious obligations be sure to contact your instructor at least three (3) days in advance. If you are engaged in a University sanctioned activity (see here) be sure to discuss your schedule with your instructor at the soonest possible convenience.

ASSIGNMENTS:

- 1) Throughout the semester participants will complete three (3) essays on a range of subjects related to the readings and scholarly materials in the class.
- 2) The first assignment will consist of a short reaction essay (3-4 pages, approx. 1500 words) in which you reflect on the readings and discussion in class through a specific prompt.
- 3) The second assignment will see you examining an overriding theme present in several of the tales that we have read thus far. You will write a short essay (4-5 pages, approx. 2000 words) in which you draw upon the scholarly readings, in-class discussions, as well as a series of stories to explore a general topic as it pertains to Chinese ghost narratives.
- 4) For the final assignment, you will choose a story from a provided list and write an investigative report (4-5 pages, approx. 2000 words) of the tale in which you examine it from a variety of possible angles, including but not limited to: use of language, characterization, themes, imagery, religion, gender, history, etc. You will also provide a brief description of the text it derives from, a biography of the author (if known), and a brief summary of the tale itself. Your goal is to present your story to a potential reader and to provide them with all necessary information to understand its content. Your paper should include a clear argument in which you examine one of the above themes as it pertains to your story and should make good use of the original text throughout.
- 5) Revision is an important part of the writing process. After submitting your first draft for each paper you will receive detailed feedback from your instructor. You are expected to revise your papers to correct marked errors in order to receive full credit. Twice during the semester (for the first and second assignment) participants will work in peer review sessions where they will offer suggestions to fellow classmates on their paper drafts. Participation in these sessions during the class will count towards 10% of your overall class grade.
- 6) Near the end of the semester you will carry out a short (7-8 minute) presentation in which you present your paper topic, approach, findings, as well as the story that it is based upon to your classmates. This presentation will allow you to clarify your thoughts on your paper, incorporate feedback from your instructor and peers, as well as expose your classmates to your story, its themes, characters, and events.

GRADING:

Attendance/Participation = 25% (15% in-class participation, 10% passport)
Written Essays = 40% (15% x 2 + 5% per first draft)
Peer Review + Revision = 10% (5% x 2)
Final Paper + Presentation = 25% (20% + 5%)

Based on the percentage scores, the final letter grades are awarded in the following scale:

97 to 100 A+
93 to 96 A
90 to 92 A-
87 to 89 B+
83 to 86 B
80 to 82 B-
75 to 79 C+
70 to 74 C
60 to 70 D
Below 60 E

COURSE AND UNIVERSITY POLICIES:

Withdrawals and Incompletes:

In the case of a withdrawal or incomplete grade you should discuss your options with your academic advisor. The University provides general guidelines for these options here: <http://www.asu.edu/aad/catalogs/general/ug-enrollment.html#grading-system>

Student Conduct and Academic Integrity:

ASU expects and requires its students to act with honesty, integrity, and respect. Required behavior standards are listed in the Student Code of Conduct and Student Disciplinary Procedures, Computer, Internet, and Electronic Communications policy, ASU Student Academic Integrity Policy, and outlined by the Office of Student Rights & Responsibilities. Plagiarism may be the most common form of academic dishonesty and is often unintentional. Protect yourself by understanding how to avoid plagiarism with these resources:

The Governors of Acadia University's interactive video on plagiarism

The Purdue Online Writing Lab's (OWL) Avoiding Plagiarism

Anyone in violation of these policies is subject to sanctions.

Students are entitled to receive instruction free from interference by other members of the class. An instructor may withdraw a student from the course when the student's behavior disrupts the educational process per Instructor Withdrawal of a Student for Disruptive Classroom Behavior. Appropriate online behavior (also known as netiquette) is defined by the instructor and includes keeping course discussion posts focused on the assigned topics. Students must maintain a cordial atmosphere and use tact in expressing differences of opinion. Inappropriate discussion board posts may be deleted by the instructor.

The Office of Student Rights and Responsibilities accepts incident reports from students, faculty, staff, or other persons who believe that a student or a student organization may have violated the Student Code of Conduct.

Accommodation for Religious Practice:

ASU provides for reasonable accommodation of religious practices in order to prevent discrimination against any individual on the basis of that individual's religious beliefs or practices, or absence thereof. Students should notify faculty at the beginning of the semester about the need to be absent from class due to religious observances. For more information see the university policy here.

Title IX:

Title IX is a federal law that provides that no person be excluded on the basis of sex from participation in, be denied benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity. Both Title IX and university policy make clear that sexual violence and harassment based on sex is prohibited. An individual who believes they have been subjected to sexual violence or harassed on the basis of sex can seek support, including counseling and academic support, from the university. If you or someone you know has been harassed on the basis of sex or sexually assaulted, you can find information and resources at <http://sexualviolenceprevention.asu.edu/faqs/students>.

Content Advisory:

Certain materials in this course discuss sex, gender issues, depictions of violence, the nature and formation of the body, and religious elements both from Western and Chinese writings. If you are uncomfortable with such discussion, please notify the instructor.

Accessibility Statement:

In compliance with the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, Section 504, and the Americans with Disabilities Act as amended (ADAAA) of 2008, professional disability specialists and support staff at the Disability Resource Center (DRC) facilitate a comprehensive range of academic support services and accommodations for qualified students with disabilities.

Qualified students with disabilities may be eligible to receive academic support services and accommodations. Eligibility is based on qualifying disability documentation and assessment of individual need. Students who believe they have a current and essential need for disability accommodations are responsible for requesting accommodations and providing qualifying documentation to the DRC. Every effort is made to provide reasonable accommodations for qualified students with disabilities.
