Title: Religion and Conflicts in Southeast Asia
Units: 3

Course description:
This course engages the students in exploring religions and conflicts in Southeast Asia, historically, politically and ethnically. The students will review the religious diversity, interaction, conflicts and resolution efforts particularly in Indonesia, Malaysia, Myanmar, the Philippines, and Thailand based on available studies, reports, and policies. This course will involve the students in understanding approaches to the study of religions and conflicts, including the relationship between state and religion, secularism and religiously, religious liberalism/moderation versus radicalism/extremism as well as historical and ethnicity issues. The class will also examine the consequences of religiously related conflicts in terms of religious freedom, human right, and humanity in general. The students are required to have very good English communicative skills that will enhance their presentations and help apply their critical skills in the inquiry and analysis of the topics. In addition to active participation in class discussions and a mid-term exam, the students will write monthly review essays, give one individual class presentation, and complete a final research project paper on issues related to the topics of the class.

Is this a cross-listed course? Yes
Is this a shared course? No
If yes, please identify course(s): contacted
If so, list all academic units offering this course:

Note: For courses that are crosslisted and/or shared, a letter of support from the chair/director of each department that offers the course is required for each designation requested. By submitting this letter of support, the chair/director agrees to ensure that all faculty teaching the course are aware of the General Studies designation(s) and will teach the course in a manner that meets the criteria for each approved designation.

Is this a permanent-numbered course with topics? No
If yes, all topics under this permanent-numbered course must be taught in a manner that meets the criteria for the approved designation(s). It is the responsibility of the chair/director to ensure that all faculty teaching the course are aware of the General Studies designation(s) and adhere to the above guidelines.

Requested designation: Global Awareness—G
Chair/Director Initials
Mandatory Review: No

Note: a separate proposal is required for each designation.

Eligibility: Permanent numbered courses must have completed the university’s review and approval process. For the rules governing approval of omnibus courses, contact Phyllis.Lucie@asu.edu.

Submission deadlines dates are as follow:
For Fall 2019 Effective Date: October 5, 2018
For Spring 2020 Effective Date: March 8, 2019

Area(s) proposed course will serve:
A single course may be proposed for more than one core or awareness area. A course may satisfy a core area requirement and more than one awareness area requirements concurrently, but may not satisfy requirements in two core areas simultaneously, even if approved for those areas. With departmental consent, an approved General Studies course may be counted toward both the General Studies requirement and the major program of study.

Checklists for general studies designations:
Complete and attach the appropriate checklist

Literacy and Critical Inquiry core courses (L)
Mathematics core courses (MA)
Computer/statistics/quantitative applications core courses (CS)
Humanities, Arts and Design core courses (HU)
Social-Behavioral Sciences core courses (SB)
Natural Sciences core courses (NS/SG)
Cultural Diversity in the United States courses (C)
Global Awareness courses (G)
Historical Awareness courses (H)

A complete proposal should include:
- Signed course proposal cover form
- Criteria checklist for General Studies designation being requested
- Course catalog description
- Sample syllabus for the course

Rationale and Objectives

Human organizations and relationships have evolved from being family and village centered to modern global interdependence. The greatest challenge in the nuclear age is developing and maintaining a global perspective which fosters international cooperation. While the modern world is comprised of politically independent states, people must transcend nationalism and recognize the significant interdependence among peoples of the world. The exposure of students to different cultural systems provides the background of thought necessary to developing a global perspective.

Cultural learning is present in many disciplines. Exposure to perspectives on art, business, engineering, music, and the natural and social sciences that lead to an understanding of the contemporary world supports the view that intercultural interaction has become a daily necessity. The complexity of American society forces people to balance regional and national goals with global concerns. Many of the most serious problems are world issues and require solutions which exhibit mutuality and reciprocity. No longer are hunger, ecology, health care delivery, language planning, information exchanges, economic and social developments, law, technology transfer, philosophy, and the arts solely national concerns; they affect all the people of the world. Survival may be dependent on the ability to generate global solutions to some of the most pressing problems.

The word university, from universitas, implies that knowledge comes from many sources and is not restricted to local, regional, or national perspectives. The Global Awareness Area recognizes the need for an understanding of the values, elements, and social processes of cultures other than the culture of the United States. Learning which recognizes the nature of others cultures and the relationship of America's cultural system to generic human goals and welfare will help create the multicultural and global perspective necessary for effective interaction in the human community.

Courses which meet the requirement in global awareness are of one or more of the following types: (1) in-depth area studies which are concerned with an examination of culture-specific elements of a region of the world, country, or culture group, (2) the study of contemporary non-English language courses that have a significant cultural component, (3) comparative cultural studies with an emphasis on non-U.S. areas, and (4) in-depth studies of non-U.S. centered cultural interrelationships of global scope such as the global interdependence produced by problems of world ecology, multinational corporations, migration, and the threat of nuclear war.

1. Studies must be composed of subject matter that addresses or leads to an understanding of the contemporary world outside the U.S.

2. The course must match at least one of the following descriptions: (check all which may apply):

   a. In-depth area studies which are concerned with an examination of culture-specific elements of a region, country or culture group. The area or culture studied must be non-U.S. and the study must contribute to an understanding of the contemporary world.

   b. The course is a language course for a contemporary non-English language, and has a significant cultural component.

   c. The course is a comparative cultural study in which most, i.e., more than half, of the material is devoted to non-U.S. areas.

   d. The course is a study of the cultural significance of a non-U.S.-centered global issue. The course examines the role of its target issue within each culture and the interrelatedness of various global cultures on that issue. It looks at the cultural significance of its issue in various cultures outside the U.S., both examining the issue's place within each culture and the effects of that issue on world cultures.”

CATALOG DESCRIPTION:
This course engages the students in exploring religions and conflicts in Southeast Asia, historically, politically and ethnically. The students review studies on roots, resolution efforts, and consequences of these conflicts as well as write and present an analytical paper on religiously related conflicts in the region.

COURSE DESCRIPTION:
This course engages the students in exploring religions and conflicts in Southeast Asia, historically, politically and ethnically. The students will review the religious diversity, interaction, conflicts and resolution efforts particularly in Indonesia, Malaysia, Neymar, The Philippines, and Thailand based on available studies, reports, and policies. This course will involve the students in understanding approaches to the study of religions and conflicts, including the relationship between state and religion, secularism and religiosity, religious liberalism/moderation versus radicalism/extremism as well as historical and ethnicity issues. The class will also examine the consequences of religiously related conflicts in terms of religious freedom, human right, and humanity in general. The students are required to have very good English communicative skills that will enhance their presentations and help apply their critical skills in the inquiry and analysis of the topics. In addition to active participation in class discussions and a mid-term exam, the students will write monthly review essays, give one individual class presentation, and complete a final research project paper on issues related to the topics of the class.

PRE-REQUISITE:
ENG 102 or ENG 105 or ENG 107 with a B or better and 45 credit hours.
LEARNING OUTCOMES:

1. Explain historically, politically, and/or ethnically the religiously related conflicts in Southeast Asian countries, especially Indonesia, Malaysia, Neymar, The Philippines, and Thailand.
2. Compare religious conflicts in selected Southeast Asian countries and discuss their success/failure in their resolution efforts.
3. Describe relationships and conflicts among different Islamic groups in Indonesia and Malaysia.
4. Identify various consequences of religiously related conflicts in terms of human rights, religious freedom and humanity, by discussing issues of violence, refugees, displacement, and possible genocides.

3) Description of the Assignments:

   A. Class participation and Group Discussion
   In addition to attendance, each student is expected to contribute to the exchanges of ideas in a group discussion. To participate actively in this group interaction, students must have read the materials before coming to class.
B. Monthly Essays Guideline

Students must follow the basic four/five-paragraph-one page-(400 words minimum) essay setting using a simple and straightforward template, as follows:

- First Paragraph: Introduction
  Identify your topic and explain your purpose why you choose this topic from the materials covered in class.
- Second Paragraph: Content part A
  Expand your statement in the introduction with a snapshot of the background information on the available arguments and explains the relevant issues.
- Third Paragraph: Content Part B
  Provides evaluation with evidence and support to defend your claims.
- Fourth Paragraph: Content Part C (optional)
  State possible counter-claims and disagreements and discuss how you handle opposition to your arguments.
- Fifth Paragraph: Conclusion.
  Summarize the introduction and restates the body. You may also suggest further discussion/research, but no new idea.

C. Final Project Paper Guidelines:

You can expand one of your essays into your final project research paper, following the same sequence but with a possible different structure, sorting out irrelevant facts and ideas. Your paper should have the following structure:

1) Title: Follow principles of creating a paper title, e.g. the right length, predicting the content; interesting, and containing the key words.
2) Abstract: create a short summary of your paper, e.g. your main objectives, content arguments and conclusion.
3) Introduction – state why your topic is interesting, summarize what you are going to do with it, make it catchy and grabbing the readers’ attention.
4) Literature Review – Described your topic in more details by explaining the works done in areas related to the topic, showing that you have done your readings and are aware of the relevant data and arguments.
5) The Body:
   a) Method: Since this is a library research, you will only have to describe your readings and collections of a) available research by scholars, d) data by scholars and institutions (e.g. statistics on religious groups), credible news reports, laws and regulation related to religious issues, etc. This does not have to be long.
   b) Result: Here you have to your findings from your readings and data collection: present argumentations based on previous/available research, statistical data, government regulations, and reports, etc. Organize this section so that it helps with the flow of your arguments.

c) Discussion: Here, you have to show your analytical skills in your presentation. You will have to show your sound opinion by discussing the argumentations and contestations of different positions on the conflicts discussed.

6) Conclusion: Here, you state your goal and summarize the body of the paper, reiterating your analytical argument. You should also suggest further discussion/research on the topic.

7) References: You must have at least five solid references consisting books and articles, in addition to any online materials of reports, government documents, etc. You must consistently follow either Chicago, MLA, or APA manual for writing your paper.

TECHNICAL SUPPORTS, REQUIREMENTS, & UNIVERSITY POLICIES

1) Technical Requirements
This course uses Canvas. Non-copyrighted materials will be uploaded into Canvas. This course requires that you have access to a computer that can access the Internet. You are responsible for having a reliable computer and Internet connection throughout the course to view announcements and assignments.

2) Email and Internet
You must have an active ASU e-mail account and access to the Internet. All instructor correspondence will go to your ASU e-mail account. Please plan to check your ASU email account regularly for course related messages.

3) Attendance/Participation
Preparation for class means reading the assigned readings & reviewing all information required for that week. Each student must actively participated in class group discussions based on the reading materials and lectures.

4) Late or Missed Assignments
All assignments must be finished and turned in to complete the course. Unless the instructor is notified before the assignment is due, and provides an opportunity for the student to submit his/her assignment late, points may be taken off for a late assignment.

5) Submitting Assignments
Students must submit all assignments via Canvas, unless otherwise specified by the instructor. Each assignment will have a designated place to submit the assignment.
6) Drop and Add Dates
If you feel it is necessary to withdraw from the course, please see University Registrar Services: How to Drop/Add and Withdraw for full details on the types of withdrawals that are available and their procedures.

7) Subject to Change Notice
All materials, assignments, and deadlines are subject to change. It is the student’s responsibility to be aware of all course timelines, announcements, and communications from his or her instructor pertaining to changes in course assignments and due dates.

8) Academic Integrity
Academic honesty is expected of all students in all examinations, papers, laboratory work, academic transactions and records. The possible sanctions include, but are not limited to, appropriate grade penalties, course failure (indicated on the transcript as a grade of E), course failure due to academic dishonesty (indicated on the transcript as a grade of XE), loss of registration privileges, disqualification and dismissal. For more information, please visit ASU Academic Integrity.

9) Student Conduct Statement
Students are required to adhere to the behavior standards listed in Arizona Board of Regents Policy Manual Chapter V – Campus and Student Affairs: Code of Conduct, ACD 125: Computer, Internet, and Electronic Communications, and the ASU Student Rights and Responsibilities.

Students are entitled to receive instruction free from interference by other members of the class. If a student is disruptive, an instructor may ask the student to stop the disruptive behavior and warn the student that such disruptive behavior can result in withdrawal from the course. An instructor may withdraw a student from a course when the student’s behavior disrupts the educational process under USI 201-10.

10) Appropriate classroom behavior is defined by the instructor
This includes the number and length of individual messages online. Course discussion messages should remain focused on the assigned discussion topics. Students must maintain a cordial atmosphere and use tact in expressing differences of opinion. Inappropriate discussion board messages may be deleted if an instructor feels it is necessary. Students will be notified privately that their posting was inappropriate.

Student access to the course Send Email feature may be limited or removed if an instructor feels that students are sending inappropriate electronic messages to other students in the course.

11) Syllabus Disclaimer
The course syllabus is an educational contract between the instructor and students. Every effort will be made to avoid changing the course schedule but the possibility exists that unforeseen events will make syllabus changes necessary. The instructor reserves the right to make changes to the syllabus as deemed necessary. Students will be notified in a timely manner of any syllabus changes via email, or in the Announcements. Please remember to check your ASU email and the Announcements as often as possible.

12) Accessibility Statement
In compliance with the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, Section 504, and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, professional disability specialists and support staff at the Disability Resource Centers (DRC) facilitate a comprehensive range of academic support services and accommodations for qualified students with disabilities. DRC staff coordinate transition from high schools and community colleges, in-service training for faculty and staff, resolution of accessibility issues, community outreach, and collaboration between all ASU campuses regarding disability policies, procedures, and accommodations. Students who wish to request an accommodation for a disability should contact the Disability Resource Center (DRC) for their campus.

13) Reporting Title IX violations
Title IX is a federal law that provides that no person be excluded on the basis of sex from participation in, be denied benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity. Both Title IX and university policy make clear that sexual violence and harassment based on sex is prohibited. An individual who believes they have been subjected to sexual violence or harassed on the basis of sex can seek support, including counseling and academic support, from the university. If you or someone you know has been harassed on the basis of sex or sexually assaulted, you can find information and resources at https://sexualviolenceprevention.asu.edu/faqs.

14) Policy on Sexual Discrimination
Arizona State University is committed to providing an environment free of discrimination, harassment, or retaliation for the entire university community, including all students, faculty members, staff employees, and guests. ASU expressly prohibits discrimination, harassment, and retaliation by employees, students, contractors, or agents of the university based on any protected status: race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, sexual orientation, gender identity, and genetic information.

As a mandated reporter, I am obligated to report any information I become aware of regarding alleged acts of sexual discrimination, including sexual violence and dating violence. ASU Counseling Services, https://eoss.asu.edu/counseling, is available if you wish discuss any concerns confidentially and privately.

15) Copyrighted materials
A warning to students that they must refrain from uploading to any course shell, discussion board, or website used by the course instructor or other course forum, material that is not the student's original work, unless the students first comply with all applicable copyright laws; faculty members reserve the right to delete materials on the grounds of suspected copyright infringement.
