Rationale and Objectives

The humanities disciplines are concerned with questions of human existence and meaning, the nature of thinking and knowing, with moral and aesthetic experience. The humanities develop values of all kinds by making the human mind more supple, critical, and expansive. They are concerned with the study of the textual and artistic traditions of diverse cultures, including traditions in literature, philosophy, religion, ethics, history, and aesthetics. In sum, these disciplines explore the range of human thought and its application to the past and present human environment. They deepen awareness of the diversity of the human heritage and its traditions and histories and they may also promote the application of this knowledge to contemporary societies.

The study of the arts and design, like the humanities, deepens the student’s awareness of the diversity of human societies and cultures. The arts have as their primary purpose the creation and study of objects, installations, performances and other means of expressing or conveying aesthetic concepts and ideas. Design study concerns itself with material objects, images and spaces, their historical development, and their significance in society and culture. Disciplines in the arts and design employ modes of thought and communication that are often nonverbal, which means that courses in these areas tend to focus on objects, images, and structures and/or on the practical techniques and historical development of artistic and design traditions. The past and present accomplishments of artists and designers help form the student’s ability to perceive aesthetic qualities of art work and design.

The Humanities, Arts and Design are an important part of the General Studies Program, for they provide an opportunity for students to study intellectual and imaginative traditions and to observe and/or learn the production of art work and design. The knowledge acquired in courses fulfilling the Humanities, Arts and Design requirement may encourage students to investigate their own personal philosophies or beliefs and to understand better their own social experience. In sum, the Humanities, Arts and Design core area enables students to broaden and deepen their consideration of the variety of human experience.

1. Genre Theory
   A. Definitions of Genre
Welcome Statement and Elaboration on This Course’s Content, Organization, Requirements, and Purposes:

ENH277AA – ENH277AK each pertain to the study of a different modality of genre. Listed in numerical order, these are: dystopian, mystery, children’s, action, war, fantasy, science fiction, horror, comedy, romance, and western narrative. This course, ENH277AE: Tour of Duty: War Narrative, explores the ways in which written, spoken, sung, painted, sculpted, filmed, and erected texts (1) frame, (2) respond to, and (3) give meaning to experiences of war. These three dimensions are studied and considered through attention to formal organization, rhetorical structure, and thematic content, respectively.

Genres offer a scaffolding for the interpretation of meaning and the understanding of experience that traverses cultural, temporal, and geographic divides. They are not mere contents, though. They are vessels that, as notes John Frow, author of Genre: The New Critical Idiom, are, “central to human meaning-making and to the social struggle over meanings” (10).

Among the deadly conflicts covered, listed in chronological order, are: the Kurukṣhetra War in India (3102 BCE), the Trojan War (1194–1184 BC), the Battle of Thermopylae (480 BCE), the Umayyad conquest of Hispania (711–717 A.D.), the Siege of Jerusalem (1187), the Siege of Malta (1565), the Patriotic War (1812), the Crimean War (1853–1856), the American Civil War (1860–1865), the Battle of Little Bighorn (1876), the Second Boer War (1899–1902), World War I (1914–1918), World War II (1939–1945), the Cold War (1947–1991), the Algerian War (1954–1962), the Vietnam War (1955–1975), the Rwandan Civil War (1990–1994), the Bosnian War (1992–1995), the War on Terrorism (2001–Present), and the Iraq War (2003–2011). These selections represent different types of war as well as locations.

Traditional approaches to genre have been taxonomic. Aristotle’s divided literary works into the triad of the epic (or narrative), the dramatic, and the lyric. Over the centuries, elaborations and clarifications of these three basic forms proliferated. Stylistically, the epic mode has, for instance, been said to manifest in lucid and detached narration; the dramatic, in personal action; and the lyric, in personal experience. As regards point of view, the epic supposedly corresponds to speaking about another; the dramatic, to speaking as another; and the lyric, to speaking as oneself. The epic expressed knowledge primarily; the dramatic, the will; and the lyric, feeling. For classificatory purposes in this course, genres of war narrative will be considered as “primarily” epic, tragic, or comedic. No work, however, ever “belongs” exclusively to any of these categories. A genre, in other words, is not merely a form. It is a text produced by and negotiated between and across discourse communities. It is “based in a ‘situation’”—in this case war—“and ‘acquires meaning’ from it; it ‘embodies’ it and is ‘evoked’ by it, and at the same time it ‘provides a strategic response’ to it” (Frow, 15).

The study of genre, as such, is inherently comparative, cultural, and global in nature and scope. It teaches us the many ways in which there are to be human. This is especially so in this course, in that the curriculum incorporates three weeks of onsite, experiential learning in Malta as part of a study abroad program.

Course Content:

Of the eight textbooks required, four are from countries besides the United States. The anthology Standing Down also includes works written about war experiences of soldiers, veterans, and civilians from Greece, England, Russia, and Germany, among others. France and India are represented in the online reading packet, and, of the twenty-three films assigned, sixteen are from countries besides the United States. The course content is purposefully and inherently international in scope and emphasis.

Course Assessments:

Journal Entries on Assigned Films, Readings, and Video Games (30% of Final Grade):

These consist of 30-minutes sessions of free-writing in response to writing prompts.

Journal Entries on Experiential Learning in Malta (20% of Final Grade):

These consist of 30-minutes sessions of free-writing in response to people and places experienced in Malta.

Rough and Final Draft: A Structural Approach to the Cross-Cultural Study of Genre (20% of Final Grade):

Write a fifteen-page documented research paper on three war narratives, two of which originate in countries besides the United States, that approach the genre of war narrative from attitudes and discourses that are either “predominantly” tragic, comedic, or epic in nature and tone. For this assessment, choose three works that each represent a single genre. Your methodology is comparative. Your purpose is to show the ways in which cultures inform the production of genre.

Rough and Final Draft: A Rhetorical Approach to the Cross-Cultural Study of Genre (30% of Final Grade):

Western scholars did not hesitate to use the word ‘epic’ to refer to...The Mahabharata... It may at first seem dangerously inappropriate to apply a Western genre-term such as ‘epic’ to texts from a culture that recognizes no comparable genre, and that indeed assigns those texts to other genres; we may appear to be imposing our own exotic categories, when we should be endeavoring to understand and work within indigenous systems of categorization. However, genres are not categories. A category is an impermeable container... A genre, on the other hand, is more like a bundle of typical characteristics, not all of which need apply in every case; thus, a narrative may indeed be ‘rather novelistic,’ or a poem ‘rather romantic.’ Genre-terms are therefore available for making cross-cultural comparisons, and the question to be asked is not, ‘is this the correct genre to assign this text to?’ but rather, ‘is comparison with other texts within this genre fruitful?’

So writes John D. Smith in his “Introduction” (lxxv-1xxvi) to his translation of The Mahabharata, published in London by Penguin Classics in 2009. Write a fifteen-page documented research paper on three war narratives, two of which originate in countries besides the United States, that pertain either to the same war (e.g., World War I) or the same type of war (e.g., civil war). Your methodology is comparative. Your purpose is to show the ways in which genres retain similar structures and elements across cultural, geographic, and temporal divides. Incorporate into your work a response to Smith’s claims above regarding genre study.

Canvas: Learning Management System

MCC and other Maricopa Colleges use Canvas, an online learning management system. Whether your class is face-to-face, hybrid, or entirely online, you should access your course materials in Canvas.

- How to Access Canvas
- https://learn.maricopa.edu/

Student Email

You will need a student email account so that your instructor can communicate with you regarding course work and performance in this class. This is available to all MCC students at no charge. Contact your instructor through your Maricopa email or through Canvas. Emails from accounts other than Maricopa (Yahoo, msn, Hotmail) will go into spam and will delete immediately. For instructions, go to: Setting Up Your Maricopa Email

Submitting Assignments
All of the work for class will be submitted in Canvas. Always pay attention to the instructions and class discussions for prompts and guidelines about how to complete your work.

Backup Assignments

Always, always, always, retain a copy of everything that you submit. When working on your computer, save your work frequently and keep it on an external storage device such as a USB drive, CDRW (rewritable CD), or the Cloud in case your hard drive freezes up or gets infected by a virus. Copy and paste the instructions to assignments to your word processed document and then, once finished, upload your work to the Canvas. This precaution keeps you from losing work if, for any reason, the online server goes down.

Late or Missing Assignments

Please note in the section of the syllabus below entitled "Calendar" the times and dates by which assignments are due. Late work will receive a lowered grade. If you are unable, for any reason, to complete your work according to schedule, it is your responsibility to contact me immediately and explain why. At my discretion, I may authorize an adjustment in your due dates, though a late penalty of a reduced amount may still be applied.

Exam Procedures

There is no proctored examination for this course. The chapter tests will be submitted online in Canvas. The final examination consists of a film review submitted on Canvas.

Attendance Policy

Failure to come to class for three consecutive classes will result in your being withdrawn with a "W" (withdrawn passing). After the half-way point, you will be withdrawn and assigned an “F” for your final grade. The latter scenario will adversely affect your cumulative grade point average. Extenuating circumstances may warrant an exception, but effective communication is key. Don't just disappear. Keep lines of communication open.

Tardiness

A pattern of tardy arrivals is disruptive and will negatively impact your attendance and participation grade.

Financial Aid

If you are receiving financial aid of any kind, it is your responsibility to protect your eligibility to receive financial aid by meeting the requirements of this class. Know that more than two withdrawals per academic year may make you ineligible for more aid until the classes are made up.

Classroom Civility / Netiquette

MCCCD prohibits "any conduct which is harmful, obstructive, disruptive to, or interferes with the educational process..." Students, in other words, should conduct themselves in a way that engenders mutual respect and enhances learning. All communication in this course must be respectful. Rude and insulting language will not be tolerated and may form the grounds for dismissal. The same principles apply, whether the activity is taking place in a virtual or actual environment. Consult the peer review guide for appropriate feedback.
Always be cautious with irony, humor, and satire when communicating. Joking and teasing are easily misunderstood. The opportunity for failure is compounded in online exchanges. In such cases the :-) (or smiley) helps in that it substitutes for facial cues online and helps better convey your intended tone. As a rule, remove yourself from any situation in which you are experiencing anger. Give yourself some time and space to address the causes of your discomfiture in an appropriate manner. Don't commit your thoughts to print when you are feeling out of sorts. Avoiding writing in ALL CAPITALS, as this connotes shouting electronically. Above all, be polite and dialogue in a friendly manner.

You are additionally expected to behave in a responsible and cooperative manner. Part of becoming a better student is learning to appreciate the ideas and critiques of others.

In this class we need to come together as a community of learners in which ideas are shared and we learn by doing and explaining, not just by watching.

Plagiarism Warning

Your work should be original and, if done collaboratively, must represent your fair share of the workload. Any student whose work violates these principles will be subject to the MCCCD Academic Misconduct Policy (cheating, plagiarism). Copying phrases, sentences, paragraphs, or entire essays verbatim from the Internet or any other source without attribution (citations) constitutes plagiarism. Such behavior will result in a grade of zero on the assignment with no opportunity to resubmit work and may, depending on the severity of the transgression, result in a failing grade for the entire course. Please familiarize yourself with the sanctions against academic misconduct, which encompasses plagiarism, outlined in your student handbook. Be advised that your work may be submitted on a random basis to a plagiarism search engine to check for originality.

Further Guidelines for Academic Success

For every hour you spend in class, you should spend at least two (2) hours studying the material and completing your assignments.

Be aware that Rome was not built in a day. Quality work requires time, discipline, courage, dedication, and determination. This is no less the case in cooking or athletics than academics. Pace yourself. Find an environment that is conducive to learning and focusing. Plan ahead. Always allot yourself plenty of time in which to finish. Assume that whatever you do will invariably take twice as long as you anticipate.

Just because we are all in the same course, do not assume our familiarity with the material about which you are writing. (Some of your classmates, for instance, will not have viewed the same film.) Always err on the side of excess when it comes to providing background information and context and explaining specialized terminology. Support your observations or claims with ample evidence and examples. Impress your audience with authority gained by way of scholarship and, when appropriate, personal experience.

Here’s to hoping, as a result of your having taken this class, that you don’t end up feeling in regards to Arts and the Humanities what Beetle Bailey did in regards to his day.

Keep Your Records Up to Date

Please alert the Registrar of any changes in your address or phone number.

Statement of Student Responsibilities

It is your responsibility to understand the policies listed in this syllabus as these are the guidelines that your instructor will follow for grading, attendance, etc. It is also your responsibility to read and understand the college policies included in the MCC Student Handbook as they may apply to you in the case of an incomplete grade, withdraw for failure to attend, etc.

Institutional Learning Outcomes: MCC’S 4 Cs

Our goal at MCC is to excel in teaching and learning. We are here to empower individuals to succeed in their local and global community. As part of this commitment, Institutional Student Learning Outcomes (iSLOs) have been created with the goal of embedding educational experiences in all MCC courses. ISLOs are skills and knowledge students attain through courses and experiences. Students who complete a degree, program or certificate will know they leave MCC with these skills or knowledge. MCC’s iSLOs are known as MCC’s 4Cs. They are Critical Thinking, Communication, Civic Engagement, and Cultural and Global Engagement. The iSLO embedded into this course are Critical Thinking, Communication, and Cultural and Global Engagement. Visit the Student Learning Outcomes web page for more information.

Tuition Charges and Refunds

MCC will charge tuition and fees when a student is dropped from classes after the 100% refund period (whether through the purge process for non-payment or instructor removal for failure to attend). Dates for 100% refund vary based on the class start date. Look under “Refund Policy” in the Online Policy Manual to determine refund dates.

Early Alert Referral System (EARS)

Mesa Community College is committed to the success of all our students. Numerous campus support services are available throughout your academic journey to assist you in achieving your educational goals. MCC has adopted an Early Alert Referral System (EARS) as part of a student success initiative to aid students in their educational pursuits. Faculty and Staff participate by alerting and referring students to campus services for added support. Students may receive a follow up call from various campus services as a result of being referred to EARS. Students are encouraged to participate, but these services are optional. Early Alert Web Page with Campus Resource Information can be located at: http://www.mesacc.edu/students/ears or locate the "Early Alert" selection at the "MyMCC" link from MCC's home page.

I will require anyone receiving either a D or F on a writing assignment to see a tutor, either online or in person. Drop-in tutoring is available in the Learning Enhancement Center.

F-1 Students

If you are an F-1 student, I'm so glad that you're in my class! You bring diversity and a world perspective to the classroom, and that helps me to fulfill one of MCC's student outcomes: Cultural and Global Engagement. Please know that you must adhere to the attendance policy that is set for this class and is listed in this syllabus. If you are withdrawn by me for the class for non-attendance, I will not place you back into the class. If you earn a W or Y (for non-attendance) and this brings you below the required 12 credits that you need to maintain your F-1 status in the USA, I will not change your grade to an F. You are given the grade that you earn. If you fall out of status, you can go through a process called "F-1 Reinstatement" with the International Education (IE) Office located in Building 36N. IE regularly sends you messages to your MCC email regarding immigration matters. Be sure to check it regularly! They also check attendance reports for all F-1 students on a weekly basis. You are here in the USA to be a student on your F-1 full time study visa, and we'll help you to maintain that status.

College-Wide Online Class Student Survey

Near the end of this course, you may receive an invitation to complete a course survey via Canvas and your MCC email. Your constructive feedback plays an important role in shaping the quality education at MCC. All responses are completely confidential, and your name is not stored with your answers in any way. In addition, instructors will not see results from the survey until after final grades are submitted. Your participation is greatly appreciated. The course survey is only given in some MCC courses, so you may not receive a survey in all courses.

Disability Statement

Students with documented disabilities who would like to discuss possible accommodations should contact the MCC Disabilities Resources and Services Office at 480-461-7447 or email drsfrontdesk@mesacc.edu.

To ensure equal access, all required course materials provided in web links are expected to meet AA Standard of Compliance with the Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) 2.0. Students with disabilities must have an equally effective and equivalent educational opportunity as those students without disabilities. Students experiencing difficulty accessing course materials because of a disability are expected to contact the course instructor so that a solution can be found that provides all students equal access to course materials and technology.

The End

In times of crisis, we often turn to artists for truth-telling and memory-keeping. There is no greater crisis than war, and in this sumptuously illustrated volume, we find a comprehensive visual, cultural, and historical account of the ways in which armed conflict has been represented by artists.

Covering the last two centuries, from the Crimean War to the present day, the book shows how the artistic portrayal of war has changed, from a celebration of heroic exploits to a more modern, troubled, and perhaps truthful depiction of warfare and its consequences. The book investigates broad patterns as well as specific genres and themes of war art, and features more than 400 color illustrations by artists including Paul Nash, Judy Chicago, Pablo Picasso, Melanie Friend, Marc Chagall, Francis Bacon, Käthe Kollwitz, Joseph Beuys, Yves Klein, Robert Rauschenberg, Dora Meeson, Otto Dix, and many others. The volume also highlights the work of often overlooked artists, including children, non-Europeans, and prisoners of war. A wide range of subjects, from front-line combat to behind-the-lines wartime experiences are represented in paintings, etchings, photography, film, digital art, comics, and graffiti.

Edited and with an introduction by Joanna Bourke, War and Art features essays written by premier experts in the field. This extensive survey is a fitting and timely contribution to our understanding of art, memory, and commemoration of war.

Now in a thoroughly revised and updated edition, this classic text presents a comprehensive survey of the many alternative theories that attempt to explain the causes of interstate war. For each theory, Greg Cashman examines the arguments and counterarguments, considers the empirical evidence and counterevidence generated by social-science research, looks at historical applications of the theory, and discusses the theory’s implications for restraining international violence.

Among the questions he explores are: Are humans aggressive by nature? Do individual differences among leaders matter? How might poor decision making procedures lead to war? Why do leaders engage in seemingly risky and irrational policies that end in war? Why do states with internal conflicts seem to become entangled in wars with their neighbors? What roles do nationalism and ethnicity play in international conflict? What kinds of countries are most likely to become involved in war? Why have certain pairs of countries been particularly war-prone over the centuries? Can strong states deter war? Can we find any patterns in the way that war breaks out? How do balances of power or changes in balances of power make war more likely? Do social scientists currently have an answer to the question of what causes war?

Cashman examines theories of war at the individual, substate, nation-state, dyadic, and international systems level of analysis. Written in a clear and accessible style, this interdisciplinary text will be essential reading for all students of international relations.

The Red Badge of Courage is a war novel by American author Stephen Crane (1871–1900). Taking place during the American Civil War, the story is about a young private of the Union Army, Henry Fleming, who flees from the field of battle. Overcome with shame, he longs for a wound, a “red badge of courage," to counteract his cowardice. When his regiment once again faces the enemy, Henry acts as standard-bearer. Although Crane was born after the war, and had not at the time experienced battle first-hand, the novel is known for its realism. He began writing what would become his second novel in 1893, using various contemporary and written accounts (such as those published previously by Century Magazine) as inspiration. It is believed that he based the fictional battle on that of Chancellorsville; he may also have interviewed veterans of the 124th New York Volunteer Infantry Regiment, commonly known as the Orange Blossoms. Initially shortened and serialized in newspapers in December 1894, the novel was published in full in October 1895. A longer version of the work, based on Crane's original manuscript, was published in 1982. The novel is known for its distinctive style, which includes realistic battle sequences as well as the repeated use of color imagery, and ironic tone. Separating itself from a traditional war narrative, Crane's story reflects the inner experience of its protagonist (a soldier fleeing from combat) rather than the external world around him. Also notable for its use of what Crane called a "psychological portrayal of fear", the novel's allegorical and symbolic qualities are often debated by critics. Several of the themes that the story explores are maturation, heroism, cowardice, and the indifference of nature. The Red Badge of Courage garnered widespread acclaim, what H. G. Wells called "an orgy of praise", shortly after its publication, making Crane an instant celebrity at the age of twenty-four. The novel and its author did have their initial detractors, however, including author and veteran Ambrose Bierce. Adapted several times for the screen, the novel became a bestseller. It has never been out of print and is now thought to be Crane's most important work and a major American text.

Crowley, Roger. Empires of the Sea: The Siege of Malta, the Battle of Lepanto, and the Contest for the Center of the World.

In 1521, Suleiman the Magnificent, Muslim ruler of the Ottoman Empire, dispatched an invasion fleet to the Christian island of Rhodes. This would prove to be the opening shot in an epic clash between rival empires and faiths for control of the Mediterranean and the center of the world. In Empires of the Sea, acclaimed historian Roger Crowley has written a thrilling account of this brutal decades-long battle between Christendom and Islam for the soul of Europe, a fast-paced tale of spiraling intensity that ranges from Istanbul to the Gates of Gibraltar. Crowley conjures up a wild cast of pirates, crusaders, and religious warriors struggling for supremacy and survival in a tale of slavery and galley warfare, desperate bravery and utter brutality. Empires of the Sea is a story of extraordinary color and incident, and provides a crucial context for our own clash of civilizations.

Already an international sensation and prize-winning bestseller in France, this book tells an evocative coming-of-age story of a young boy, a lost childhood and a shattered homeland.

Burundi, 1992. For ten-year-old Gabriel, life in his comfortable expatriate neighborhood of Bujumbura with his French father, Rwandan mother and little sister Ana, is something close to paradise.

These are carefree days of laughter and adventure – sneaking Supermatch cigarettes and gorging on stolen mangoes – as he and his mischievous gang of friends transform their tiny cul-de-sac into their kingdom.

But dark clouds are gathering over this small country, and soon their peaceful existence will shatter when Burundi, and neighboring Rwanda, are brutally hit by civil war and genocide. A novel of extraordinary power and beauty, Small Country describes an end of innocence as seen through the eyes of a child caught in the maelstrom of history. Shot through with shadows and light, tragedy and humor, it is a stirring tribute not only to a dark chapter in Africa’s past, but also to the bright days that preceded it.

This second edition of John Frow’s Genre offers a comprehensive and accessible introduction to the area. Genre is a key means by which we categorize the many forms of literature and culture, but it is also much more than that: in talk and writing, in music and images, in film and television, genres actively generate and shape our knowledge of the world. Understanding genre as a dynamic process rather than a set of stable rules, this book explores:

- the relation of simple to complex genres
- the history of literary genre in theory
- the generic organisation of implied meanings
- the structuring of interpretation by genre
- the uses of genre in teaching.

John Frow’s lucid exploration of this fascinating concept has become essential reading for students of literary and cultural studies, and the second edition expands on the original to take account of recent debates in genre theory and the emergence of digital genres.

Huong, Duong Thu. Phan Huy Duong and Nina McPherson (translators). Novel without a Name.

Twenty-eight-year-old Quan has been fighting for the Communist cause in North Vietnam for a decade. Filled with idealism and hope when he first left his village, he now spends his days and nights dodging stray bullets and bombs, foraging scraps of food to feed himself and his men. Quan seeks comfort in childhood memories as he tries to sort out his conflicting feelings of patriotism and disillusionment. Then, given the chance to return to his home, Quan undertakes a physical and mental journey that brings him face to face with figures from his past—his angry father, his childhood sweetheart, his boyhood friends now maimed or dead—and ultimately to the shattering reality that his innocence has been irretrievably lost in the wake of the war. In a voice both lyrical and stark, Duong Thu Huong, one of Vietnam’s most beloved writers, powerfully conveys the conflict that spiritually destroyed her generation.

"Reminiscent of All Quiet on Western Front and The Red Badge of Courage. . . . A breathtakingly original work."—San Francisco Chronicle

"If it is a crime to take an unflinching look at the reality of war and life under a totalitarian regime, and to do it with great art and mastery, then Duong Thu Huong, is gloriously guilty."—The New York Times Book Review

Remarque, Erich Maria. All Quiet on the Western Front.

Paul Baumer enlisted with his classmates in the German army of World War I. Youthful, enthusiastic, they become soldiers. But despite what they have learned, they break into pieces under the first bombardment in the trenches. And as horrible war plods on year after year, Paul holds fast to a single vow: to fight against the principles of hate that meaninglessly pits young men of the same generation but different uniforms against each other—if only he can come out of the war alive.

"The world has a great writer in Erich Maria Remarque. He is a craftsman of unquestionably first rank, a man who can bend language to his will. Whether he writes of men or of inanimate nature, his touch is sensitive, firm, and sure." —The New York Times Book Review

Reflecting the decline in college courses on Western Civilization, Marshall Sahlins aims to accelerate the trend by reducing "Western Civ" to about two hours. He cites Nietzsche to the effect that deep issues are like cold baths; one should get into and out of them as quickly as possible. The deep issue here is the ancient Western specter of a presocial and antisocial human nature: a supposedly innate self-interest that is represented in our native folklore as the basis or nemesis of cultural order. Yet these Western notions of nature and culture ignore the one truly universal character of human sociality: namely, symbolically constructed kinship relations. Kinsmen are members of one another: they live each other's lives and die each other's deaths. But where the existence of the other is thus incorporated in the being of the self, neither interest, nor agency or even experience is an individual fact, let alone an egoistic disposition. "Sorry, beg your pardon," Sahlins concludes, Western society has been built on a perverse and mistaken idea of human nature.

Vonnegut, Kurt. Slaughterhouse-Five.

Slaughterhouse-Five, an American classic, is one of the world’s great antiwar books. Centering on the infamous firebombing of Dresden, Billy Pilgrim's odyssey through time reflects the mythic journey of our own fractured lives as we search for meaning in what we fear most.

Whitfield, Donald H., ed. Standing Down: From Warrior to Civilian.

Standing Down: From Warrior to Civilian was created for Talking Service, the Great Books Foundation's initiative to develop reading and discussion programs for veterans, as well as their families, friends, service providers, and caregivers. Standing Down includes: Forty-four selections, from Homer's Iliad to personal accounts of members of the service who have served in Iraq and Afghanistan. Fiction, nonfiction, poetry, essays, and memoirs that speak to past experiences, concerns, and aspirations of those who have served in the military and made the often-difficult transition back into civilian life.

Long before the office blocks and even the mosques, there was the church that stood alone against the skyline for a thousand years. Your way up onto its roof anytime in the Middle Ages, you would have been afforded an unimpeded view of the city. From here it is quite clear why Constantinople fell.

On the afternoon of May 29, 1453, the Ottoman Empire, made this ascent. It was the end of an era. His army had just taken the city by storm, prophesying and destroying the last vestiges of Byzantium. Mehmet climbed, in the words of the historian, "as the spirit of God ascending to the fourth heaven."

The sultan gazed upon a scene of melancholy. The city of Constantinople had been wrecked and thoroughly looted, as if by fire. The city's army had been ransacked; its last emperor had perished in the wilderness. Its men, women, and children were being rope-bound. Flags fluttered from empty buildings, a sign that the city's life had already gone. Above the pitiful wailing of the people, prayer rose in the spring air. It signaled the end of an era, the legitimization of another: the Ottoman Turks, a nomadic, tribal people who now consolidated the presence of Islam on the European continent they called Istanbul. Its capture confirmed the defeat of Byzantium and as the undisputed leader of the Muslim world.

From his vantage point the sultan could see the future of the Turkish people. To the south, beyond the salt lake Anatolia, Asia Minor, the road up which he had long migrated; to the north, Europe, the ob

The Western Illusion of Human Nature:
With Reflections on the Long History of Hierarchy, Equality, and the Sublimation of Anarchy in the West, and Comparative Notes on Other Conceptions of the Human Condition

Marshall Sahlins
Notice:

Over the past decade or two, courses on “Western Civilization” have been occupying a progressively smaller place in the curricula of American colleges. Here I attempt to accelerate the trend by reducing “Western Civ” to approximately three hours. My justification is the Nietzschean principle that big issues are like cold baths: one should get into and out of them as quickly as possible.
The Western Illusion of Human Nature by Marshall Sahlins has no Table of Contents. It does have sub-sections, though, titled as follows:

1. Introduction
2. Hobbes and Adams as Thucydideans
3. Ancient Greece
4. Alternative Concepts of the Human Condition
5. Medieval Monarchy
6. Renaissance Republics
7. Founding Fathers
8. The Moral Recuperation of Self-Interest
9. Other Human Worlds
10. Now Is the Whimper of Our Self-Contempt
11. Culture Is the Human Nature
Now is the whimper of our self-contempt. Indeed time and again for more than two millennia we in the West have been haunted by the specter of our own inner being: an apparition of human nature so avaricious and contentious that, unless it is somehow governed, it will reduce society to anarchy. I claim this is a specifically Western hangup, for it supposes an opposition of nature and culture that is distinctive of our own folklore (as well as our native Social Science) and contrastive to the many peoples who consider beasts are basically human rather than humans basically beasts. They have a point inasmuch as the modern human species, Homo sapiens, emerged relatively recently under the aegis of a much older human culture. By the paleontological evidence, we too are animal creatures of culture, endowed with the biology of our symbology. The idea that we are involuntary servants of our animal dispositions is an illusion—also originating in the culture.

MARSHALL SAHLINS is the Charles F. Grey Distinguished Service Professor Emeritus in the Department of Anthropology at the University of Chicago.
