Arizona State University Criteria Checklist for

GLOBAL AWARENESS [G]

Rationale and Objectives

Human organizations and relationships have evolved from being family and village centered to modern global interdependence. The greatest challenge in the nuclear age is developing and maintaining a global perspective which fosters international cooperation. While the modern world is comprised of politically independent states, people must transcend nationalism and recognize the significant interdependence among peoples of the world. The exposure of students to different cultural systems provides the background of thought necessary to developing a global perspective.

Cultural learning is present in many disciplines. Exposure to perspectives on art, business, engineering, music, and the natural and social sciences that lead to an understanding of the contemporary world supports the view that intercultural interaction has become a daily necessity. The complexity of American society forces people to balance regional and national goals with global concerns. Many of the most serious problems are world issues and require solutions which exhibit mutuality and reciprocity. No longer are hunger, ecology, health care delivery, language planning, information exchanges, economic and social developments, law, technology transfer, philosophy, and the arts solely national concerns; they affect all the people of the world. Survival may be dependent on the ability to generate global solutions to some of the most pressing problems.

The word university, from universitas, implies that knowledge comes from many sources and is not restricted to local, regional, or national perspectives. The Global Awareness Area recognizes the need for an understanding of the values, elements, and social processes of cultures other than the culture of the United States. Learning which recognizes the nature of others cultures and the relationship of America’s cultural system to generic human goals and welfare will help create the multicultural and global perspective necessary for effective interaction in the human community.

Courses which meet the requirement in global awareness are of one or more of the following types: (1) in-depth area studies which are concerned with an examination of culture-specific elements of a region of the world, country, or culture group, (2) the study of contemporary non-English language courses that have a significant cultural component, (3) comparative cultural studies with an emphasis on non-U.S. areas, and (4) in-depth studies of non-U.S. centered cultural interrelationships of global scope such as the global interdependence produced by problems of world ecology, multinational corporations, migration, and the threat of nuclear war.

Course Description:
This course explores the history of the Olympic Movement through the major topics and issues of our most recent Summer Olympics, the Rio 2016 Games. The course’s structure is both chronological and thematic, with Allen Guttmann’s The Olympics providing the chronology and journal articles and video lectures providing the themes. This course gives students the opportunity to dive deep into critical issues in the modern Olympic Games, like nationalism and internationalism, idealism, violence and peace, human rights and social justice, amateur and professional sport, elite performance and the transcendence of human limitations, ethics, entertainment and mega-event production, and ideas about the imagined global community. We will explore the International Olympic Committee, sports governing bodies, and the principles of Olympism as products of the turn of the twentieth century. We will analyze the ways in which the Games provide a window into the host nation’s local history as well as its ideals and ambitions. Finally, we will look at how Olympian bodies carry layers of meaning that conflict, contradict, remain, and change over time. Topics and assignments in this course ask students to pay special attention to ideas and structures concerning race, ethnicity, nationality, social class, gender, sexuality, and religion.

Course Requirements:
Students are responsible for all required media, and are expected to complete readings, video lectures, films, and assignments by 11:59pm Arizona time on the date next to which they are listed under “Course Schedule” (pp. 6-7) and in Canvas. The course includes two papers and five discussions. Students are expected to regularly check their email and Canvas, which will be updated frequently.

Discussions:
Each week, students will participate in class discussions in Canvas. Students will work from a provided list of questions to write essays for the first post, and reply to at least 2 other students to keep the conversation going. We will discuss topics within the context of the course and the information learned from assigned materials and video lectures. Further instructions and a grading rubric are provided in Canvas.

Papers:
The LA84 Foundation and the International Olympic Committee have made many primary source documents available and free online. In the first assignment, students will interpret the “Official Olympic Report” of two Summer Games that took place at least 30 years apart. In the second assignment, students will analyze an oral history interview with an Olympian as well as the “Official Olympic Film” of the Games in which the Olympian competed. Prompts for the two papers will include the grading rubric as well as instructions for formatting, citations, and submission in Canvas.

Late Policy:
Late assignments will receive a 10-percent reduction in grade per day (24-hour period).

Interacting with the Instructor:
My purpose is to be a resource for you as you proceed on your intellectual journey as an ASU student. I am happy to answer questions pertaining to the content of the course. If you have questions about assignments or the course structure, please consult the syllabus and course Canvas site before emailing me; you may be able to find the answer on your own. I will respond to all email messages within 24 hours.

Technology Issues and Problem Shooting:
The university provides many resources for you if you encounter technological problems. Visit MyASU for IT support. If there is an issue with the course Canvas site or assigned online media, please alert me to the issue. First, however, delete your browsing history and cookies, and try a different web browser (Chrome, IE, Firefox, Safari). If the issue with Canvas or assigned online media still occurs, please contact me.
Students with Disabilities:
Students who feel they will need disability accommodations in this class but have not registered with the Disability Resource Center (DRC) should contact DRC immediately. The DRC Tempe office is located on the first floor of the Matthews Center Building. DRC staff can also be reached at: (480) 965-1234 (V) or (480) 965-9000 (TTY). For additional information, visit: www.asu.edu/studentaffairs/ed/drc.

Academic Integrity Policy and Plagiarism:
Academic honesty is expected of all students in all examinations, papers, and laboratory work, academic transactions and records. The possible sanctions include, but are not limited to, appropriate grade penalties, course failure (indicated on the transcript as a grade of E), course failure due to academic dishonesty (indicated on the transcript as a grade of XE), loss of registration privileges, disqualification and dismissal. For more information, see http://provost.asu.edu/academicintegrity

ASU’s Policy on Threatening Behavior:
All incidents and allegations of violent or threatening conduct by an ASU student (whether on-or off campus) must be reported to the ASU Police Department (ASU PD) and the Office of the Dean of Students. If either office determines that the behavior poses or has posed a serious threat to personal safety or to the welfare of the campus, the student will not be permitted to return to campus or reside in any ASU residence hall until an appropriate threat assessment has been completed and, if necessary, conditions for return are imposed. ASU PD, the Office of the Dean of Students, and other appropriate offices will coordinate the assessment in light of the relevant circumstances.

ASU’s Title IX Policy:
Title IX is a federal law that provides that no person be excluded on the basis of sex from participation in, be denied benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any education program or activity. Both Title IX and university policy make clear that sexual violence and harassment based on sex is prohibited. An individual who believes they have been subjected to sexual violence or harassed on the basis of sex can seek support, including counseling and academic support, from the university. If you or someone you know has been harassed on the basis of sex or sexually assaulted, you can find information and resources at https://sexualviolenceprevention.asu.edu/faqs
As a mandated reporter, I am obligated to report any information I become aware of regarding alleged acts of sexual discrimination, including sexual violence and dating violence. ASU Counseling Services, https://eoss.asu.edu/counseling, is available if you wish discuss any concerns confidentially and privately.

A Note on Notetaking:
Studies demonstrate that taking notes improves comprehension and retention, performance on assignments, and, therefore, grades. More recent studies suggest that taking notes by hand may improve learning and retention more than digital notetaking. To succeed in this course, I highly recommend taking notes while watching video lectures, reading assigned texts, viewing films, and listening to podcasts.
