College/School: College of Liberal Arts and Sciences
Department/School: English
Prefix: EN
Number: 350
Title: Studies in Literary Histories and Traditions: Chaucer’s Canterbury Tales, Then and Now
Units: 3

Course Description: Course Catalogue: Studies of one or more literary traditions or historical movements.

Course Description: A detailed examination of the composition, manuscript presentation, genres, narrative techniques, cultural contexts, and some contemporary rewritings of many of the Canterbury Tales, one of the most important and brilliant collections of short narratives produced in the English language. We will read a sample of Chaucer’s courtly genres, fabliaux, and religious tales. Our major concentration will be on the comparative study of these narratives in two contexts: first, that of the parallel transmission of closely related stories in various versions throughout medieval Europe, and second, that of the continuing engagement with Chaucer’s narratives by modern and contemporary film makers and writers.

Is this a cross-listed course? No
If yes, please identify course(s):

Is this a shared course? No
If so, list all academic units offering this course:

Note- For courses that are crosslisted and/or shared, a letter of support from the chair/director of each department that offers the course is required for each designation requested. By submitting this letter of support, the chair/director agrees to ensure that all faculty teaching the course are aware of the General Studies designation(s) and will teach the course in a manner that meets the criteria for each approved designation.

Is this a permanent-numbered course with topics? Yes
If yes, each topic requires an individual submission, separate from other topics.

Requested designation: Literacy and Critical Inquiry–L
Mandatory Review: No

Note- a separate proposal is required for each designation.

Eligibility: Permanent numbered courses must have completed the university’s review and approval process. For the rules governing approval of omnibus courses, contact Phyllis.Lucie@asu.edu.

Submission deadlines dates are as follow:
For Fall 2020 Effective Date: October 10, 2019
For Spring 2021 Effective Date: March 5, 2020

Area proposed course will serve:
A single course may be proposed for more than one core or awareness area. A course may satisfy a core area requirement and more than one awareness area requirements concurrently, but may not satisfy requirements in two core areas simultaneously, even if approved for those areas. With departmental consent, an approved General Studies course may be counted toward both the General Studies requirement and the major program of study. It is the responsibility of the chair/director to ensure that all faculty teaching the course are aware of the General Studies designation(s) and adhere to the above guidelines.

Checklists for general studies designations:
Complete and attach the appropriate checklist

- Literacy and Critical Inquiry core courses (L)
- Mathematics core courses (MA)
- Computer/statistics/quantitative applications core courses (CS)
- Humanities, Arts and Design core courses (HU)
- Social-Behavioral Sciences core courses (SB)
- Natural Sciences core courses (SQ/SG)
- Cultural Diversity in the United States courses (C)
- Global Awareness courses (G)
- Historical Awareness courses (H)

A complete proposal should include:
- ✔ Signed course proposal cover form
- ✔ Criteria checklist for General Studies designation being requested
- ✔ Course catalog description
- ✔ Sample syllabus for the course
- ✔ Copy of table of contents from the textbook and list of required readings/books

It is respectfully requested that proposals are submitted electronically with all files compiled into one PDF.

Rationale and Objectives

Literacy is here defined broadly as communicative competence—that is, competence in written and oral discourse. Critical inquiry involves the gathering, interpretation, and evaluation of evidence. Any field of university study may require unique critical skills that have little to do with language in the usual sense (words), but the analysis of written and spoken evidence pervades university study and everyday life. Thus, the General Studies requirements assume that all undergraduates should develop the ability to reason critically and communicate using the medium of language.

The requirement in Literacy and Critical Inquiry presumes, first, that training in literacy and critical inquiry must be sustained beyond traditional First Year English in order to create a habitual skill in every student; and, second, that the skill levels become more advanced, as well as more secure, as the student learns challenging subject matter. Thus, two courses beyond First Year English are required in order for students to meet the Literacy and Critical Inquiry requirement.

Most lower-level [L] courses are devoted primarily to the further development of critical skills in reading, writing, listening, speaking, or analysis of discourse. Upper-division [L] courses generally are courses in a particular discipline into which writing and critical thinking have been fully integrated as means of learning the content and, in most cases, demonstrating that it has been learned.

Notes:

1. ENG 101, 107 or ENG 105 must be prerequisites
2. Honors theses, XXX 493 meet [L] requirements
3. The list of criteria that must be satisfied for designation as a Literacy and Critical Inquiry [L] course is presented on the following page. This list will help you determine whether the current version of your course meets all of these requirements. If you decide to apply, please attach a current syllabus, or handouts, or other documentation that will provide sufficient information for the General Studies Council to make an informed decision regarding the status of your proposal.

The feedback on the short paper and the oral presentation occurs with enough time to be helpful to students in formulating their term paper.</td>

Description

A detailed examination of the composition, manuscript presentation, genres, narrative techniques, cultural contexts, and some contemporary rewritings of many of the Canterbury Tales, one of the most important and brilliant collections of short narratives produced in the English language. We will read a sample of Chaucer’s courtly genres, fabliaux, and religious tales. Our major concentration will be on the comparative study of these narratives in two contexts: first, that of the parallel transmission of closely related stories in various versions throughout medieval Europe, and second, that of the continuing engagement with Chaucer’s narratives by modern and contemporary film makers and writers.

Reading List

The Open Access Companion to the Canterbury Tales, ed. Candace Barrington et al. https://opencanterburytales.dsl.lsu.edu <accessed 4 January 2018>

Requirements:

Students will be responsible for the content not only of the reading assignments, but also of our discussions in class. Regular attendance and participation in the discussions of all texts (not just the text[s] that you are researching for the semester) are prerequisites for passing the course. Four unexcused absences are permissible without any effect on your grade, but after that point absences will adversely affect your final grade for the course, and the more adversely the more classes are missed. You may also expect brief quizzes on all reading assignments. All written assignments are due one hour before the time class begins on the day the assignment is due. Written work must be composed or saved using only Microsoft Word and formatted as a .doc or .docx document in Times New Roman, size 12 font; double-spaced (no extra spacing after paragraphs); 1-inch margins all around; with page numbers and your name on every page; and carefully proofread and spellchecked. Written work must be sent to me as an e-mail attachment.
at least one hour before the time class begins on the day the written work is due. Do not use any electronic equipment in the classroom to record the discussion or take notes.

The final grade for the course will be composed of individual performance in seven areas:

1) A Topic Description. All Topic Descriptions (1-2 pages), which will either be assigned to you or which you will choose yourself after consultation with me, are due on #######. You must meet with me during my office hours (or make an appointment) to discuss your topic. The grade on the Topic Description will account for about 10 percent of your final grade [C-1]. Two or three students may wish to work together on a series of oral presentations of related topics or literary texts and/or intellectual documents to be held at successive class meetings. To see an example of a well done Topic Description, click on the following link: Sample 1.

2) An oral presentation [C-3]. The presentation (ca. 10-15 minutes) represents the fruits of your initial research on a topic [C-4]. The presentation should be open-ended and should encourage questions from the rest of the class. The grade on the presentation will account for about 10 percent of the final grade.

3) A brief critical book report. The book report (1-2 pages) will deal with one or two major scholarly studies (secondary literature) of the topic or text on which your report is based. It is due on the date of the oral report. The book report will critically evaluate these sources and will emphasize what you find important for your own research in the scholarly article(s) or book(s) you are reviewing [C-2]. Include the bibliography of the book(s) or article(s) you are reviewing at the end of your review. The grade on the critical book report will account for about 10 percent of the final grade [C-1]. To see an example of a well done review, click on the following link: Sample 1.

4) Quizzes. The quizzes will cover each work, including secondary texts, to be read for the semester. The average of all the quizzes will account for about 15 percent of the final grade.

5) A short paper [C-3]. The short paper (5-7 pages, excluding bibliography) is to be sent to me one week before the oral presentation [C-4]. The paper will reflect your critical evaluation of the texts you have read for class and will include an annotated bibliography of 3-5 items of scholarly studies (secondary literature) which you have read in preparation for giving the report and writing the paper [C-2] (for documentation and references, follow the guidelines available at: http://www.public.asu.edu/~dedalus/guidetostyle/index.html). The bibliography may contain only items identified through the resources of the ASU libraries (i.e., do not use internet sites identified through a general web search unless you have cleared this with me first). The short paper for all reports to be held on or after ####### will be due on ######. The short paper will serve as the basis for your term paper. The grade on the short paper will account for about 20 percent of the final grade [C-1]. To see examples of all that is required for a good paper, click on the following links: Sample 1, Sample 2.

6) A term paper [C-3]. The term paper (10-12 pages, excluding bibliography) is one in which all of your research on the topic, and all of your own critical evaluation of what you have read, are formulated carefully and in the scope which the subject demands. The bibliography must contain another 3-5 items of scholarly studies (secondary literature) beyond those used in the short paper [C-2]; only items identified through the resources of the ASU libraries can be used. Term papers must be sent to me at the latest by #### p.m. on ####. The grade on the term paper will account for about 25 percent of the final grade [C-1].
A group project. Make something medieval come to life! This may involve something to eat or to wear, or it may involve a 5-minute video of a scene from one of Chaucer’s narratives. Periodic reports by the small groups to the class during the semester will help track the progress of the groups. Each member of a group will write a brief, one-page reflection on the goals and results of working in the group. The grade on the group project will account for about 10 percent of the final grade.

A New Companion to Chaucer

Peter Brown (Editor)

DESCRIPTION

The extensively revised and expanded version of the acclaimed Companion to Chaucer

An essential text for both established scholars and those seeking to expand their knowledge of Chaucer studies, A New Companion to Chaucer is an authoritative and up-to-date survey of Chaucer scholarship. Rigorous yet accessible, this book helps readers to identify current debates, recognize historical and literary context, and to understand how particular concepts and theories affect the interpretation of Chaucer’s texts. Chaucer specialists from around the globe offer contributions that range from updates of long-standing scholarship on biography, language, women, and social structures, to original research in new areas such as ideology, the afterlife, patronage, and sexuality. In presenting conflicting perspectives and ideological differences, this stimulating volume encourages readers to explore additional paths of inquiry and engage in lively and info...
