Course description:

Is this a cross-listed course? (Choose one) If yes, please identify course(s): No

Is this a shared course? (Choose one) If so, list all academic units offering this course: No

Note- For courses that are crosslisted and/or shared, a letter of support from the chair/director of each department that offers the course is required for each designation requested. By submitting this letter of support, the chair/director agrees to ensure that all faculty teaching the course are aware of the General Studies designation(s) and will teach the course in a manner that meets the criteria for each approved designation.

Is this a permanent-numbered course with topics? No (Choose one)

If yes, each topic requires an individual submission, separate from other topics.

Requested designation: Humanities, Arts and Design-HU (Choose One)  Mandatory Review: No (Choose one)

Note- a separate proposal is required for each designation.

Eligibility: Permanent numbered courses must have completed the university’s review and approval process. For the rules governing approval of omnibus courses, contact Phyllis.Lucie@asu.edu.

Submission deadlines dates are as follow:
- For Fall 2021 Effective Date: October 2, 2020
- For Spring 2022 Effective Date: March 5, 2022

Area proposed course will serve:
A single course may be proposed for more than one core or awareness area. A course may satisfy a core area requirement and more than one awareness area requirements concurrently, but may not satisfy requirements in two core areas simultaneously, even if approved for those areas. With departmental consent, an approved General Studies course may be counted toward both the General Studies requirement and the major program of study. It is the responsibility of the chair/director to ensure that all faculty teaching the course are aware of the General Studies designation(s) and adhere to the above guidelines.

Checklists for general studies designations:
Complete and attach the appropriate checklist
- Literacy and Critical Inquiry core courses (L)
- Mathematics core courses (MA)
- Computer/statistics/quantitative applications core courses (CS)
- Humanities, Arts and Design core courses (HU)
- Social-Behavioral Sciences core courses (SB)
- Natural Sciences core courses (SQ/SG)
- Cultural Diversity in the United States courses (C)
- Global Awareness courses (G)
- Historical Awareness courses (H)

A complete proposal should include:

- Signed course proposal cover form
- Criteria checklist for General Studies designation being requested
- Course catalog description
- Sample syllabus for the course
- Copy of table of contents from the textbook and list of required readings/books

Proposals must be submitted electronically with all files compiled into one PDF.

Rev. 10/2020
Arizona State University Criteria Checklist for

HUMANITIES, ARTS AND DESIGN [HU]

Rationale and Objectives

The humanities disciplines are concerned with questions of human existence and meaning, the nature of thinking and knowing, with moral and aesthetic experience. The humanities develop values of all kinds by making the human mind more supple, critical, and expansive. They are concerned with the study of the textual and artistic traditions of diverse cultures, including traditions in literature, philosophy, religion, ethics, history, and aesthetics. In sum, these disciplines explore the range of human thought and its application to the past and present human environment. They deepen awareness of the diversity of the human heritage and its traditions and histories, and they may also promote the application of this knowledge to contemporary societies.

The study of the arts and design, like the humanities, deepens the student’s awareness of the diversity of human societies and cultures. The arts have as their primary purpose the creation and study of objects, installations, performances, and other means of expressing or conveying aesthetic concepts and ideas. Design study concerns itself with material objects, images and spaces, their historical development, and their significance in society and culture. Disciplines in the arts and design employ modes of thought and communication that are often nonverbal, which means that courses in these areas tend to focus on objects, images, and structures and/or on the practical techniques and historical development of artistic and design traditions. The past and present accomplishments of artists and designers help form the student’s ability to perceive aesthetic qualities of artwork and design.

The Humanities, Arts and Design are an important part of the General Studies Program, for they provide an opportunity for students to study intellectual and imaginative traditions and to observe and/or learn the production of artwork and design. The knowledge acquired in courses fulfilling the Humanities, Arts and Design requirement may encourage students to investigate their own personal philosophies or beliefs and to understand better their own social experience. In sum, the Humanities, Arts and Design core area enables students to broaden and deepen their consideration of the variety of human experience.

<td>This course equips students with interpretive tools that help them: a) track the stated reasoning chain in written, oral, and visual works of art throughout history; b) identify the unstated assumptions that organize written, oral, and visual works of art throughout history; and, c) critically analyze the arrangement and delivery of written, oral, and visual works of art throughout history.</td>
<td>Through the response essays, midterm, final, and class discussion students are asked to analyze readings in the history of rhetoric focusing on the relationship between ways of knowing (philosophy, religion, science) and communication. Course Catalog Description:
ENG 392: History of Rhetorical Theory
Course Description:
Begins in ancient Greece with the rise of the art of public oratory (known as rhetoric) and ends in the present, an era dominated by mass media. Engages in a great deal of reading—lots of very old writings as well as some newer ones. Covers a great many topics and ideas; focuses by continually returning to the subject of public discourse. Challenging readings designed to emphasize the connection between systems of philosophy (or 'worldview') and systems of communication. By focusing on big ideas, students become a better thinker and communicator in any chosen career.

Course description:
This course is an introduction. As we start, I don’t expect you to even have an idea of what rhetoric is, let alone be familiar with its history and theory. Because this is a Big Idea course, taking it will be more like taking a philosophy course than most other communication, political science, or English classes you’ve had. This course begins in ancient Greece, with the rise of the art of public oratory (known as rhetoric), and ends in the present, an era dominated by mass media. Throughout the course we’ll engage in a great deal of reading—lots of very old writings as well as some newer ones. We’ll cover a great many topics and ideas. Yet, we’ll try to keep things focused by continually returning to the subject of public discourse. This class, especially the readings, are challenging, but there are two big potential payoffs. First, this class is designed to emphasize the connection between systems of philosophy (or “worldview”) and systems of communication. For that reason, the course will make you see the world differently. We promise. Second, by focusing on big ideas, you will become a better thinker and communicator in any career that you choose to pursue.
Catalog Description: This class surveys the major foundational theories of the art of rhetoric from fifth-century Athens through the present with an emphasis on how ancient rhetorical theory informs contemporary rhetorical practices. Class materials focus on public discourse in the western tradition and the relationships between knowledge, communication, and moral philosophy while developing students’ intellectual agility and verbal skills.

Student Learning Outcomes:
- To introduce you to the rich and sophisticated history of thinking in the west about communication, especially public communication, and in doing so help you situate past literate/rhetorical performances within complex historical, political contexts in which these performances originally occurred.
- To help you trace how discourses have traveled across contexts
- To help you develop an appreciation for and interest in public discourse and, more specifically, rhetoric
- To introduce you to some major themes, movements, and thinkers in history and to help you identify, analyze and communicate the historical and political contexts of specific rhetorical situations—including how those situations impact various stakeholders differently and the implications that those differences hold for moving constructive discursive work forward.
- To help you develop intellectual agility with Big Ideas, abstract theory, and philosophical arguments
- To help you develop your verbal skills, especially in reading and writing
- To help you increase their understandings of disciplinary methods and practices for data-driven, historically situated, theoretically informed rhetorical decision making
- To help you be able to contextualize the rhetorical situation in which you find yourself—historically, theoretically, methodologically—and chart a path forward by utilizing an array of disciplinary tools, each of which affords distinct advantages, constraints, risks.

Required Texts

Additional readings will be posted to Canvas.

Major Assignments:
- 8 Reading Quizzes: 20%
- 4 Response Papers: 30%
- Midterm: 20%
- Final: 20%
- Class Participation: 10%

Reading Quizzes
The readings for this class are challenging. This is not a lecture class. We’ll spend the majority of our time talking about the ideas in the readings and working through them as a class. The only way to do that is if we’ve all read them—reading quizzes offer an incentive to do so. Reading quizzes will be given unannounced in the first 15 minutes of class.
Response Essays
Four times during the semester students will write “Response Essays.” The goal of Response Essays is twofold. First, they should help students gain a deeper understanding of readings and class themes by analyzing a reading by focusing on one or more aspects of a reading or by comparing one or more readings. Second, they should help promote and focus class discussion.

First, based on what is interesting to you in the class or in a reading pose a question for yourself to answer. For example, “How does Plato think about truth in relation to rhetoric and where does truth come from for Plato?,” “Why is Quintilian so concerned with developing the judgment of the orator?,” “Or how are Plato and Aristotle thinking about audience differently?” Use the question as the title for your Response Essay and then answer the question in 2-3 double spaces pages. A good Response Essay will make claims about a reading and support those claims with evidence from the reading. Beware, you may see these questions again on the midterm/final.

All original language should be in quotations and all quotations, paraphrases, and summaries of the readings should include citations with page numbers using MLA.

Midterm/Final
There will be an essay-format midterm and final exam. The final is cumulative.

Participation
The material in this class is hard. I won’t “spoon feed” it to you. Your success in this class and that of your classmates depends on everyone arriving to class prepared (having completed and thought about the reading) and participating (answering and asking questions, staying focused in small groups, and helping out your neighbor). This grade is meant encourage your success.

Feedback
I will provide feedback on all assignments via Canvas. If students would like additional feedback, they should come to office hours.

Format of Assignments
All assignments to be turned in on Canvas. Handwritten work is not accepted in this class.

Grading
Grading is based on specific assignment criteria, and will follow English Department standards for content, organization, expression, and mechanics. To compute final course grades, the following values are assigned to the standard letter grades of A through E:

- A+ = 4.3
- A  = 4.0
- A-  = 3.7
- B+  = 3.3
- B  = 3.0
- B-  = 2.7
- 98-100
- 94-97
- 90-93
- 87-89
- 83-86
- 80-82
- 99
- 95.5
- 91.5
- 88
- 84.5
- 81
C+ = 2.3  77-79  78
C   = 2.0  70-76  73
D   = 1.0  60-69  64.5
E   = 0.3  0-59   50
No paper = 0.0

Policies:

Attendance: Because so much of what is to be learned in this course occurs in class, regular attendance is expected. The course is so constructed that even a few absences will create serious problems. Therefore, only two weeks’ worth of absences (6 class meetings) will be allowed for the semester. Students who exceed two weeks’ worth of classes will fail the course, unless they withdraw. Please note that students will not be penalized for time taken for university sanctioned events and religious observances designated by the Office of the Executive Vice President and Provost <https://eoss.asu.edu/cora/holidays>. Accommodation will be provided for both attendance and assignments that fall due on those days.

- Tardiness/leaving early:
  Be on time to class and remain for the whole class period: If you are more than five (5) minutes late to class, or if you leave class more than five minutes early, you will be counted absent for that class period.

Late Assignments: Papers are due at the start of class on the day listed on the syllabus. Papers are late if they are five minutes or five days late. Papers which are turned in late will automatically receive an “E” provided they represent “C” level work (late papers below this standard will receive a zero). I do not provide feedback on late papers. All late papers must be turned in by the last regular class meeting.

Incompletes: Please do not assume that an incomplete will be given upon request. University and departmental policy on the handling of incompletes will be followed; only in the case of verified emergencies and illnesses will an incomplete be given.

Withdrawal Deadlines:
Drop/Add Ends: January 17
Refund Deadline: January 24
Complete Withdrawal: April 30

Academic Integrity and Plagiarism:
Plagiarism means presenting someone else’s ideas and words as though they were your own – and this includes (but is not limited to) copying and pasting material from the Web into your own work without properly quoting, paraphrasing, and/or citing them. One of the goals of the course is to learn how to incorporate source material into your work appropriately. Additionally, I consider it an infraction of academic integrity to reuse research or papers produced for another class. All writing turned in for this class must be written for this class. Instances of plagiarism will be reported; therefore, it is not merely your performance in this class that is risked but your academic future. The penalty for academic dishonesty in this class depends on the severity of the infraction as determined by the instructor and may range from a ‘0’ on an assignment, to an ‘E’ or an ‘EX’ in the class. Please contact me if you have a problem with an assignment; plagiarism is never an intelligent solution to academic troubles. Please refer to ASU’s policy and resources requiring academic integrity and against plagiarism: https://provost.asu.edu/academicintegrity.

Classroom Etiquette:
This class will take place on Zoom. It is up to you if you have your camera on or not. Please do not do anything during our Zoom meetings you would not do in a face to face class. Please do not record or screenshot any portion of this class or your classmates. At a minimum, students who disrupt the classroom learning environment will be placed in the “waiting room” and counted as absent. Please see the policy on disruptive behavior below.

Academic, Professional, and Personal Support Resources:
I want you to enjoy this class and succeed in your learning. If you experience difficulty in this course for any reason, please talk to me or send me an email right at any time.

Student Support Services available here at ASU:

Writing Support: If you need support for your writing, please talk to me and I will work with you individually during office hours or by appointment. There are also wonderful resources on campus to support you as a writer and as a teacher of writing: ASU Writing Resources: https://tutoring.asu.edu/student-services/writing-centers

Counseling and Career Services: This center offers counseling for personal and career concerns, self-help information, and connections to off-campus mental health resources. See https://eoss.asu.edu/counseling Disability Resource Center (DRC): DSP provides academic support services to eligible students with temporary and permanent disabilities. Please inform me, if you require special classroom accommodations due to a disability. (480-965-1234).

http://www.asu.edu/studentaffairs/edu/drc/

Threatening or Disruptive Behavior: In accordance with the Student Services Manual 104-2, any instance of threatening, harassing, or violent behavior will be reported both to the ASU Police Department and to the Office of the Dean of Students, which will determine appropriate actions. In accordance with the Student Services Manual 201-10, an instructor may withdraw a student from a course with a mark of “W” or “E” when the student’s behavior disrupts the educational process. Disruptive classroom behavior for this purpose is defined by the instructor. Additional information may be found at the following URLs:a.SSM 104-2: https://www.asu.edu/aad/manuals/ssm/ssm104-02.htmlb. SSM 201-10: https://www.asu.edu/aad/manuals/ssm/ssm201-10.html.

Students, faculty, staff, and other individuals do not have an unqualified right of access to university grounds, property, or services. Interfering with the peaceful conduct of university-related business or activities or remaining on campus grounds after a request to leave may be considered a crime. A disruptive student may be withdrawn from a course with a mark of “W” or “E” when the student’s behavior disrupts the educational process. Disruptive classroom behavior for this purpose is defined by the instructor. Disruptive behavior in any form (see http://www.asu.edu/studentaffairs/safety/definitions.html) will not be tolerated, and students are expected to be familiar with all relevant university policies. ASU Student Rights and Responsibilities are located at http://students.asu.edu/srr/code.

Mandated Reporting: As a mandated reporter, I am obligated to report any information I become aware of regarding alleged acts of sexual discrimination, including sexual violence and dating violence. ASU Counseling Services, https://eoss.asu.edu/counseling, is available if you wish discuss any concerns confidentially and privately.

Copyright: Students must refrain from uploading to any course shell, discussion board, or website used by the course instructor or other course forum, material that is not the student's original work, unless the students first comply with all applicable copyright laws; faculty members reserve the right to delete materials on the grounds of suspected copyright infringement.

Course content, including lectures, are copyrighted materials. Students may not share outside the class, upload, sell, or distribute course content or notes taken during the conduct of the course.

Absent Instructor: Please wait for the instructor for ten minutes before assuming there is no class unless you are otherwise instructed via email.

This syllabus is subject to change with reasonable notice.
