   ELIGIBILITY: Courses must have a current Course Equivalency Guide (CEG) evaluation. Courses evaluated as NT (non-transferable) are not eligible for the General Studies Program.

   MANDATORY REVIEW:
   The above specified course is undergoing Mandatory Review for the following Core or Awareness Area (only one area is permitted; if a course meets more than one Core or Awareness Area, please submit a separate Mandatory Review Cover Form for each Area).

   POLICY: The General Studies Council (GSC) Policies and Procedures requires the review of previously approved community college courses every five years, to verify that they continue to meet the requirements of Core or Awareness Areas already assigned to these courses. This review is also necessary as the General Studies program evolves.

   AREA(S) PROPOSED COURSE WILL SERVE: A course may be proposed for more than one core or awareness area. Although a course may satisfy a core area requirement and an awareness area requirement concurrently, a course may not be used to satisfy requirements in two core or awareness areas simultaneously, even if approved for those areas. With departmental consent, an approved General Studies course may be counted toward both the General Studies requirements and the major program of study.

Rationale and Objectives

The humanities disciplines are concerned with questions of human existence and meaning, the nature of thinking and knowing, with moral and aesthetic experience. The humanities develop values of all kinds by making the human mind more supple, critical, and expansive. They are concerned with the study of the textual and artistic traditions of diverse cultures, including traditions in literature, philosophy, religion, ethics, history, and aesthetics. In sum, these disciplines explore the range of human thought and its application to the past and present human environment. They deepen awareness of the diversity of the human heritage and its traditions and histories, and they may also promote the application of this knowledge to contemporary societies.

The study of the arts and design, like the humanities, deepens the student’s awareness of the diversity of human societies and cultures. The arts have as their primary purpose the creation and study of objects, installations, performances, and other means of expressing or conveying aesthetic concepts and ideas. Design study concerns itself with material objects, images and spaces, their historical development, and their significance in society and culture. Disciplines in the arts and design employ modes of thought and communication that are often nonverbal, which means that courses in these areas tend to focus on objects, images, and structures and/or on the practical techniques and historical development of artistic and design traditions. The past and present accomplishments of artists and designers help form the student’s ability to perceive aesthetic qualities of artwork and design.

The Humanities, Arts and Design are an important part of the General Studies Program, for they provide an opportunity for students to study intellectual and imaginative traditions and to observe and/or learn the production of artwork and design. The knowledge acquired in courses fulfilling the Humanities, Arts and Design requirement may encourage students to investigate their own personal philosophies or beliefs and to understand better their own social experience. In sum, the Humanities, Arts and Design core area enables students to broaden and deepen their consideration of the variety of human experience.

To successfully participate in this course, students will need access to a computer with a reliable internet connection and the ability to run a web browser compatible with Canvas; for the live online aspects of the course, you will also require a webcam and microphone. Students will need basic computer skills and a working knowledge of the Canvas learning management system.

General Course Description

C-1, C-2 Characteristics of literary and cinematic mediums. Challenges of adapting literature to film. Global examination of historical, religious, socioeconomic, political, and colonial/post colonial themes depicted in Western and non-Western literature and film (e.g., Africa, Asia, and Latin America) outside the United States. Use of narrative in each medium and how it translates various global/international perspectives and cultural assumptions. Specific genres present in literature and film. Cultural metaphors and symbols used in literature and film.

Requisites

Prerequisites: Grade of C or better in ENG101 or ENG107.

Course Competencies (C-1, C-2, C4-d)

In taking this course, students will acquire the ability to do the following:

1. Compare and contrast the specific characteristics of literature and film.
2. Analyze the art of adapting literature to film.
3. Explain how each medium addresses historical, religious, socioeconomic, political, and colonial/post colonial themes.
4. Explain the use of narrative in literature and film, and describe how the narrative format translates various global perspectives and cultural values and assumptions.
5. Compare and contrast cultural questions of globalization and the values and assumptions between and among cultures.
6. Identify and exemplify specific genres used in literature and film.
7. Compare and contrast cultural metaphors and symbols in literature and film.
Required Texts
You will need to purchase or otherwise gain sustained access to the following books, either via the college bookstore or an alternate vendor; you will need to have read them by the time indicated in the course schedule and have them available on the class days assigned for their discussion. (A limited selection and number of copies may be available from the GateWay Library in either digital format or as a short-term loan.)

All other texts and all movies assigned in this course will be made available through Canvas and/or the GateWay Library website and databases.

Course Projects, Assignments & Other Course Requirements

Class Discussion (30%).

Discussion Leader (30% of Class Discussion grade). Every student is required to act as Discussion Leader for one week during the course, either by themselves or as part of a small team (to be assigned during our first course meeting). It is the Discussion Leader’s responsibility to prepare topics for discussion based on that week’s readings; select passages from those readings on which we should focus more closely for the day; and prepare questions, prompts, and arguments to keep the discussion going during the meeting – Discussion Leaders are responsible, on the day of the class meeting, for helping me guide class discussion. A copy of the Discussion Leader’s discussion topics, prompts, questions, and other materials will be due at the start of the week for which you are acting as Discussion Leader (see Course Schedule).

Discussion Questions (60% of Class Discussion grade). Each week, with the exception of our first class meeting, those students who are not acting as Discussion Leader will submit three discussion questions, prompts, or arguments that will serve to start a new line of inquiry or to extend an ongoing discussion during class. A copy of the prepared Discussion Questions will be due by the start of each week (see Course Schedule).

"Intro to the Course" Assignments (10% of Class Discussion grade). During the first course week, I ask everyone to introduce themselves to the class and to respond to other students; there is also a syllabus quiz.
C-2, C-4d Close Reading, Explication, and Analysis (20%). Throughout the semester, you will be required to complete focused textual-analysis assignments in response to the readings assigned for that week. These assignments will primarily serve to acquire and practice important methods of textual analysis and the communication of the insights you gained about a text through that analysis. In addition, these frequent, short textual investigations will also prepare you for your research activities, textual analysis, and writing process as you work on your Capstone Project.

Capstone Project (50%). Your work in this course will culminate in a two-part multi-media Capstone Project that will take the place of a traditional literary-analysis paper. This capstone project will consist of three elements: 1) a mid-semester audio-visual presentation; 2) an end-of-semester website project; 3) a website project proposal. The first two Capstone Project elements - the presentation and the website project - will be collected and published as part of a course website that will serve as a course portfolio and educational resource.

"Intersections" Presentation (c.10 mins + c.750 words) (40% of Capstone Project grade). For your first, mid-semester presentation you should select one text we will have already read and discussed in class by that time and connect it to a text or other work of art we are not reading or otherwise analyzing for this class; one of these texts can be a movie. C-1, C-2, C-4d The connections you identify and present to the class should be connections of theme or topic - that is, they should highlight the ways in which these texts discuss issues surrounding how narrative shapes culture and culture shapes narrative, specifically how historical, religious, socioeconomic, political, and colonial/post colonial themes raise question about globalization and the values and assumptions between and among cultures. Your connections should not be merely those of a comparison, though you can certainly start there.

C-4d Your discussion should involve a careful investigation supported by the kinds of close reading, explication, and textual analysis you will have acquired and practiced in your weekly Close Reading assignments. The goal is to present to the class a text or other work of art they may not know yet, relate it to one that is known to the class, and analyze it in relation to one or two topics and themes that are the focus of this course and of our class discussions.

Your presentation will take the form of an audio-visual recording using a digital platform of your choice (YouTube or other video, voiced-over PowerPoint recording, etc.). It can include a mixture of supporting media like audio, visual elements, hands-on materials, etc. from other sources, though these should not be the focus or main element of your presentation; most of the presentation should be of your own making.

Along with your presentation, you will also submit a script (c.750 words) that can take the form of extended bullet-point notes; this script will serve as a reference point and an accessibility aid to support your presentation. You will therefore need to ensure that your script offers a good approximation of your presentation: lists of keywords or telegraphic bullet points will not be sufficient. (The word count indicates the approximate minimum length that a detailed presentation script will require if it is to be useful as an accessibility aid.) Presentation scripts are due at the same time as the presentation itself (see Course Schedule).

"Literature, Film and the Global Order" Web Project (c. 2,000 words/15 mins) (50% of Capstone Project grade). For your second, end-of-semester presentation you should select two texts of your choice (must be different from the texts you used in the "Intersections" Presentation, can be selected from among the texts we read in this course or from outside of it but have to fit the course focus on non-Western Lit and Film; one of these texts can be a movie) with C-1, C-2 the goal of discussing one way in which interpretation of these texts can help us better understand a current or historical international issue.

C-1 To make a compelling case for the value that the texts we read can bring to our world, you should therefore offer an insightful analysis of an important topic or theme in your selected texts and show how such careful attention to Global Lit/Film can alert us to current or incipient developments in the world outside of the text or the classroom. The goal is to identify the value and power of Literature and Film beyond the "merely" fictional or Euro-American context: if the texts we read are at least in part generated out of a desire to investigate or re/imagine human histories and futures, then how can those texts serve to point out problems and opportunities in our world so as to illuminate, enrich, or improve our current lives.

This web project will be designed and built in Google Sites and can consist of any combination of written text, images, video, audio, game, etc. – in that respect, this is a project that is open to creative interpretation and execution – though the focus should be on clear communication of your analyses and insights to an audience presumed to know fairly little about the subject. Each project should contain about 1,500 words worth of text, 15 minutes worth of original audio/video material, or a combination of various media elements, as appropriate and previously discussed with the course instructor.

Web Project Proposal (c. 300 words) (10% of Capstone Project grade). Before I let you loose on your web project, I will require you to submit a short, provisional summary of your planned project, followed by a 1-on-1 virtual conference (to be scheduled later in the semester) where we will discuss your ideas and design for the project. Only once I have given you feedback and the green light can you move ahead with your intended project.

You will find more detailed descriptions, deadlines, and supporting materials for all course assignments in our course shell on Canvas.

Two VERY Important Notes:
Being Prepared for Class
It should go without saying that I expect you to read and think about the assigned texts in time for those class meetings in which we are scheduled to discuss them. I also expect you to always have the texts available while we discuss them: careful close reading and discussion of a text requires frequent reference to the text itself, and lack of availability of the text for reference potentially means lack of depth of discussion. So please come prepared.

Reaching Out and Asking Questions: It’s What Successful Students Do
You have two amazing resources on campus that can help you in developing your reading, writing, and research: the Learning Center and the Library! Studies have shown that repeat visits to a tutoring center or discussions with a librarian from early in a research project dramatically increase student success, so I strongly encourage you to do these things early and often. For your set of Discussion Leader materials as well as for your Capstone Projects, I will give you 5 points of extra credit the first time that you go to the Learning Center to develop your assignment in consultation with a tutor and/or a librarian and show me proof that you did so (request documentation from the tutor/librarian).
