GENERAL STUDIES COURSE PROPOSAL COVER FORM

Copy and paste current course information from Class Search/Course Catalog.

College/School: The College of Liberal Arts and Sciences
Department/School: School of Historical, Philosophical and Religious Studies
Prefix: HST  Number: 303  Title: Studies in Asian History (Modern China -Violence)  Units: 3

Is this a cross-listed course?  No  If yes, please identify course(s):

Is this a shared course?  No  If so, list all academic units offering this course:

Note: For courses that are crosslisted and/or shared, a letter of support from the chair/director of each department that offers the course is required for each designation requested. By submitting this letter of support, the chair/director agrees to ensure that all faculty teaching the course are aware of the General Studies designation(s) and will teach the course in a manner that meets the criteria for each approved designation.

Is this a permanent-numbered course with topics?  Yes
If yes, each topic requires an individual submission, separate from other topics.

Requested designation: Historical Awareness (H)  Mandatory Review: Yes

Note: a separate proposal is required for each designation.

Eligibility: Permanent numbered courses must have completed the university’s review and approval process. For the rules governing approval of omnibus courses, contact Phyllis.Lucie@asu.edu.

Submission deadlines dates are as follow:
For Fall 2021 Effective Date: October 2, 2020
For Spring 2022 Effective Date: March 5, 2021

Area proposed course will serve:
A single course may be proposed for more than one core or awareness area. A course may satisfy a core area requirement and more than one awareness area requirements concurrently, but may not satisfy requirements in two core areas simultaneously, even if approved for those areas. With departmental consent, an approved General Studies course may be counted toward both the General Studies requirement and the major program of study. It is the responsibility of the chair/director to ensure that all faculty teaching the course are aware of the General Studies designation(s) and adhere to the above guidelines.

Checklists for general studies designations:
Complete and attach the appropriate checklist

- Literacy and Critical Inquiry core courses (L)
- Mathematics core courses (MA)
- Computer/statistics/quantitative applications core courses (CS)
- Humanities, Arts and Design core courses (HU)
- Social-Behavioral Sciences core courses (SB)
- Natural Sciences core courses (SQ/SG)
- Cultural Diversity in the United States courses (C)
- Global Awareness courses (G)
- Historical Awareness courses (H)

A complete proposal should include:

- Signed course proposal cover form
- Criteria checklist for General Studies designation being requested
- Course catalog description
- Sample syllabus for the course
- Copy of table of contents from the textbook and list of required readings/books

Proposals must be submitted electronically with all files compiled into one PDF.

Arizona State University Criteria Checklist for HISTORICAL AWARENESS [H]

Rationale and Objectives

Recent trends in higher education have called for the creation and development of historical consciousness in undergraduates now and in the future. History studies the growth and development of human society from a number of perspectives such as—political, social, economic and/or cultural. From one perspective, historical awareness is a valuable aid in the analysis of present-day problems because historical forces and traditions have created modern life and lie just beneath its surface. From a second perspective, the historical past is an indispensable source of identity and of values, which facilitate social harmony and cooperative effort. Along with this observation, it should be noted that historical study can produce intercultural understanding by tracing cultural differences to their origins in the past. A third perspective on the need for historical awareness is that knowledge of history helps us to learn from the past to make better, more well-informed decisions in the present and the future.

The requirement of a course that is historical in method and content presumes that "history" designates a sequence of past events or a narrative whose intent or effect is to represent both the relationship between events and change over time. The requirement also presumes that these are human events and that history includes all that has been felt, thought, imagined, said, and done by human beings. The opportunities for nurturing historical consciousness are nearly unlimited. History is present in the languages, art, music, literatures, philosophy, religion, and the natural sciences, as well as in the social science traditionally called History.

The justifications for how the course fits each of the criteria need to be clear both in the application tables and the course materials. The Historical Awareness designation requires consistent analysis of the broader historical context of past events and persons, of cause and effect, and of change over time. Providing intermittent, anecdotal historical context of people and events usually will not suffice to meet the Historical Awareness criteria. A Historical Awareness course will instead embed systematic historical analysis in the core of the syllabus, including readings and assignments. For courses focusing on the history of a field of study, the applicant needs to show both how the field of study is affected by political, social, economic, and/or cultural conditions AND how political, social, economic, and/or cultural conditions are affected by the field of study.

<td>1. History is a major focus of the course.</td>
<td>Students read scholarly works discussing China’s various issues of violence from the seventeenth to the twentieth century. This course helps students understand how violence throughout history is related to the deprivation of cultural and social subjectivities in the environs of political conflicts, and how such subjectivities can be uncovered in a wide range of mediums – court records, government documents, memoirs, and photographs. These materials are pertinent to the study of history.</td>
<td>Sections I to VII examines various historical developments in China. The course allows students to examine how the Chinese people experienced violence in different eras. Each reading focuses on a different time period over the course of 400 years. Half of the readings are primary sources which help students understand how people in the past thought and behaved. The other half are analytical works by historians which introduce students to the study of history as a discipline. Discussion question postings, class discussions, midterm and the final paper require students to engage in historical analysis.</td>

HIST 303 Modern China – Violence

Course Description & Learning Outcomes:

This course introduces you to the history of China from the seventeenth century to twenty-first century with a thematic focus on “violence.” Rebellions, conflicts, and revolutions characterized these centuries. We will grapple with the question of what is violence. Eschewing theories developed from Western contexts, we seek theoretical insights from China’s historical and cultural grounds. Rather than focusing on episodes of overt brutality, we focus on particular imprints of violence in practices and memories. This course will help you understand how violence is related to the deprivation of cultural and social subjectivities in the environs of political conflicts, and how such subjectivities can be uncovered in a wide range of mediums – court records, government documents, memoirs, and photographs. The forms of violence explored in the intertwined histories of China in the age of semi-colonialism and global wars are not marginal to the political violence, but constitute critical dimensions of individual and societal experience, both firsthand and memorialy.

Skills developed in this class include forming critical questions, conducting historical research, making public presentations, managing long-term projects, and writing analytical essays.

If you look for background reading on Chinese history, I recommend Jonathan Spence’s The Search for Modern China.

Class Format:

Classes will feature a combination of lecture and discussion. Come to class prepared to talk about the readings each time, and bring hard copies of that day’s readings with you. If you choose to buy electronic versions of the books, you will have to print them out and bring them to class.

Assignments:
Attendance & Participation: 20% (No more than one unexcused absence is allowed. Each additional absence will result in a grade reduction of 1%. Active participation in class activities is required.)

Sets of Questions: 5% x 4 times = 20% (Each student will post 3-4 questions on blackboard 24 hours before class meetings. These questions will facilitate our class discussions. These questions must be thoughtful and able to induce debates.)

Midterm: 30% (Midterm will include identifications and a short essay.)

Final: 30% (Final will be in the essay format, including in-class and take-home portions. Questions are NOT posted in advance. Notes are permitted.)

Grades will be in the full range of pluses and minuses.

You will complete all reading assignments before class and will participate in all class sessions. Participation in class discussions is an essential part of our course. Discussion should be informed by your understanding of the historical events based on the textbook readings, the primary sources and research literature outlined in the syllabus (rather than solely your personal opinion or current events). The quality of your participation and their relevance to the course material are taken into consideration for your participation grade.

The exams will be based on readings, class discussions, and lectures. No make-up exams will be given except by order of the chair of the history department, after presentation and verification of documents detailing the emergency. It is important that you check Blackboard frequently for readings and assignments, and that you are able to receive class e-mails and announcements.

Academic Integrity: Academic honesty is expected of all students in all examinations, papers, laboratory work, academic transactions and records. The possible sanctions include, but are not limited to, appropriate grade penalties, course failure (indicated on the transcript as a grade of E), course failure due to academic dishonesty (indicated on the transcript as a grade of XE), loss of registration privileges, disqualification and dismissal. For more information, see https://provost.asu.edu/academicintegrity.

Plagiarism: Plagiarism is stealing. Whenever you borrow a phrase, sentence, paragraph — even an idea stated in your own words — from any outside source (news writing, magazine, TV show, book) without giving credit to that source, you have plagiarized. Plagiarism is cheating yourself and someone else. The consequences are severe including failure for the assignment, probable failure for the course, disciplinary referral to the dean and possible expulsion from the university. Academic integrity is expected of every individual: https://provost.asu.edu/academicintegrity

How do I know if it is plagiarized or not?

- If it is exactly like the source I am using is it cited and in quotation marks? If not, then it is plagiarized.
- If I paraphrased it did I change more than a word or two and completely re-write the structure of the sentence? If not, then it is plagiarized.
- Did I follow the reasoning of a larger work in the same sequence as the original? If so it could be plagiarized.
- If something is not common knowledge and I learned it from a source did I cite it? If not, then it could be plagiarized.
- Did I find the answer on the Internet but not cite it or cite it as the reading? If so, then it is plagiarized.

Disability Accommodations: Qualified students with disabilities who will require disability accommodations in this class are encouraged to make their requests to me at the beginning of the semester either during office hours or by appointment. Note: Prior to receiving disability accommodations, verification of eligibility from the Disability Resource Center (DRC) is required. Disability information is confidential. Students who feel they will need disability accommodations in this class but have not registered with the Disability Resource Center (DRC) should contact DRC immediately. Their office is located on the first floor of the Matthews Center Building. DRC staff can also be reached at: 480-965-1234 (V), 480-965-9000 (TTY).
