Course description:
“How did we get here?” This course will provide some of the answers! We will chronologically explore notable moments in history when innovations in thought, imagination, knowledge, social organization, and creative expression changed the course of history and got us to where we are now. Rather than focusing on narrow topics or subjects, this course traces the interconnectedness between ideas, historical events, literature, philosophy, religion, ethics, aesthetics, and science, and examines the various catalysts for how cultural traditions change over time. While developing historical awareness in general, students will also have the opportunity to reflect upon their own future intellectual pursuits.

Is this a cross-listed course? No
If yes, please identify course(s):

Is this a shared course? No
If so, list all academic units offering this course:

Note: For courses that are crosslisted and/or shared, a letter of support from the chair/director of each department that offers the course is required for each designation requested. By submitting this letter of support, the chair/director agrees to ensure that all faculty teaching the course are aware of the General Studies designation(s) and will teach the course in a manner that meets the criteria for each approved designation.

Is this a permanent-numbered course with topics? No

If yes, each topic requires an individual submission, separate from other topics.

Requested designation: Humanities, Arts and Design–HU
Mandatory Review: Yes

Note: a separate proposal is required for each designation.

Eligibility: Permanent numbered courses must have completed the university’s review and approval process. For the rules governing approval of omnibus courses, contact Phyllis.Lucie@asu.edu.

Submission deadlines dates are as follow:
For Fall 2021 Effective Date: October 2, 2020
For Spring 2022 Effective Date: March 5, 2021

Area proposed course will serve:
A single course may be proposed for more than one core or awareness area. A course may satisfy a core area requirement and more than one awareness area requirements concurrently, but may not satisfy requirements in two core areas simultaneously, even if approved for those areas. With departmental consent, an approved General Studies course may be counted toward both the General Studies requirement and the major program of study. It is the responsibility of the chair/director to ensure that all faculty teaching the course are aware of the General Studies designation(s) and adhere to the above guidelines.

Checklists for general studies designations:
Complete and attach the appropriate checklist

- Literacy and Critical Inquiry core courses (L)
- Mathematics core courses (MA)
- Computer/statistics/quantitative applications core courses (CS)
- Humanities, Arts and Design core courses (HU)
- Social-Behavioral Sciences core courses (SB)
- Natural Sciences core courses (SQ/SG)
- Cultural Diversity in the United States courses (C)
- Global Awareness courses (G)
- Historical Awareness courses (H)

A complete proposal should include:
- Signed course proposal cover form
- Criteria checklist for General Studies designation being requested
- Course catalog description
- Sample syllabus for the course
- Copy of table of contents from the textbook and list of required readings/books
Proposals must be submitted electronically with all files compiled into one PDF.

Arizona State University Criteria Checklist for

HUMANITIES, ARTS AND DESIGN [HU]

Rationale and Objectives

The humanities disciplines are concerned with questions of human existence and meaning, the nature of thinking and knowing, with moral and aesthetic experience. The humanities develop values of all kinds by making the human mind more supple, critical, and expansive. They are concerned with the study of the textual and artistic traditions of diverse cultures, including traditions in literature, philosophy, religion, ethics, history, and aesthetics. In sum, these disciplines explore the range of human thought and its application to the past and present human environment. They deepen awareness of the diversity of the human heritage and its traditions and histories, and they may also promote the application of this knowledge to contemporary societies.

The study of the arts and design, like the humanities, deepens the student’s awareness of the diversity of human societies and cultures. The arts have as their primary purpose the creation and study of objects, installations, performances, and other means of expressing or conveying aesthetic concepts and ideas. Design study concerns itself with material objects, images and spaces, their historical development, and their significance in society and culture. Disciplines in the arts and design employ modes of thought and communication that are often nonverbal, which means that courses in these areas tend to focus on objects, images, and structures and/or on the practical techniques and historical development of artistic and design traditions. The past and present accomplishments of artists and designers help form the student’s ability to perceive aesthetic qualities of artwork and design.

The Humanities, Arts and Design are an important part of the General Studies Program, for they provide an opportunity for students to study intellectual and imaginative traditions and to observe and/or learn the production of artwork and design. The knowledge acquired in courses fulfilling the Humanities, Arts and Design requirement may encourage students to investigate their own personal philosophies or beliefs and to understand better their own social experience. In sum, the Humanities, Arts and Design core area enables students to broaden and deepen their consideration of the variety of human experience.

<td>The entire course is about the development of ideas and beliefs, and about how these are evident in cultural institutions and cultural production, including the arts and architecture of past eras (the course text contains a myriad of photo illustrations: one or more on each page). This type of course is the quintessential introduction to the Humanities.</td>
<td>This criterion is written into the course description (see syllabus): “This class will cover the changing zeitgeist, cultural narratives, intellectual currents, and cultural pivots that have defined and redefined the Western tradition from its beginnings […] The course will trace the interconnectedness between ideas, historical events, literature, philosophy, religion, ethics, aesthetics, and science.” Further, the first two course objectives point towards the study of ideas (and, implied, values). Finally, as students follow the textbook structure in their readings (and will complete quizzes/Perusall comments, discussion boards), they will be guided through the development of philosophies, religions, belief systems, and aesthetic experience throughout history.</td>

Course Objectives

At the completion of this course, students will demonstrate the ability to

• situate pivotal historical ideas and events in their cultural context
• assess the significance of historical ideas and events
• analyze and interpret cultural texts through the lens of historical zeitgeist
• evaluate agents of cultural change
• articulate the way a specific theme of their choice has evolved over the course of different eras
• apply insights from the study of historical events and ideas to contemporary culture

Assignments

Module 2 Short Paper
Read the following text excerpts in Landmarks:

1. Confucius’s idea of the Chinese “gentleman” (p. 47)
2. Pericles’ idea of the Athenian citizen (p. 41)
3. Plato’s idea of the Greek “philosopher-king” (p. 50)
4. Aristotle’s idea of man as a “political animal” (p. 51)
5. Virgil’s idea of Roman cultural virtues (p. 75)

How does each give insight into the zeitgeist of its specific culture (ancient Chinese, Greek, Roman)? In your own words, what values does each advocate? Where do these values overlap, and where do they differ?

Module 4 Short Paper
Have a look at the status of women in the cultures we have discussed in our course so far. What rights did they have (or not have)? What were their roles in society? What can we glean from how they were depicted in the arts and literature of each of the following eras? What events and/or new cultural ideas might have contributed to their changing roles?

- Prehistory
- Ancient Egypt
- Classical Greece
- Ancient Rome
- Early and High Middle Ages
- Renaissance

Module 5 Short Paper
The biblical story of the young David who, against all odds, defies the giant Goliath, is well known. (If you are not familiar with it, please read about it before you complete this assignment). Examine, in detail, the following sculptures which all depict the biblical David, albeit in different interpretations:

1. Donatello’s David (p. 197, Early Renaissance)
2. Michelangelo’s David (p. 207, High Renaissance)
3. Bernini’s David (p. 268, Baroque)

Briefly note, in writing, your observations of each piece. Then, answer the following questions: How does each sculpture embody the zeitgeist of its time? What major events and intellectual currents might have influenced the growing confidence the different depictions exude?

Week 7 Theme Paper
For this 4-6 page paper (1,000-1,500 words), you will trace the development of a theme of your choice over the course of at least three eras. Using the theme you proposed in Module 4, follow these steps:

1. Introduce your theme in at least five well-developed sentences.
2. Explain how your theme is evident in each of the three eras you choose to discuss (one larger paragraph for each).
   a. In each paragraph, include a discussion of how the theme is represented in the arts and literature of its time.
   b. In each paragraph, explain how specific historical events and ideas might have contributed to changes in your theme.
3. In your concluding paragraph, briefly summarize how your theme has evolved over time, and include a discussion of how its historical development has contributed to how your theme is represented in
Make sure to provide appropriate documentation with internal (parenthetical) citation and, if you used outside materials for your research, a bibliography (Works Cited or reference page).

Please proofread your paper as points will be deducted from papers with multiple mistakes.
