

Cultural Participation

ASU Gammage is more than the shows you see on stage. We're also a thriving arts organization supporting our community.

At ASU Gammage its history and present are about creating connections that transform an audience into a community, that blurs the line between art and shared culture and creates a place that feels like home for half a million people a year. Creating this home at ASU Gammage happens in many ways such as presenting one of the top Broadway series in the country, creating original theatrical works honoring our various Arizona communities, hosting today's most captivating artists and providing a variety of Cultural Participation programs.

ASU Gammage Cultural Participation programs create access for children and adults of all economic circumstances and cultures to community arts programs, world-class artists and innovative academic learning tools and initiatives. The Cultural Participation programs are the heart of ASU Gammage's mission of CONNECTING COMMUNITIES™. The programs take the artist voice, community identities and the innovation of ASU to create a shared cultural place; uniquely inspiring and bringing thousands of Arizonans together for extraordinary shared experiences that create community and foster learning.
