Program Description

The School of Humanities, Arts and Cultural Studies offers a BA in social and cultural analysis with a concentration in ethnicity, race and indigenous studies in the New College of Interdisciplinary Arts and Sciences at ASU's West campus.

This program combines transdisciplinary topics and methods to critically analyze relationships among individuals, groups, institutions, governments, economies and environments. The program enriches the study of individual racialized and indigenous groups by drawing upon theories, methods and pedagogies in ethnicity, race and indigenous studies while engaging complementary fields of literature, history, sociology, oral history, sexuality, queer studies, social justice, and transnational and cultural studies. Coursework grounds the students in a deep understanding of the particular historical, social, economic, cultural and political experiences of individual racialized groups as well as in an analysis of the relationships among them.

This major is eligible for the Western Undergraduate Exchange (WUE) program at the following location: West campus. Students from Western states who select this major and campus may be eligible for reduced nonresident tuition at a rate of 150 percent of Arizona resident tuition plus all applicable fees.
