Create a personalized career development plan for your needs

In the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, we think beyond traditional academic boundaries. We focus on creating master learners for the global workforce, with the knowledge and skills that make it easy to adapt, conquer obstacles and come out ahead. We help our students and alumni forge a path to a lifetime of success so they can create solutions for society's survival and make the world a better place.

In addition to internships and advanced research opportunities, our students can start working with ASU Career Services on their first day and continue taking advantage on the professional development resources long after they graduate from the university. From career advising and assessments to several job fairs with local and national employers, we'll help you land a job right after graduation and beyond.
