Get involved in your hall

Among the advantages of living on campus are the many opportunities you have to develop leadership and service skills that will help you achieve academically, in your future career and life.

Getting involved allows you to collaborate and create solutions that may impact the course of your life -- and the lives of others.

Explore some of the ways that you can get involved in your hall and ASU community:

Residence Hall Association (RHA)

The Residence Hall Association (RHA) works within University Housing and university communities to encourage awareness of the residential student perspective in leadership development, programming, regional involvement, and advocacy. RHA is comprised of a board of directors, individual hall, community, and apartment councils. Through involvement and positive engagement, residents are afforded the best possible opportunity to grow, learn, and establish connections within the residential communities. RHA operates closely with University Housing, the Undergraduate Student Government, and many other on-campus organization to achieve goals, and advocate on behalf of student needs.

Each location has a Residence Hall Association with executive and board positions that students can run for to further enhance their own leadership skills while giving back to the larger community through advocacy, programming, and leadership.

Residential Review Board (RRB)

Serving on the RRB allows you to promote the rights and responsibilities of students as members of your residence hall community. You'll review incidences of alleged University Housing policy violations to ensure positive student engagement and that the residence community is conducive to living and learning.

National Residence Hall Honorary (NRHH) Chapter of the Maroon and Gold: Tempe

The NRHH at ASU promotes dynamic leadership experiences through the values of Service and Recognition. The NRHH Chapter at the ASU Tempe campus finds opportunities for student leaders to be empowered while furthering their impact in communities locally, regionally or globally, while helping others reach their full potential.

Make a difference at your campus chapter of NRHH:

Devils Pitch In: Upper Division Community Service Program

Volunteer with Devils Pitch In, an upper division residential college student program, promote civic engagement and servant leadership while inspiring others to assist in Arizona communities, our nation and world. The organization's larger aim is to foster a deeper, sustainable commitment to social and civic engagement, cross-cultural communication and social justice.

In this program, you can serve the community each month through organizations, such as Feed My Starving Children, soup kitchens throughout the Valley, neighborhood beautification non-profits and more.

Get involved in the ASU community

Connect to organizations, communicate with other members, and explore your community through Sun Devil Sync. With more than 1,000 organizations to choose from, Sun Devil Sync allows you to find organizations, learn about ways to get involved and stay connected.
