

International Dual Degree Program

What is the International Dual Degree Program?

The 2+2 international academic program is a dual degree program codeveloped by Arizona State University and a partner institution. Students study for two years at the home institution and two years at ASU to receive their undergraduate degrees from both institutions.

Admission and enrollment (F-1)

Participants in the 2+2 international academic program are evaluated under the standard admissions criteria for international students. Admitted students receive all ASU services and enjoy a fully integrated campus experience.

Curriculum evaluation

Both institutions work together to create the plan of study for students to follow. This plan of study must include all courses required by both institutions for degree-seeking students.

The 2+2 format

Year 1 Home university

Students follow the plan of study to meet course requirements, with additional training to assure language proficiency.

Year 2 Home university

Students submit applications to ASU. All applications are reviewed based on international student admission standards. Students are admissible based on the completion of three semesters at their home university.

Year 3 ASU

Upon completion of the first year of full-time study at ASU, each student's academic performance is evaluated by ASU faculty and staff.

Year 4 ASU

At the end of the plan of study, both institutions evaluate each student's academic performance. Each student is individually responsible for requesting an ASU transcript for credit transfers.
